G. O. P. Charges Boon-Doggling Wastes Millions

Roosevelt Scored On Works Program

Attack Is Made as WPA Tells of 2,900 Writers Being Hired.

By Felix Bruner.

Boondoggling in all its many forms was denounced in a hot blast at the Roosevelt Administration issued yesterday by the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Referring to the President as "Frankly Destructive" Roosevelt, the committee asserted that the works relief program includes hundreds of "utterly ridiculous and fantastic" projects. In a 14-page pamphlet scores of these projects were described.

The pamphlet was issued so soon after Harry L. Hopkins, New Deal relief boss, had insisted that the program included all "good solid stuff" that the committee inserted a mimeographed explanation that "there are hundreds upon hundreds of similar instances of this so-called 'good solid stuff' for every one enumerated in this pamphlet."

Writers Hired.

Simultaneously, the Works Progress Administration issued a press release announcing that 2,900 unemployed writers had been put on the relief pay roll and that the number is expected to reach 4,500. Most of them are engaged in preparation of an American guide book.

"Boondoggling," said the committee, "is a comparatively new word in the American tongue. It is 'Frankly Destructive' Roosevelt's pet way of wasting money. It turned the so-called New Deal into an ordeal."

The committee declared that "hundreds upon hundreds of millions of dollars have been frittered away. People still go hungry and seek jobs which the New Deal has not made available. The rights of every civic subdivision from State down to the smallest hamlet have been infringed upon in the wild orgy of spending.

"In but few instances have the expenditures of the New Deal been warranted in comparison with the few jobs made available."

The committee insisted that 11,000,000 persons still are unemployed and that billions spent by the Administration have not reduced the number.

"Daily for months," the statement said, "President Roosevelt has approved squandering in a way that shames efforts related in 'Brewster's Millions.' Projects have been started which will have to be abandoned or require additional millions to finish. No more useless things have ever been concocted in the minds of men than are sponsored by Mr. Roosevelt and his brain trusters."

Pointing out that President Roosevelt had insisted that projects be useful and permanent, the committee added:

"Tap-dancing, eurythmic dances, making dolls, counting chickens, leaf raking, circuses and hundreds of similar schemes must measure up to what the President had in mind —at least in his own opinion."

"Building Islands."

"The New Dealers are not adverse to good clean fun on the race tracks. WPA put aside $4,265 of the taxpayers' money to improve a racetrack at Dayton, Ohio. The sponsors of the project put up only $45."

"The little things do not escape the New Dealers in their fidiculous expenditures. WPA, with the aid of President Roosevelt allocated $1,349 to paint the fire hydrants at Wilmington, Del."

"In the Borough of Queens, N. Y., early in October, Federal funds amounted to $500,000 to make bridle paths more attractive for horsemen."

"The Federal Treasury kicked in $46,690 to build two islands in Indian Lake State Park in Washington township, Logan County, Ohio."

$38,000 Holdup Staged At Brewery in Newark

Newark, N. J., Nov. 12 (AP).—Two young men held up the paymaster of P. Ballantine & Sons Brewery today, took $10,000 in cash and $28,000 in checks and fled. The robbery was well-timed and carefully maneuvered. The men used a car of the same make and the same year and color as the one which Henry Oelkers, cashier and paymaster, and his chauffeur, Einar Madsen, had waiting to take them to a branch of the Fidelity Union Trust Co.

There was no shooting. Oelkers dropped the envelope. One of the men picked it up, and both ran across the street to their own car. Oelkers and Madsen were unarmed. The robbers' car moved swiftly through the street and headed toward the heart of the business section. The amount of the loss was announced by Charles F. Jones, office manager.

Bridegroom Won't Pay Dowry; Is Killed, Eaten

Amsterdam, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Three Papuan cannibals in the village of Mimika, New Guinea, killed and ate a tribesman who refused to pay the customary dowry for a newly-acquired bride, it was reported today.

Police caught two of the cannibals and shot the third while he was attempting to escape. All natives of the Ninati district, numbering 900, were placed in a concentration camp because they threatened to go a head-hunting rampage to avenge the dead bridegroom.

Bloody Rout Is Acclaimed By Ethiopia

4 Italian Tanks Seized, Many Killed on Both Sides, Says Report.

Rome Hints She May Be Forced to Withdraw From League.

The Crisis Abroad.

An Ethiopian victory on the southern front, won at heavy cost to both sides, was claimed at Addis Ababa. Four Italian tanks were captured, a communique asserted. The same communique reported an Ethiopian triumph in a clash in the north.

Italy, in notes protesting League sanctions, hinted she might be forced to leave Geneva.

In London, Britain was reported unimpressed by the Italian protest and planned to go ahead with sanctions, expecting the other nations to do likewise.

Austria indicated that despite her opposition to sanctions she is prepared to bar shipment of arms to Italy.

A German embargo on the exportation of a number of raw materials appeared definitely to have crushed Italy's plan to secure supplies from the Reich.

London, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—The Exchange Telegraph Agency's correspondent with the Italian northern armies reported tonight that 300 Ethiopians were killed in a desperate fight between Dedjazmatch Nasibu's cavalry and the Sultan of Jahio's forces, who deserted to the Italians.

The Ethiopians reportedly were attempting to prevent junction of the Sultan's forces with Italians from Mussa Ali on the eastenr front.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Nov. 12.—A bloody Ethiopian victory on the southern front, won at a heavy cost of lives to both sides, was claimed officially today by the government.

It was a fight of age-old infantry against modern tank and machine gun units of the Fascist invaders, a communique said, and the former won.

Despite a withering Italian fire, the announcement asserted, tribesmen of Emperor Haile Selassie captured four Italian tanks in desperate fighting at Anele, Ogaden Province.

The battlefield was strewn with the dead of both armies, the announcement said.

Ethiopia also claimed success in another clash in the same region. The government said its warriors killed six Italian officers and many soldiers, with the remainder fleeing in panic, and captured six trucks.

The same communique reported a victory on the northern front.

49 Bolivian Officers Escape Paraguayans

Asuncion, Paraguay, Nov. 12 (AP). It was learned unofficially tonight that 49 Bolivian officers, seized during the Chaco War, have escaped from an encampment at Paraguari, Paraguay, near here.

The escape occurred while the Buenos Aires peace conference was attempting to settle the question of exchange and repatriation of prisoners, thus far without success. Paraguay holds about 28,000 Bolivian prisoners, and has been reluctant to give them up until the peace treaty is signed.

Roosevelt Asks Bankers' Aid As They Attack Interference

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, Nov. 12.—The American Bankers Association today heard requests from President Roosevelt and heads of two Federal financial agencies for an extension of credit to business, industry and real estate after their own leader had demanded Government withdrawal from the field of banking and other private business.

Mr. Roosevelt's request was made in a letter read before the convention, in which he said "All banks are now in a strong position." His plea was echoed in addresses by Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Rudolph S. Hecht, president of the association, another speaker, told the convention the emergency is passing and called on the Government to step out of its "many fields of business."

"I have watched with great interest the continued improvement in banks throughout the country during the last two years," Mr. Roosevelt's letter said. "The progress which I reported to the convention last year is being maintained. Evidences of great recovery are at hand.

"Bank portfolios and deposits reflect this.

"I am gratified, as I a[illegible]ure every member of the American Bankers Association is gratified, to know that all banks now are in a strong position, and I hope they will take full advantage of the new banking act and provide credit where it can be done upon a sound basis to business and industry and to real estate."

The President said he was sure that with co-operation between banks, business and government—and mutual confidence—"we will soon solve our remaining problems."

The President's letter was read to the convention by Jones, who said he was "as anxious as any of you can possibly be that the Government get out of the money-lending business as soon as possible."

The RFC head warned, however, that the Government "should not get out too soon."

He asked a "fair deal" for railroads, saying "entirely too many are dominated by bankers."

Crowley told the bankers "I feel that banks should make more courageous efforts to substitute private for Government credit," and outlined an eight-point program which he said would cure banking "abuses."

Rich Importer Slain; Blonde Says "I Did It"

Lovers' Quarrel Blamed for Killing in German's N. Y. Apartment.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 12.—With a diamond engagement ring and a revolver in her purse, a pretty blonde secretary was arrested on the fire escape of a swank East Side apartment house today shortly after the body of her former employer was found in his lofty bedroom.

"Yes, I did it," police quoted her as saying.

The victim was Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, 43, well-to-do German financier, industrialist and former professor of political economy at the University of Frankfort. He had a wife, from whom he had been estranged for six months, and two children in Germany.

The girl, found weeping on the fire escape, was Miss Vera Stretz, 31, university graduate, substitute school teacher, and, until recently, Dr. Gebhardt's secretary in his fifth avenue import-export firm.

Engaged, She Says.

She told police she had been engaged to Dr. Gebhardt, and in the absence of any other motive they attributed the shooting tentatively to a lovers' quarrel.

Four bullet wounds were in Dr. Gebhardt's body when it was found, clad in an old-fashioned nightshirt, in his twenty-first floor bedroom.

Four empty shells were taken from Miss Stretz's purse, police said, when they encountered her on the third floor fire escape. Two were in the revolver and two others lay in the purse.

She was held without bail on a suspicion of homicide charge.

A search of her room, two floors below Dr. Gebhardt's apartment in the same Mitchell place building, yielded a will dated Sunday, directing that her belongings go to two girl friends, names undisclosed.

"Tired of It All."

Attached to the will, police said, was a note which read substantially:

"I am tired of it all. I am leaving this world in good sound mind. Cancel all previous wills and let this one stand."

Dr. Gebhardt returned eight days ago from a business trip to Germany.

The shooting occurred about 2:30 a. m. Leslie Taite, assistant night manager of the apartment house, went to the twenty-first floor in response to a telephone call and saw Miss Stretz sitting on a settee near the elevator.

Comes Upon Body.

After nodding to her, he said, he entered the apartment, the door of which was open, and found the sprawling body. When he returned to the corridor, Miss Stretz was gone. Police found her a few minutes later on the fire escape.

Officers said she told them she was on the way to the station house "to give herself up."

Dr. Gebhardt, a member of the firm of Frank von Knopp, Inc., importers and exporters of shoe machinery, was described by associates as a brilliant scholar who had accumulated a sizeable fortune.

Cook County Fund Case Goes to Jury

Counsel for Sweitzer Charges 'Villification.'

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The case against Robert M. Sweitzer, deposed Cook County treasurer, charged with withholding $414,129 in public funds when he relinquished the county clerk's office last December, was given to a criminal court jury at 5:38 p. m. (C. S. T.) today.

Defense counsel charged in summation that "Smiling Bob," recognized as one of the chief Democratic vote-getters in Cook County, was subjected to "a sort of political villification" in the criminal action.

Prosecutors retorted the alleged deficit was disclosed in an audit of the clerk's office, which the genial Sweitzer surrendered to Michael J. Flynn, upon his election as county treasurer, and that Sweitzer should be made "to pay in prison."

The penalty, on conviction, is a 1 to 10 year term in the penitentiary.

Axacan Pays $340, Pimlico Season's Top

Wins Steeplechase After Mishaps Turn It Into Comedy.

Mantagna, Furst Stable, Wins Featured 6th at $6.70 Price.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Md., Nov. 12. The largest mutuel price of the season and one of the largest of the racing year, $340.40, resulted today from the Relay Steeplechase, a race that turned into a comedy of errors. The winner was Axacan, a gelding owned by John H. C. Forbes, which, in addition to the bulky price for first, paid $114.50 to place and $35.80 to show.

When the race was over, all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put the field together again. Of the field of 12 that marched postward, only 6 finished and what happened between times would fill a book. Every horse that had figured according to the experts was either out of action or had met with some mishap.

Axacan could just as well have been fifth, beaten 50 lengths. Jockey J. Haley was doing his best to hold sixth position the second time around when suddenly, the leaders went out of contention and he had only to keep riding to win by four lengths from Lei and some ten lengths from Her Excellency.

Drama at First Jump.

The drama and pathos began at the first jump. Hard Yal went sprawling and Jockey R. Payne took a slide on the muddy turf. Bonnie Lad was next. The 3-1 shot wobbled while landing at the seventh jump and off went Jockey E. Mitchell. Then the heavily played Occoquan, named by Commissioner Hazen for the District prison farm, almost fell at the ninth fence and lost Jockey H. Little.

Had Occoquan not decided to keep racing despite the fact that he was riderless, the result would have been different. However, he went into the leading group which consisted of Batter, Fast Chance and Lei. Going to the twelfth jump, Occoquan decided to bear out and in doing so forced Batter and Fast Chance to leave the course. This put Lei in front but he was not to escape interference. Occoquan seemed to be thinking, "if I can't win, nobody wins." At least, he took the twelfth jump on the outside and then ran in front of Lei. Jockey McGovern, on that horse, was forced to pull up to save a crash and while he was losing lengths in bunches, Axacan and Jockey Haley suddenly found themselves in front.

Recovers Too Late.

Lei regained stride and set sail for Axacan, but it was too late then. The riderless Occoquan was winning the race, but the pay-off was due on Axacan. Greg Ormont, Victory Flag, Lightning Rock and Atha finished far back, and any one of them was a possible winner during the late stages.

Only $46 was played on Axacan to win, while his backing place and show was $20 and 39. Two $5 tickets, 17 $2 tickets and 4 across-the-board combination tickets were sold on the winner.

Had it not been for the sensational steeplechase, the sixth race, booked as the Stoneleigh, would have been the feature. Mantagna,

Colorless Liquid in Jar Is Fatal to 2; 3 More Ill

Indianapolis, Nov. 12 (AP).—Drinks from a jug of colorless liquid found in an untenanted house by a plumber caused the death today of two persons and the critical illness of three others. Police said all had drunk from the jug.

The ill are Mrs. Stevens' sister, Miss Pauline Lyell, 24; Homer Williams, 52, and his son, Melville Williams, 24.

W. F. Reimer, deputy coroner, said the liquid apparently was a paint remover with some alcoholic content.

Censorship Order Indicates Japan Will Wage China War

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Nov. 12.—Police forbade newspapers today to publish anything concerning military forces "which may be sent to China," except in official communiques, indicating the possibility of armed pressure in the deepening Sino-Japanese crisis.

A foreign office spokesman said, however, Japan contemplated no military action at Shanghai because of anti-Japanese incidents for the present.

The foreign office spokesman said Tokyo might have to warn Nanking sternly against the incidents, but expressed hope they would be settled locally at Shanghai.

At Shanghai the Japanese press printed reports that a Japanese school girl had been stoned by a Chinese youth. Meanwhile, the Japanese consul general protested against smashing of the window of a Japanese-owned store, and again called the attention of the mayor of greater Shanghai, Gen. Wu Teh-Chen, to the killing of a Japanese marine Saturday.

A spokesman for the Nanking government claimed the window-breaking was "a deliberate attempt to embarrass the proceedings of the Kuomintang." The Kuomintang is the Chinese Nationalist Party, whose fifth congress opened at Nanking today, under the protection of large forces of gendarmes who planned to prevent any attempts on the lives of government leaders, like the recent effort to assassinate Premier Wang Ching-Wei.

Hauptmann's Appeal Handed Highest Court

Petition Holds Trial Was 'Unfair' and a 'Circus Maximus.'

By Robert C. Albright.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, condemned to die in a New Jersey electric chair for the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindberg, jr., complained to the Supreme Court yesterday that his trial was a "circus maximus" and asked that his conviction be set aside.

The former Bronx carpenter's own scrawling signature was attached to the petition filed with the court by his counsel, Egbert Rosecrans. A simple order by the court, on December 9, 16, or 23, granting or denying his appeal, may or may not seal his fate.

In his petition for review, Hauptmann charged State Attorney General David T. Wilentz "bullied" him and made "unfair" statements. The State was alleged to have offered conflicting theories of Baby Lindbergh's death. And Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, in his charge to the jury, was accused of expressing "manifest approval of the State's theories and witnesses."

The attendance of the baby's famous father at the trial was questioned in the brief.

"The daily presence of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at the trial," read the petition, "unduly influenced the jury to regard him as the real prosecutor and constantly presented to the jury the picture of a bereaved father for whose sor-

'Break' Is Coming, Says Lieut. Itzel

Admits Woman May Be Involved; Case Shifted to Upper Marlboro.

Corinna Loring, the "quiet" girl of Mount Rainier, who was murdered the night of November 4 while preparing for her wedding, will be buried today.

Once the funeral is over, investigators plan to drive forward to a solution of the brutal killing, which by this time has the little Maryland town in a furor.

On the surface, the investigation yesterday was back where it had started. The two men under arrest—Corinna's fiance and a former suitor—were released from the Hyattsville jail.

Now nobody is under arrest.

However, Lieut. Joseph H. Itzel, ace Baltimore detective assigned to the case, predicted a "break" in the case was coming.

Solution Is Promised.

"I now feel," Itzel said, "that we will definitely reach a solution of the case. When will that be? I do not know."

Lieut. Itzel said Mrs. George Loring, mother of the girl and the last known person to see her alive, would be questioned with other members of the family after the funeral.

"Do you think a woman was involved," Itzel was asked.

"Possibly," he replied.

Richard Tear, 29-year-old attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital, who was to have married Corinna Wednesday, two days after she disappeared, was the first to be released from jail.

He had been held since Saturday, nine hours after Corinna's body, beaten and strangled, was found on Saddleback Ridge, five blocks from her home.

Aubrey Hampton, 30, clerk in a New Deal agency here, who courted Corinna before she fell in love with Tear, was released later in the day.

Tear, who had whiled away the time in jail reading detective stories, told reporters:

"I am going to get the murderer of my girl. The police have bungled this case from the start. First, they wouldn't help me search for her. Then they put me in jail, so that I couldn't help get the murderer."

Mrs. Loring Visits Friend.

Mrs. Loring, who collapsed when her daughter's body was found and who has been so nervous since that detectives have refrained from talking to her, left her Beech street bungalow yesterday to visit a friend.

With her husband and son-in-law, Leo Lojocona, Mrs. Loring motored to the home of Dr. R. E. Green, a dentist, living at 3700 Bunker Hill road in Mount Rainier.

Photographers asked Mr. Loring if his wife would pose for a picture. He replied that she thought it would be "vulgar."

He added:

"I would like to have her pose, but her word is law. I have to do as I am told or there will be trouble."

Lieut. Itzell announced late yesterday that henceforth the headquarters of the Loring murder inquiry would be at Upper Marlboro, the county seat, which is about 15 miles from Mount Rainier.

Fifty persons will be summoned there for questioning, he said.

No explanation was given for shifting the scene, but it was presumed that Itzell wanted to get away from the excitement that has seized Mount Rainier and its environs since Corinna's body was found.

Thousands View Body.

The scene yesterday at Gasch's undertaking parlor in Hyattsville, where Corinna's body, robed in a wedding gown, awaits the funeral, gave evidence of the tremendous interest the case has aroused.

A thousand or more persons, men, women and children, filed by the casket and peered at the face of the popular choir singer.

Hundreds of others tramped over Saddleback ridge, viewing the spot amid the scrub pines where the body was found.

The murder is the prime topic of conversation, and for the moment amateur detectives abound in the town. All of them feel sure

Truck Crushes Baby to Death; Toll Is Now 97

His mother was busy at her desk. His father was talking to a customer. So little David Rosenberg, 21-months-old, toddled from the family tire and auto supply store at 4130 Georgia avenue northwest yesterday.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Ann Rosenberg looked up from her work and noticed that her tiny son was missing. She hurried into the street to call him. A crowd had gathered at the corner. Some distance away, in the emergency room at Garfield Hospital, a nurse was writing in her record book:

"Baby boy . . . dead on arrival . . . traffic accident."

The "baby boy" was David.

Mother Collapses.

Back on Georgia avenue, the crowd stepped back as Mrs. Rosenberg, sobbing and hysterical, ran from bystander to neighbor.

"Where is my baby? Where is he —please tell me," she cried.

Someone told her. She collapsed and was assisted to her home. Julius Rosenberg, the father, informed of what had happened, ran from his store. With shaking hand, he attempted to unlock the door of his car. A policeman tried to restrain him.

"Let me go—let me go! I must see him!" Rosenberg screamed.

"To construct a water hole on a fox farm at Everett, Mass., the taxpayer will have to dig up $1,341."

One section of the booklet is entitled "Entertainment." It points out that the Federal theater project will cost $3,000,000.

"In Chicago alone this attempt to amuse will most the WPA $723,853," the committee said. "In the latter part of October, 1935, four troups of unemployed vaudeville performers—jugglers, comedians, acrobats, dancers, monologists and masters of ceremonies—started rehearsals for programs that were to be given to the public in parks of the city for only two months. Mr. Roosevelt's free drama will range from marionette shows to Hamlet, and for this fine display of wasting nearly a million dollars, the Government project will give employment to only 95 persons, of whom 58 will be performers."

As to Cows.

Under the heading, "Cow's Love Life," the committee said:

"Our energetic New Dealers, at the expense of the taxpayer, have delved at some length, and at an appreciable cost, into the love life of the cow. No little space is devoted to this engaging study in the first part of a report on the milk industry, prepared under the direction of Dr. Walton Hale Hamilton, of Yale, Amherst, the Universities of Texas and Michigan, and the Robert Brookings Graduate School of Economics and Government.

MILITARY expansion is the traditional means by which a nation seeks to broaden its economic base.

For economic reasons, Italy wants more territory. So Mussolini calls out his army and goes into Ethiopia to get it. Japan needs markets for her manufacturers and sources of raw material. So into neighboring China she cuts an imperialistic path with the sword.

The United States also is trying to broaden its ecenomic base. We greatly need additional export markets. So, like Italy and Japan, we naturally look around for neighbors which offer possibilities. There is Canada at our doorstep.

But instead of calling upon the army general staff to undertake the job, we invite Canada to send trade experts to Washington. They sit down with trade experts of the United States Government. We offer, let us say, to take in some of Canada's milk and cream. Canada offers to take in more of our automobiles. Eventually a long list of commodities is developed which can be exchanged between the two countries to what all hope will be their mutual advantage. Prime Minister Mackenzie King comes to Washington and the deal is closed with President Roosevelt. They have attempted to strike a bargain which will benefit both sides, which is the kind of a bargain most likely to stand up.

Reciprocal trade agreements are not as romantic as airplane bombing expeditions, but we are trying to find out if they are not better in the long run.

Because they are less romantic, reciprocal trade agreements may be harder to put over. The human race is so constituted that a dictator or an emporer or even a President can draft soldiers and send them out with tanks and machine guns to open up a hole through which trade can expand. Thousands will gladly die in such an enterprise. Millions at home will cheer the fighters on and shoot the first countryman who raises a voice in protest. A whole nation will risk ruin, even annihilation, to fight for trade.

But try to bargain for trade and what happens? Men who would go out and die to get a new customer for a sewing machine manufacturer, or to make good a foreign loan of a New York banking house, will scream with terror at the first thought of a reciprocal trade agreement which might some time pinch one toe. It is the safest bet you can make that the moment the terms of the Canadian trade agreement are announced, there will be howls of anguish from the patriotic citizens in both countries, who might lose, not the lives of their sons or brothers, but a fraction of their profits. Already enough is surmised about the Canadian agreement to make reasonably certain that self-appointed spokesmen of the dairy farmers in the northern United States will be wringing their hands all over Washington shortly.

In fact we have an instance just now of that very thing with respect to the Cuban reciprocity agreement recently concluded.

One George S. Fletcher, of Florida, president of the Florida Agricultural Tariff Association, has begun a fight against the whole structure of reciprocity agreements. His object is to have them wrecked on constitutional grounds by the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Fletcher has gone about his task with ingenuity. The Cuban agreement provides for reductions of duties on imports of fruits and vegetables from Cuba at certain times of the year. An effort was made to dovetail these low-duty periods with off-season production of the same fruits and vegetables in the United States. However, the pineapple duty was cut 50 per cent on a year-around basis.

Mr. Fletcher imported a shipment of Cuban pineapples. When it arrived at the New York customs house Mr. Fletcher insisted upon paying the old rate, 40 cents a crate. The collector of customs said that under the Cuban trade agreement the duty was only 20 cents a crate and he refused to accept more. Whereupon Mr. Fletcher announced that he would go into court to try to compel the customs collector to accept 40 cents a crate. He hopes to force the case to the United States Supreme Court and win a decision that the President has no authority to cut import duties.

This, he says, would "put an end to all negotiations for future reciprocal trade agreements."

Mr. Fletcher is entirely within his constitutional rights, which is an illustration of why it is so much easier to go after trade with a sword than by bargaining around a table in the new American way.

It comes second-hand from Hyde Park and may be apocryphal, but the story is that one evening, when President Roosevelt was sitting in the library of his Hyde Park home, one of his sons, just home from Harvard, burst into the room. He was wearing a bright red necktie and equally bright red socks. Father Roosevelt looked at the red necktie and then at the socks, and back again at the necktie, and remarked, "You look like a damned fool."

A few minutes later Mrs. Roosevelt entered the room, greeted her returned son, and, after looking him over, proudly exclaimed, "You're getting to look more like your father every day!"

Study Makers Of Oil Burners, Owner Warned

Character of Manufacturer Held Most Important Purchase Factor.

Because of the nature of oil-burner cnstruction most home owners cannot be expected to depend on their own judgment as to the mechanical features. The most important consideration is not the detail of the burner but the character, integrity and permanence of the firms who manufacture the units, as well as the firm making the installation. Should either of these go out of business the owner may meet difficulties in getting adjustments and service.

It will be helpful if the home owner obtains the names of customers of the local representative and inquires among them as to the operation of the furnace, as well as the type of service which the local representative offers. After determining the make of the burner, the owner should determine the size which should be used to provide the required heat for the type of heating equipment and the amount of radiation required for his home. These burners vary in size according to the amount of heat that they will develop, and are so rated by their manufacturers.

The cost of the installation will be influenced by the size of the outdoor buried tank that is installed. Where oil distribution is not well established a larger tank will be necessary. In most areas a tank holding approximately a month's supply will be sufficiently large.

The gun type and rotary type, or variations of these, are the standard types. In all of the leading models a given quantity of oil will be converted into about the same amount of heat.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters examines all makes of oil burners and announces the names of those that pass its tests and have its approval. This board also makes a statement concerning the heaviest and least expensive grade of oil that the burner will consume with safety.

Stained, Drab Stucco Should Be Painted Now

If the stucco on your house has become stained and drab, apply a good grade of paint. It is advisable to do this before winter, for if any small cracks have appeared they can be repaired and will not be noticed if the whole surface is painted.

Expensive Paint Often Gives Low Annual Cost

When selecting materials for painting the exterior of a home, it is wise to figure the annual cost of paint protection, rather than the total cost of the work. A house-painting job costs $200 and lasts four years, means an average cost of $50 annually. Should the paint last only half that time, the annual charge would be $100. The better the paint, the longer the intervals between painting, and, of course, the lower the annual cost.

'Saving Surface' Is Held Major Aim in Painting

Both men and women come naturally by their liking for painting, according to Miss Elaine Swenson, chairman of the language research committee of Columbia University. "Primitive man painted to make himself fearsome; modern woman paints to make herself winsome," she said. Neither, so far as history records, were intent upon "saving the surface" and the expression "saving the face" is of no such origin.

Bright Colors Improve Appearance of Closets

Neat and colorful closets have become so important that some interior decorators specialize in them. For dark closets, glossy white paint is recommended, but if the interior is artificially lighted, bright colors can be used for the walls and shelves. The inside of the door can be made interesting with a gay coat of paint that harmonizes or contrasts with the room itself.

Bloody Defeat Of Foe Claimed By Ethiopians of soldiers and pispersing the enemy in disorder.

Ethiopians suffered eight killed and the Itailans many more, it was stated, and "the conduct of the Ethiopian troops was beyond all praise."

Major Battle Impends.

Ethiopia, an authority said, expects the first major battle of the war to be fought within a few days.

It will take place, this source predicted, on the northern front south of Fascist-occupied Makale. Unseasonable rains, however, may delay the engagement indefinitely.

Ethiopia's northern forces are dropping back with large armies seeking to join with better-equipped troops from Addis Ababa. Another ward into mountain peaks, where object is to draw the Italians southcontact with the rear can be maintained only with the greatest difficulty.

Large forces from Addis Ababa started five weeks ago to join the northern armies of Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa, but their progress is necessarily slow. They now are at least five days' journey from the Tigrean army, it was estimated.

Still Hold Heights.

Ethiopian reprots said only a small group of Italians had reached the Makale area and that Haile Selassie's warriors had not yet been dislodged from mountain heights.

An associate of the emperor said heavy Ethiopian casualties were likely when the main armies clash, "because we are afraid we cannot keep our northren fighters from throwing themselves with fanatical zeal upon the Italians."

But, he asserted, "you may rest assured the Italian losses will be heavy too."

Reports to the emperor said Italian air raids were proving less effective daily because natives no longer feared the planes and had learned to scatter for cover.

Single Color Scheme Lends Spaciousness

To create the apperance of spaciousness in a room, paint the doors and woodwork the same color as the walls. A room with a low ceiling may be made to seem higher by bringing the ceiling color down the wall to the cornice. To make a ceiling seem lower, paint it the same color as the walls or even darker.

Special Paints Help Convert Your Cellar

Many householders add a room to their home by converting the cellar into a game or tap room. Special paints can be bought which will render brick or cement walls damp proof. No paint is entirely satisfactory for a leaky cellar floor, but for a dry one there are cement floor paints which provide a smooth and colorful surface.

Green Cement Paint Lends Attractiveness

Cement pavements have been converted into attractive imitation grass plots by painting them green. Often the space between sidewalk and curb in suburban district where real grass would be constantly tramped on is so treated. Special paint for covering cement now comes in green as well as many other hues.

Enamel Is Varnish.

Enamel is really varnish to which color, in the form of pigment, has been added. The resulting finish may have a high luster or none at all, depending upon the ingredients. In either case it is durable, waterproof and easy to keep clean.

Floor Cracks Result From Damp Lumber

A wood floor that develops cracks and irregularities after laying is unsightly, catches dust and dirt, and creaks underfoot.

As a rule, cracks in a new wood floor do not appear until several months after the house is occupied, at which time it would hardly be practical to take the floor up and relay it. The home owner should, therefore, familiarize himself with the simple safeguards which can be taken to prevent cracks.

The cracks that develop within a few weeks or months in a new well-laid floor are the result of a change in the moisture content within the wood itself. Care should be taken before using the flooring not to subject the flooring to conditions that will allow it to absorb moisture.

Boards that have considerable crook in them and that must be driven into place with considerable pressure will leave cracks in the floor sooner or later.

To prevent floor cracks check the following factors: Be sure that the lumber dealer has properly protected the stock while it has been in his hands. Do not allow it to be delivered on a damp or rainy day, and be sure that it is kept dry after delivery.

Make sure that the plaster or masonry walls are dry before the flooring is delivered. Eliminate all badly crooked boards or use them in inconspicuous places. Maintain heat in the house from the time the flooring is delivered until finished by the painter. Be sure that a sufficient number of nails are used.

It is advantageous to the home owner to insist that the preceding protections be carefully followed.

Loosen Credit, Roosevelt Plea To Bank Heads

Bank here, told of "renewed confidence" in the banking structure, and added:

"When we contemplate the extent to which governmental activities have been expanded, we realize that a herculean task confronts the Administration in reversing its policies and reducing the number now carried on Federal pay rolls.

"Unless we take up the battle for free play of private enterprise and individual initiative in an energetic and effective fashion, those who want to transfer still greater powers to the Government and ultimately bring about socialization of all business and credit may gain the upper hand.

Typhoon Fear Spurs Efforts To Rescue 51

casion. They were barely able to get back to their ships. It was feared the typhoon, although still far away, might make the rescue more difficult in the event of any considerable delay.

The three rescued sailors reported their marooned companions had been without food and water for two days, but agents of the ship said this had not been confirmed.

Planes Ordered Out.

Maj. Gen. Frank Palmer, United States Army commander in the Philippines, agreed to dispatch two bombing planes to the scene in San Bernardino strait at daylight tomorrow. They will drop supplies and survey the situation.

The destroyer Bulmer, carrying special life-saving equipment, raced to assist the Peary and other rescue vessels.

Treacherous currents and pounding waves prevented their approaching closer than 1,500 yards to the rock, which is about 1,000 yards from a lighthouse on the tip o fLuzon Island.

Other ships standing by with the Peary were the Governor Taft, interisland motor vessel; the tug Trabajador, the freighter, Tana, and the Norwegian tanker, Vivi.

Chicago Maru in Manila.

The Japanese freighter Chicago Maru, badly damaged in rescue attempts, limped into Manila at 11 p. m. last night. Capt. Kenkichi Mori said that he believed only powerful motorboats could effect a rescue.

A. G. Henderson, agent for the Silverhazel's owners here, said he questioned the report that the shipwrecked group was without food and water. He pointed out supplies should be available on the part of the ship still held on the rocks.

The typhoon was reported by the Weather Bureau to be forming near the Island of Pap, 1,200 miles east of the wreck. It was not believed that it would reach the Philippine coast for at least two days.

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 12 (AP).—The British freighter Polo today reported it had rescued 111 persons aboard the Turkish steamer Inebolu, which sank last night in Smyrna harbor. Incomplete reports said 90 of the 200 abord, passengers and crew, were missing or drowned.

Suitors Freed, Corinna Loring Funeral Today

they know how Corinna was killed and who killed her.

One of the few who withholds an opinion is the man on whom the authorities are depneding to solve the mystery—Detective Lieut. Itzel.

Itzel said he felt the case would be solved, but added:

"Things are moving slowly."

"Has any motive been established?" he was asked.

"No."

"Has the robbery motive been eliminated?"

"It has not."

"Have you gone into the insurance angle?" (Corinna was insured for $4,500).

"We have not."

"Is there any other motive?"

"All motives still exist."

Yesterday morning Lieut. Itzel and other investigators went to Saddleback Ridge. With them went Ed Fletcher and George James, natives of Mount Rainier. It was Fletcher who, while out with his rabbit dogs Saturday, discovered the body.

James had his beagle hounds on the ridge Friday, and because they were not aroused, he feels the body was not placed there until Saturday, five days after the murder is believed to have been committed.

This question—whether Corinna was killed on the ridge or killed elsewhere and dumped there after several days—has the unofficial investigators in a ferment.

Those who believe the body was held some place—a cellar, for example—and then taken to the ridge make these arguments in favor of their theory: James' beagle hounds were not attracted to the spot when they passed there Friday; buzzards were not attracted; it rained between Monday and Saturday and there was no mud on the girl's face.

The other school counters with these arguments: When Fletcher found the body Saturday he did it without the aid of his rabbit hounds. The animals ran past the body without stopping, but Fletcher saw the girl's slippered feet protruding from the grass and halted.

And then this question is asked:

If Corinna was killed in a house and her body secreted in a cellar for several days, why was the overcoat on her body when found?

Censor Edicts Hints Of Japanese War

Japanese officer who arrived there today, brought a plan for making north China autonomous. He was expected to confer during the week with various Chinese leaders.

At Teintsin, Japanese newspapers stated Chinese circles originated the report that abolition of the Peiping military council, headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, will come within a few days.

Tientsin observers saw a speeding up of north China's financial separation from Nanking, in the actions of bakers and government officials —with the approval of Japanese military authorities— who are taking steps to prevent drainage of north China's silver reserves because of the program for nationalization of silver instituted by the national government at Nanking.

Boiler Insulation Pays for Itself

Scientific studies have shown that insulation of industrial boilers, furnaces, and hot-water pipes pays for itself several times over wihtin a year's time.

In industrial plants it has been found that fuel costs make up a large portion of the overhead. If heat loss through heating plant surfaces can be reduced, fuel will be saved.

The same can be accomplished in the heating systems of most homes. Application of an insulating material will prevent the escape of warmth. Hot water and steam pipes should also be insulated if a heating system is to operate at maximum efficiency.

'Sealer' Means Coating To Fill Surface Pores

The term "sealer," used in connection with painting, refers to a coating formulated to fill the pores of unduly absorbent surfaces, in preparation for painting. By preventing the absorption of oil from the paint they not only reduce the number of coats required, but insure a more uniform appearing and stronger film.

Slum Clearance Halted By Indianapolis Strike

Indianapolis, Nov. 12 (AP).—A strike of union laborers halted work on a $2,000,000 slum clearance project here today. Officials of the Marion County Building Trades Association said union workmen were ordered off the project in protest against wages paid truck drivers and hod carriers. The wages, officials declared, are lower than those prescribed by the Works Progress Administration.

WPA authorities said the dispute is between the laborers and the contractor, since WPA scales are fixed by Federal regulations.

Truck Crushes Baby to Death; Toll Is Now 97

3 Hurt as Auto Runs Into Viaduct; Two Drivers Exonerated.

ton's mounting traffic toll was written. Little David, barely able to walk, had tottered down the sidewalk and onto a lot at the corner. A heavy truck was backing to a loading platform. The child was struck. A rear wheel crushed his head.

Several Injurid.

The truck driver, Edgar Moore, colored, told police he didn't see the baby. Witnesses said David ran directly into the backing truck's path.

The accident brought Washington's traffic death list to 97 for the year. Meanwhile several other persons were injured in mishaps on District streets yesterday.

Two women and a man suffered injuries when their automobile crashed into a viaduct at Third street and Florida avenue northeast. They were treated at Castualty Hospital for lacerations and bruises, and gave names of Thelma Larribee, 30; Betty Ellington, 30, both of the Houston Hotel, and Marshall Green, 23, 2035 Bladensburg road northeast.

Joseph Passagno, 74, of Relay, Md., was struck by a truck while crossing Seventh street between C and D streets northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for a possible fractured skull. Robert Morton, colored, driver of the truck, was charged with operating a machine with bad hand brakes.

Cleared of Blame.

At coroner's inquests yesterday, a motoroist and a street car motorman were exonerated of blame in recent traffic deaths.

It was testified that Judson Lyons, colored, 30, 1833 S street northwest, who died Sunday, either "walked or dived" into the path of a street car operated by Philip S. Johnson, 1919 Benning place northeast, on November 1.

A second verdict cleared Joseph Brodsky, 24, 1275 Holbrook terrace northwest, a taxi driver. His taxi struck Franklin J. Henry, 70, 222 Eighth street southeast, at Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast August 10. Henry died last week. It was testified he was crossing the street against a red light.

Pads Under Joists Will Deaden Sound

This Method Also Includes Floating Floors.

One way to deaden the sounds within a house is to place pads of insulating material at all points where construction members come together; for example, a pad under each stud or under floor joists where they rest on their supports.

Then the floors should be floated. A floated floor is built thus: Over the joists a pad of sound-deadening material is placed and nailed. Then furring strips are placed over each beam and nailed at about 24-inch intervals. A second pad may be put on, or the finish floor may be placed directly over the strips.

Deadening under the laths of the ceiling will also help.

One method to deaden partitions is to stagger the studs so that there is no direct connection between the walls of the two rooms. Sound-deadening material should then be woven between the backs of the studs.

'Prince Mike' Happy as Boss Of Broker's Estate in Virginia

Aloof From Society, He Says He 'Wanted to Get Away From It All.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 12.—"Prince Michael Romanoff," far from his Broadway, came to town yesterday on one of his frequent visits from Powhatan, the Prince George County estate 25 miles from Fredericksburg that he is managing for a New York broker, to say he wasn't "news any more."

The "Prince" is engaged with his farm duties and writing a bit on the side. He said he was happy with his Virginia job.

Sooner or later, "Prince Mike" said, he knew his identity would become known. "I wanted to get away from it all," he said. And that's the reason he gave for adopting the name "Prof. John William Adams" when he came to Virginia early lats summer to manage the Virginia estate purchased by John W. Walters, of New York, from the Tayloe family.

Taught History at Yale.

"I am a professor, you know," he said in explaining the 'professor.' "I taught history at Yale," he continued, "until I lost my job." Friends of "Prince Mike" say he is preparing a volume on philosophy. The "Prince" denied that he was born in Hillsboro, Mass. He did not say where he was born, but said if he could rightly claim this country as his birthplace he would be glad to become an American citizen. The United States immigration authorities once described him as a Russian, born in Vilna in 1890.

He also disclaimed the name of "Harry Gerguson." He did not say he had any name except Prince Michael Romanoff, but blamed newspaper files for the continual publication of his name as "Gerguson."

Aloof From Society.

Since "Prince Mike" came to King George he has never cultivated local society. There is too much to do at the "house up on the hill," he explained.

As far as the people of King George are concerned, "Prince Mike" mya live the rest of his days in the county, and in perfect peace. Even though his identity has become known, he can forget the past if he wants to for the people of the community say they will not harrow him for tales of his experiences, but will accept him as a neighbor and friend. And that's what the "Prince" wants to be.

Ease in Selling 23 Mortgages Is Described

Example of Liquidity of Loans Provided by U. S., Says Expert.

Newark, N. J.—The ease and facility with which 23 insured mortgages were recently sold to the National Life Insurance Co. of Montpelier, Vt., is a graphic example of the "fundamental liquidity afforded these loans by the underlying Government sponsorship and supervision," according to Harry Van Hook, cashier of the Prospect Park (N. J.) National Bank.

Commenting on the sale of 23 insured mortgages sold to the insurance company without recourse on a 4½ per cent basis, Elbert S. Brigham, vice president and chairman of the committee on finance of the insurance company, stated:

"We consider these, on the basis of information submitted, a very choice group of loans, and we are glad ao know that you will furnish us $50,000 per month additional in the future."

Harry Van Hook, cashier, then stated:

"Such a statement from an experienced and conservative life-insurance company mortgage lender is, indeed, a tribute to the Federal Housing Administration's plan of mortgage financing. The ease and facility with which this transaction was concluded is a convincing demonstration of the fundamental liquidity afforded these loans by the underlying Government sponsorship and supervision.

"Moreover the margin of 1 per cent remaining with the bank is certainly not an unwelcome addition to income in these days of reduced bank earnings. Of course, this 1 per cent is not all velvet, as the cost of servicing should be considered, but we are confident that at least enough income will result to absorb the total cost of handling all loans insured under the provisions of the National Housing Act including those in our own portfolio. Considering then, that the whole return from our insured mortgages and modernization loans will be practically all net income, we have an average return of over 7 per cent on loans with an average maturity of 5 years which is mighty sweet compared to the present yield of 1½ per cent on 5-year Government bonds to which these loans could be likened."

Home Looted, Boy Held.

Helen G. Reilly, 1747 Q street northwest, reported to police her apartment was ransacked and clothing, antiques and household supplies valued at $405 stolen. Police later arrested a 14-year-old colored youth and recovered the property.

Hauptmann's Appeal Handed Highest Court

row the world demanded a sacrifice."

Associated Press dispatches from Trenton, N. J., reported Hauptmann in conference with his spiritual adviser, the Rev. D. G. Werner, as his appeal went to the Supreme Court.

"I trust in God and justice," were the words brought by the Rev. Mr. Werner from the condemned man's cell.

Jersey Denied Appeal.

In his petition to the Supreme Court Hauptmann charged his trial made a "mockery of justice."

The former German machine gunner had vainly appealed his case to New Jersey's Court of Errors and Appeals before he sent his petition to the Supreme Court.

The 13 members of New Jersey's highest court had rejected his appeal from the verdict of 12 lower-court jurors.

The Supreme Court appeal was his next and possibly last court move in his battle for life. When Rosecrans personally delivered the petition here, is was indicated the State of New Jersey may accept service on Friday. After that, the State has 20 days to prepare an answer before the Supreme Court can rule.

Cites Court Outbursts.

The petition charged Hauptman's constitutional rights were contravened on nine points, including alleged "biased and exaggerated newspaper reports and stories," which "unduly inflamed the members of the jury panel" against him, and "the hysterical mob spirit with which the jury was surrounded during the entire conduct of the trial."

The brief also pointed to the "repeated outbursts in the courtroom during the trial," claiming these, as well as the atmosphere of a "circus" in the courtroom, and the attorney general's 'inflamatory summation," deprived the jury 'of its calm judgment and reason," and influenced its decision.

Paint Saves Billions.

According to "The Economics of Paint," a pamphlet by Dr. H. A. Gardner, the conservation of property by paint and varnish reaches the astounding sum of approximately $3,500,000,000 annually.

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You Are Taking for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is Safe is Your Doctor... Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Lieut. Marple's Funeral Today At Fort Myer

Navy Flier Killed in Bay Crash Will Be Buried in Arlington.

Funeral services for Lieut. Mathias M. Marple, jr., U. S. N., will be held at 9:30 a. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel. Lieut. Commander Joseph H. Brooks, Chaplin Corps of the Navy, will officiate. Burial with full military honors will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

The honorary pallbearers will be Lieut. Commanders O. B. Hardison, M. F. Schoeffel and H. F. Fick and Lieutenants B. L. Brown, P. C. Treadwell and T. J. Hedding.

Lieut. Marple's body was recovered Tuesday in the vinicinty of Annapolis Channel. He had been killed October 30 when the plane he was flying to Dahlgren, Va., from Dover, Del., dived into the water and sank.

Lieut. Marple was born in New Brighton, Staten Island in 1899. He went to Annapolis in 1919 and was commissioned an ensign in 1923. After duty at sea he was ordered to the Naval Air Station at Pensacola for flight instruction.

Last June he reported for duty at Dahlgren after having served with the aircraft squadrons of the fleet. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Pierpont Marple, of Pensacola, Fla.

Boom Is Reported In Lumber Yards

Plenty of Work Available in North Dakota Area.

Watford City, N. Dak.—John Ostrom, manager of the Mid-West Lumber Yard here, has found it impossible to take a vacation because of the volume of business generated during recent months in this area, which suffered severely during the drought.

Every available man in this section who can swing a hammer and wield a shovel is busy.

Meeting Opens Here Monday; Program Includes White House Visit.

Three members of the President's Cabinet, Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, and Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, will be among the speakers at the annual meeting of the United States Conference of Mayors at the Mayflower Hotel next week.

The Cabinet members on the program are Secretary of Treasury Henry Morganthau, jr., Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Hopkins will speak on "Looking Ahead at Relief," and Senator Wagner will talk on "A National Housing Program."

The municipal executives will be received at the White House Tuesday.

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, is president of the conference and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, of New York, is vice president.

Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of District Commissioners will welcome the mayors at the morning session on Monday. The presiding officer will be Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans.

Among the subjects to be discussed during the three-day meeting are "Public Safety," "Social Security and Relief," and "Problems of Finance."

Professor Is Honored By Journalistic Group

Dr. Reuben Steinmyer, of 735 Butternut street northwest, professor of political science at the University of Maryland, accepted honorary membership in Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalistic fraternity, at a dinner in the Terrapin Inn on the Maryland campus last night. Dr. Steinmyer was offered the bid in appreciation of the aid he has given the University student publications during the last year.

On The Air Today

FOR even a veteran of the music world, Mme. Schumann-Heink, at 74, is apparently increasingly active in the current entertainment season. Close on the heels of a film debut in "Here's to Romance," the Nino Martini film, has come a number of radio appearances. In the most recent—tonight at 8:30—the beloved singer of two generations of opera is guest artist in Gertrude Berg's "House of Glass." She plays herself in tonight's episode, a role to present her as an actress rather than a singer.

The scene will be between Bessie Glass and Mme. Schumann-Heink, in which Bessie seeks advice from the distinguished singer on the question of whether or not a woman can have a career and at the same time take care of her family. And Schumann-Heink draws from her rich experience to provide the answer. From WMAL.

Fred Allen apparently has solved the problem of what to use as amateurs other than vocalists. Tonight it's to be a rooster. (With good luck the rooster probably will perform.) It seems Chatterbox Pete is the property of one William Plitt, a New York State farmer. Pete is the "world's champion crowing rooster" having earned that title, according to his owner, at a crowing contest last summer in New England. Shortly after that, Pete learned to sing! His mike work, however, is limited to three "Town Hall Tonight" auditions. At the first two he got mike fright and refused to utter a note—or a crow. However, on the third trial he did very nicely. If that isn't enough, Allen also presents the welterweight champion (wrestling) of Palestine—Martin Weintraub, a Brooklyn plumber (born in Palestine) who will sing "Oh Promise Me."

Having been out of the city for the last week I have had no opportunity to give mention to the new "voice" from Washington's N. B. C. studios, specifically on the news broadcasts from WMAL. His name is Al Triggs and he comes from Atlanta although he lacks a Southern touch in his voice for the very good reason that he is a native of Wisconsin and went through his radio kindergarten days in the North. For two years before going to Atlanta, Triggs was known to every good citizen of Iowa due to his mike work in Des Moines. He's what I choose to term an announcer with a "he-man" radio personality.

Danny Deever: Damrosch's arrangment included in John Charles Thomas' recital, WMAL, at 9. Also "Old Man River" and "Boots and Saddle."

Accident: Something terrible befalls one of the Barbours, "One Man's Family," WRC, at 8.

Colleen: Miss Moore is guest in "Farm and Home Hour," WMAL, at 12:30.

Lud Gluskin: Presents Gertrude Niesen (first time on air since last spring) on C. B. S. stations (not WJSV), at 10.

Cavalcade: Fay Bainter, guest star in "Cavalcade of America," WJSV, at 8.

Letters are acknowledged herewith from Fred Jones, a patient at the tuberculosis hospital on Upshur street, and Thomas S. Long, of the Strawbridge Home for Boys, thanking "Uncle George" Wasserman and The Post for radio receivers installed by George's Radio Co. free of charge. Also a request for a set at the Christ Child Society Settlement House at 608 Massachusetts avenue northeast. The set will be ready for the latter institution late this week. And here's a word for the patients in the colored ward at the Upshur street hospital: Your set will be ready before the end of the week. "Uncle George" still has sets available, free for worthy institutions. Write or call The Post Radio Editor if you know where one is needed and would be appreciated. J. H. H.

Cummings Honor Guest Of Optimist Club Today

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings will be the guest of honor at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Optimist Club in the Mayflower Hotel today.

The Attorney General will be presented with copies of two resolutions adopted at the seventeenth International Convention of Optimists in St. Louis last June. The first one indorses his fight against crime and the second indorses the system of Ohio juvenile and domestic courts.

Jewish Center Program Includes Three Speakers

A symposium on "Changes in Jewish Social Work" will be presented by three speakers at the Jewish Community Center roundtable discussion tonight.

They are Mrs. Issac B. Simon, supervisor of case work, public assistance division; Maurice Gisgyer, executive director of the Jewish Community Center, and Isidore Hershfield, Washington representative of H. I. A. S.

Curing the 4 P. M. Fag

There's no greater cure for that 4 o'clock fag to an automobile dealer than sales. The Rosen-Rice Motor Co., 1423 Irving Street, northwest, stimulates sales through The Post's Classified Columns.

The other day Rosen-Rice placed a small want-ad in the Classified Columns, advertising a 1935 Chevrolet for $495. A Post reader, Mr. H. B. La Rue, of 1610 D street northeast, bought the car . . . and got a trade-in on his 1929 Chevrolet. Shortly after this deal was completed, another buyer came in and paid cash for the 1929 car which Mr. La Rue had traded in.

Avoid that 4 o'clock sales fag by getting RESULTS the same day you advertise. Just Don't Stake Your Child's Life against a Few Pennies

Don't Try to "Save" by Not Calling a Doctor or Risk Giving Unknown Remedies Without First Getting his Opinion

NOT seeing your doctor, when illness threatens your child, is not economy — it's a mistake upon which life itself often has depended.

By the same token, giving your child unknown remedies—"bargain close-outs" and "just as good" as standard remedies is staking a child's health against a few pennies.

Mothers are becoming more and more conscious of this every day, and acting accordingly . . . accepting no remedy they don't know all about without asking the doctor first.

Do This If Your Child Takes "Milk of Magnesia"

If your child takes "milk of magnesia," ask your doctor, in your interest as well as ours, about Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

He will tell you, we are sure, that doctors, for over 90 years, have said "Phillips" for children. A remedy time has proved SAFE for your child . . . one of the finest products known to modern science; the kind you want your child to have.

Safety for You and Yours

You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children — and in the interest of the public in general.

Any druggist will be glad to give you the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, if you ask for it by name. It now comes in tablet form, as well as liquid. Little, peppermint-tasting tablets that contain the exact equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid — and that children like to take. A large box, only 25¢.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

If you like Sherry you must try the ancient wines of Pedro Domecq, the oldest producer of Sherry wine in the world.

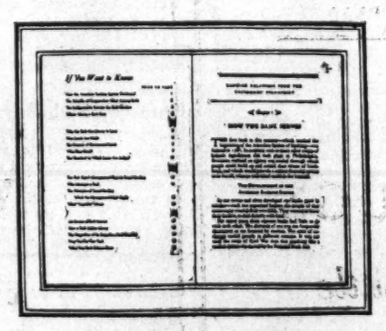
BANKING RELATIONS FROM THE CUSTOMERS' STANDPOINT


A New Handbook explaining How to Use Your Bank PRACTICAL INFORMATION FOR:
Executives
Owners of a business
Members of the Professions
Women with financial responsibilities
Everyone interested in independence and personal progress
EVERYONE should know the place the Bank fills in our business and economic life, but more important, you should know how to fit it into your own plans and to capitalize the help and assistance it makes available to you individually. This book contains information that has a vital bearing on your financial welfare. Unless you understand these matters you can not work with your Bank to the best mutual advantage.
Months of preparation have gone into this handbook to give you facts. You can read it in a few minutes. We shall gladly give or send to you, or to others whom you may suggest, a copy at your request.
CHECK THESE POINTS
to see if you are making the most of this indispensable aid to business success—if you understand what the Bank is for and how to obtain full value from its service.
1. Whose money does a bank use when it makes loans and investments?
2. How do you qualify for and obtain bank credit?
3. Does the bank have money to loan?
4. How are loans made?
5. How should you conduct sound banking relations?
6. What makes the Bank a safe and profitable place for your money?
7. How is the management of the bank selected?
8. How do you profit by banking service?
9. What does your bank account do?
10. What does it cost to carry your account—how do you pay the bank?

FINE, BEAUTIFUL KERMANSHAH RUGS

At Prices So Low They Cost Little More Than Reproductions

Kermanshah rugs are the pride of the Persian weavers—for their intricate designs, fine textures and exquisite color tones represent the art of rug weaving at its finest.

This group of Oriental rugs was individually selected and purchased at such low prices that the prices of one group are very little more than reproductions cost on today's market. But the prices of originals are rising rapidly, and prices of future shipments will probably be much higher.

In this shipment are some of the most beautiful designs and colors we have ever been able to offer. All are individual designs—no two are alike—and you will find a variety of color-tones to fit modern decorative schemes. Pastel tones in warm rose, tan and ivory backgrounds. All sizes are approximate.

Announcing - - the opening of Our

New Beauty Salon

As Vogue says, "You may not think so now, but future historians will says of this age what past ones said of the Periclean: "It made a cult of beauty." And, in opening this New Beauty Salon, that is just what we have done. Planned so luxuriously—decorated so beautifully, that the words Beauty Salon can be taken literally. Just to come into the reception room will rest and charm you. But, in the operating rooms, there is not only beauty, but the most modern equipment available—and in these days of new scientific attainments, that means undreamed of service, cleanliness, comfort, time-saving devices. Extraordinary measures have been taken to insure hygienic conditions. More than the usual quota of spacious, private rooms, so that once you are settled in your comfortable chair, practically every step of the beauty treatment can be done right there.

The exquisite color scheme, luscious wild-rose pink and silver—draperies using a deep maroon band for contrast.

Soft, luminous lighting from indirect, silvery troughs suspended 'way above your head.

Air-conditioning that works just as hard at humidifying and heating the air in Winter, as it will dehumidify it in Summer.

Telephones in the booths for incoming calls.

We could go on and on—but come and see the new salon. For an appointment, telephone District 5300, Beauty Salon, Second Floor.

MRS. WORTH, I'VE COME TO ASK YOUR PRICE FOR WITHDRAWING ALL CLAIMS TO THE ESTATE. DENNIE HAS INHERITED FROM HIS FATHER—WHAT ??
11-13
IT MAY SEEM FOOLISH AT FIRST, BUT CONSIDER THE COST OF FIGHTING THIS THROUGH THE COURTS, AND THEN MAYBE LOSING IT.
CONSIDER IT YOURSELF.
I HAVE, THAT'S WHY I'M HERE. YOU'RE A VERY POOR WOMAN, AND A GOOD SUM OF MONEY RIGHT NOW WOULD MEAN A LOT—
DENNIE'S GOING TO HAVE EVERY CENT OF HIS INHERITANCE, EVEN IF YOU AND THE REST OF YOUR OUTFIT TRY TO DO HIM OUT OF IT.
HERE'S MY CARD. BETTER THINK THIS OVER.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Make Pictures.

Hollywood, Nov. 12.

HARRY RICHMAN, on the set of "Rolling Along," says to Director Victor Schertzinger, "I want to be directed." Richman wants to take instructions and is eager to make good. When he isn't playing in a scene in the flicker he is trying to entertain the members of the troupe. He then acts like a night club master of ceremonies on the set.

March

The scene being shot this morning takes place on a showboat. The Courtney Players, as they are known in the scenario, are enacting a thrilling melodrama in which the villian twirls his mustache, the heroine is pure, and the audience hisses and applauds

Walter Kingsford is the meanie landlord who waves the mortgage before Rochelle Hudson, who is willing to sacrifice the roof for virtue. They play the scene again and again. "Come on," says Director Schertzinger. "Give me some ham acting. If I didn't want it I'd get it. Come on, be hammy."

• • • •

Marlene Dietrich is the hostess actress. On the set of "Desire" she always appears as if she is trying to please. Marlene is serving tea and cake again, and waits on Director Frank Borzage and John Hallidqy. She looks about for Gary Cooper and learns that he is in his dressing room with friends. Miss Dietrich leaves the set and walks to Cooper's dressing room.

"It's the tea," she says. "And you must have some of this cake. I baked it myself, it's something new." Cooper takes the cup of tea. "You must excuse me for not having a saucer," says Dietrich. "I always break the saucers." She hurries back to the set. It seems that Marlene Dietrich merely acts in flickers so she'll be able to serve tea and her baked cake.

FREDDIE Bartholomew is playing croquet with a baseball and a bat for a scene for "Professional Soldier." Victor McLaglen appears to be amused by Freddie, and stands by to watch him.

"Are you ready, Old Man Bartholomew?" asks Director Tay Garnett. Freddie giggles and then answers: "Yes." He plays the scene. Then Director Garnett begins to arrange a new set-up. While he is doing this, Freddie and McLaglen begin to play McLaglen trys to teach Freddie how to make a real swing at a baseball with a bat. Soon Director Garnett is ready He has merely moved his camera in for a close-up of Bartholomew and McLaglen. "Don't shoot," says Director Garnett to his cameraman, "until you see the whites of their eyes."

On the set of "The Petrified Forest," the players and the crew wear small dust masks to keep out the dust which is hurled about by the gaint wind machines. It is only during the actual playing of a scene that players take off the masks.

• • • •

James Cagney is waiting about on the set of "Ceiling Zero" for Director Howard Hawks to complete a scene and start the next one, in which Cagney appears. The scene is played over and over.

"Let's do something," suggests Cagney. "How would you like to go on a set—I mean another set—and watch them work?" I ask. "Anything," says Cagney, and we start walking down the sound stage where "Anthony Adverse" is being filmed.

It is the first day of shooting on "Anthony Adverse." Director Mervyn Leroy is rehearsing a scene in which Olivia De Haviland is tossing a pail of water at a number of kids who are bathing in barrels. Then Fredric March appears in the window, wearing a nightgown, and shouts, "Good morning" to Olivia. March looks cute in a nightgown.

• • • •

TO GET the kids to act properly is what concerns Director Leroy most in this sequence. They must appear natural and to be enjoying themselves.

After the take, Director Leroy walks over to chat, and soon the talk is about the different methods of handling kid performers on a set. The story is told of a prominent director who had to film an important scene with children of 4 and 5 years old. After many attempts to get what he wanted, the director gave the children a talk. "Kiddies," he said, "I don't ask the impossible. All I ask is that you act like you are drunk."

When Cagney returned to his set the same scene was still on.

Water Under the Bridge

New York, Nov. 12.

NOV. 11, 1918, on Broadway: James W. Gerard, discovered in the Hippodrome audience that was celebrating its second Armistice within five days, said: "Now that the war has ended, there is a treaty between England and Holland by which the Kaiser can be extradited and tried for murder. We know what the verdict will be. When the hangman drops the trap, he will be doing away with the world's greatest murderer." The former ambassador then led the audience in three cheers for President Wilson. (But the former Kaiser still lives at Doorn; Wilson is dead. Gerard is lecturing and compiling surveys, and a former corporal in the Hohenzollen employ is now Adolf Hitler) . . . Mayor John Hylan, before leaving City Hall for the Armistice celebration uptown, directed his secretary, Grover Whelan, to write protest letters to U. S. Food Administrator Herbert Hoover and Gov. Charles Whitman, because milk was selling at 19 cents a quart in New York. (Hylan is now a judge, Whalen is a possible candidate for the Mayoralty, Hoover intends to make another bid for the Repubican Presidential nomination, Whitman has not figured in the prints in years) . . . The Kaiser was hanged in effigy at the opening of the 33d annual Horse Show at Madison Square Garden. Jorn McEntee Bowman won the blue in the open class. (Mr. Bowman is dead, another Horse Show is in progress, and Madison Square Garden has moved from Madison Square) . . . Times Square was jammed with hilarious crowds of celebrants, and hawkers were selling hatbands worded: "I'm going to the Kaiser's funeral." A dachshund, with a German flag attached to its tail, excited laughs. The casualty lists in the morning papers carried names of 351 killed in action, 42 dead of wounds, 319 dead of disease. President Wilson notified Provost Marshall General Crowder to cancel all draft calls. As war ended there were 3,764,677 Americans under arms, here and abroad.

• • • •

November 12, 1918: American League batting averages, released today, showed Capt. Ty Cobb, in France with the Chemical Warfare Division, had topped his league again with an average of .382. Babe Ruth, Boston Red Sox pitcher, tied for the 1918 home run championship of his league with 11 homers, and tied at 300 in batting with Wally Pipp and Buck Weaver. (Cobb, Ruth and Pipp are all out of baseball. Weaver was to be exiled in the Black Sox scandal the next year) . . . Sunny Jim Coffroth, acting as matchmaker for the United War Campaign bouts at the Garden, announced this all-star bill: Benny Leonard vs. Jack Britton, Joe Jeanette vs. Kid Norfolk, Jim Coffey vs. Clay Turner, Johnny Dundee vs. Joe Welling. (Welling died about 14 months ago. He was New York A. C. boxing inspector) . . . Coach Keene Fitzpatrick sent his Princeton team through its last workout for the war charity grid game at the Polo Grounds against Camp Upton. Capt. Callahan's Tiger eleven included Wittmer, De Stefano, Murray, Opie and Lyons as the ace backs. (Keene is coaching a Lakewood, N. J., prep school. Where are you Princeton and Camp Upton footballers now? Drop me a line) . . . At the Frolic-Gambol of the combined Friars and Lambs, for the war chest, Will Rogers acted as one of the auctioneers. (Rogers is dead) . . . U. S. Railroad Administrator W. G. McAdoo announced that railroads would remain under Federal control for at least six more months. (Senator McAdoo was recently married) . . . Coach Siskind, of Fordham, preparing for the Boston College game, rested up his sensational halfback, Capt. Frank Frisch. (Frisch is manager of the St. Louis Cards and still a great athlete).

November 13, 1918: Opening of the Metropolitan Opera season with "Samson and Dalila" was colorful and impressive. After Caruso, Mme. Homer, Mme. Metzenauer, Mme. Braslau, Geraldine Farrar, Amato and Couzinow had sung the songs of the Allies, Maj. Creighton Webb stood up in Box 22 and shouted: "Three cheers for Belgium, the nation that saved the world." Catholic dignitaries, in New York for Cardinal Gibbons' jubilee, joined in the ovation, as did Gov. and Mrs. Charles Whitman, in Box 16, near Reggie Vanderbilt. (Caruso is dead, Cardinal Gibbons is dead, Mme. Braslau is dying in Mount Sinai Hospital, Reggie Vanderbilt is dead, and his widow, Gloria, is still fighting for possession of their child) . . . Stem theaters offered Al Jolson in "Sinbad," Ed Wynne in "Some Time," Richard Bennett in "The Unknown Purple," Nora Bayes in "Ladies First," John Barrymore in "Redemption," Alice Brady and Conrad Nagel in "Forever After," Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'" at the Gaiety, Louis Mann and Sam Bernard in "Friendly Enemies" at the Hudson, Julia Sanderson and Joe Cawthorne at the Globe in "The Canary," Ruth Chatterton and Henry Miller in "Daddy Long Legs," and David Warfield in "The Auctioneer." Vaudeville stages headlined Bessie Clayton at the Palace, Mary Boland at the Rialto in "A Woman's Experience," and Belle Baker, held over for a second week at Keith's Riverside. (Louis Mann, Sam Bernard, Frank Bacon, Nora Bayes are dead. Mary Boland is the star of "Jubilee," smash hit musical of 1935) . . . Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived at Roosevelt Hospital for sciatic treatment. His left leg was almost paralyzed. (Teddy is dead) . . . Tom Thorp, pinch-hitting for Coach Fred Dawson, prepared Columbia for the Wesleyan game. (Thorp is a famous race track handicapper now) . . . Water under the bridge. Seventeen years of it, from Armistice Day, 1918, to Armistice Day, 1935.

Roosevelt Hears View On World War Economi

By the Associated Press.

A report on the international economic situation was given to President Roosevelt yesterday by Prof. James Harvey Rogers, American member of the economic committee of the League of Nations.

Rogers, who took part in establishment of the new United States monetary system, declined any comment on his talk with the President. He said he had no immediate work in sight with the Government.

Our New Frontier.

Scientific enlightenment expected to flow from the findings of Capts. Stevens and Anderson during their flights to the stratosphere does not explain the widespread interest in their exploit. Technicians will ponder over the balloon's instruments for new data on cosmic rays, meterological conditions and electric currents. But the public sees something more in the flight. It may be that the public is right.

The very word "stratosphere" is new. In dictionaries published only a few years ago it is listed among the words that have just come into usage. Until Prof. Piccard went aloft in 1932 almost nothing was known of the upper reaches of atmosphere. Now this region is in the process of "being conquered." The current exploit grips our imagination, not because of any new scientific information it may bring to light, but because of the infinite possibilities opened by exploration of this new frontier.

In terms of distance the achievement may not be especially significant. These intrepid explorers got only 14 miles away from the earth. The important thing is that they did pierce that seemingly black void into which no human being has ever ventured and which our telescopes only vaguely reveal. That is a beginning. It may lead only to disappointment and destruction for those adventurous souls who will insist upon pushing ever farther into this forbidding region of the unknown. But that will not stop them. Nor will the inability of mankind to utilize the knowledge already in its possession arrest the struggle to untangle the still more baffling mysteries of the stratosphere. For beyond these first petty mileposts now established lies the universe.

Man has never been content with the nook in which he has found himself. There is no reason to suppose that he ever will be. Of course, it is idle to speculate on how far we may be able to push this new frontier outward into space. The one certainty is that man will continue to beat upon this barrier to new worlds. And after all, that may be the most important consideration.

The Salute To Quezon.

A question of prestige, always important in the Far East, has arisen to bedevil the Philippine Islands just as the inauguration ceremonies of the new Commonwealth government are about to begin. Now Secretary Dern has properly decided that President-elect Manuel Quezon shall receive only a 19-gun salute instead of the 21 guns traditionally reserved for heads of sovereign states. The program originally called for 21 guns for Mr. Quezon and 19 for Governor Frank Murphy, who is to become high commissioner. The explanation for the change is that the American flag will fly over the islands for the ten-year transition period to complete independence.

From this side of the world the most important considerations of the inaugural would appear to lie in less symbolic fields. How do the islands and the islanders look at the moment of their take-off into the uncharted seas of world politics? Will they sink or will they swim? It matters not so much how many guns honor the President at the beginning of his term. What counts more is the character of the salutes for President Quezon at the end of what is sure to be an exacting period of office.

Collectors Of History.

There are two ways of preserving the vestiges of a bygone age—one is in museums and the other is in vital restorations of historic landmarks. In the former, the antique is displayed separately and apart and has little more relation to its times than a wax flower under glass. But the truly living memorial is the one in which some effort is made to retain also a certain flavor and atmosphere. That this is best accomplished by leaving the object in its native setting is too often overlooked.

The citizens of Cape Cod are indignant, and rightly so, at the rumor that Henry Ford plans to remove the oldest windmill in America from West Yarmouth to his museum at Dearborn. There is something dreary in the thought of tearing this old vine-covered Dutch mill from a landscape peculiarly fitted to its quaintness and planting it against a skyline of factories and smokestacks. True, the shingled tower of the mill with its four outstretched sails would not be entirely out of place in Mr. Ford's "ancient village," which already contains a sizable amount of Americana. But a windmill is the last thing in the world to be relegated to the realm of "still life." Its raison d'etre is service and when not in action, it looks as forlorn as a ship ashore.

If the 300-year-old windmill is moved to the Ford Museum, it will find itself in distinguished company along with the workshop of Edison and the cottage of Anne Boleyn. It still seems a pity, however, to range it among other transplanted landmarks, where it will inevitably be looked upon as "ye olde mill." How much more appropriate to leave it among the Cape folk, who regard it only as a venerable worker with a long and honorable record of usefulness!

The Italian Protest.

Fear of the future is very apparent in the protest against sanctions delivered by the Italian foreign office to the 40-odd governments which have signified their intention of participating in the League's program of collective action. Until recently Rome was scoffing at the efficacy of the sanctions policy. Now it is officially defined as a very serious matter, for which Italy would like to hold League members to individual accountability.

The Fascist regime has at its crest the bundle of sticks, symbolizing the strength of united action. This gives an ironic note to its obvious attempt to weaken the League program by endeavoring to influence those governments which are at all susceptible to Italian pressure. For none know better than thoughtful Italians that once collective action is broadly and firmly applied, the game is up for Mussolini. Unless the threatened pressure can be averted or greatly weakened, the Fascist economy, in no condition to stand any extraordinary strain, will before long begin to crumble.

Also ironic, as coming from an aggressor which still clings to its League membership, is the Italian request that the states associated at Geneva inform Rome of how they intend "to conduct themselves in view of the restrictive measures proposed against Italy." Perhaps the most comprehensive answer to that request is already available to Rome, in the shape of the Covenant of the League of Nations, to which Italy voluntarily and solemnly adhered. It would have saved the time of the Italian foreign office to have re-read, before sending its current communication, Article 16 of that Covenant, the first paragraph of which says:

> Should any member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenants under Articles 12, 13, or 15, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state and the nationals of any other state, whether a member of the League or not.

In his speech at Arlington on Armistice Day President Roosevelt pointed out that one of the most serious disintegrating influences in modern civilization is the fact that "international confidence in the sacredness of international contracts is on the wane." The Italian government has pointed the moral for him by its essentially arrogant communication. This, in protesting against sanctions, totally ignores the clear-cut treaty violations which made it incumbent upon League members with due respect for their plighted word to invoke those penalties against Italy.

A chief point in the Italian argument is that this is the first time sanctions have been applied. True though that is, it would scarcely be regarded in any court of law as an argument with either moral or legal influence for exculpation. And if the punishment in this case threatens to be condign, it is primarily because the act of aggression was particularly flagrant.

The hope that the present may be the last as well as the first application of sanctions is based on the striking unanimity with which legally prescribed penalties are being made actually operative against a treaty violator. Continuation of the present effective pressure upon Italy is the surest way of securing that respect for voluntary international agreements the decline of which President Roosevelt rightly regards as a danger signal for "the future of mankind as a whole."

Relief And The Sales Tax.

In spite of Administrator Hopkins' dislike for the sales tax, it remains the only type of levy through which State governments have been able to produce appreciable sums for relief purposes. Last year, the records of the FERA show, 12 States raised $32,000,000 to help the unemployed through this form of taxation. That is only a small part of the total expenditures, Federal and local, on relief, but it is substantially more than the States have been able to raise by other taxes.

No State adopted the sales tax because of any special liking for it. Rather these States, facing their problem realistically, have enacted tax laws that will produce results in depression years. Obviously the sales tax is not an equitable source of revenue for general governmental expenses. Equally obviously it serves a useful purpose in times of emergency, when it is the only alternative to human suffering, on the one hand, and extensive borrowing on the other.

The FERA study, showing the source of relief funds contributed by the States during the last five years, clearly emphasizes the choice between the sales tax and further indebtedness. More than 55 per cent of the $533,000,000 appropriated by State governments for unemployment relief has come from long-term bond issues. Obviously that sort of financing cannot continue long, whether employed by the National or State governments. Other sources of revenue having been usurped by the Federal Government or tapped for general expenses, the sales tax becomes, in many cases, the only practical means of supplying local emergency needs.

There are some positive advantages, moreover, in using the sales tax to meet extraordinary needs of a temporary character. A general levy upon the purchase of goods is easily applied and easily abolished when the need for it has passed. While many other levies adopted for a brief period tend to become permanent, the examples of New Jersey and Kentucky indicate that sales taxes are more likely to be repealed before the need for them has expired.

That tendency arises from the fact that the burden of a sales tax is apparent to the public. Everyone is able to determine, with simple calculation, how much he is contributing to the support of the unemployed. With that awareness comes a healthy determination to demand efficiency and economy in relief policies. To that extent the unpopularity of the sales tax may be used as a strong argument in its favor.

On Trial.

As the momentous constitutional issues before the Supreme Court move toward decision each new maneuver is watched with keen interest. Few laymen pretend to understand the intricacies of the legal arguments advanced, or the complete significance of the court's rulings upon issues affecting these cases. But everyone realizes that the future of the New Deal is at stake, and that forthcoming decisions may profoundly influence the destiny of the Nation.

In view of this fact the rational atmosphere in which these grave questions are discussed becomes a tribute to the national temperament. Occasionally outbursts against judicial nullification of legislative acts are heard from people who seem to think that the Supreme Court rules upon the social desirability of the statutes in question. For the most part, however, there is evident willingness to accept the rulings of the court as the authoritative interpretation of the fundamental law. No informed person suspects the court of playing politics or favorites. Regardless of which direction its decisions take, therefore, acquiescence on the part of the people is taken for granted.

This confidence in the court is strengthened by the careful manner in which that tribunal is proceeding. In two separate cases the court has refused to permit individuals who challenge the constitutionality of important acts to "jump" direct from the lower courts to the Supreme Court without having their cases reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Desirable as it may be to secure early decisions, the issues here involved are too vital to the entire country to permit short cuts. Speed is not nearly as important as certainty.

In granting the Department of Justice permission to intervene in the Lee Moor case, involving the Bankhead cotton control act, the court also manifested a desire to hear every aspect of the case from the most capable attorneys. Fortunately, the department is giving far more serious attention to cases of this kind than it did in that period to which the Schechter opinion belongs. Both the choice of that particular case for a test and the manner of its presentation indicated bungling that is not likely to be repeated. It is no reflection upon the Supreme Court to suggest some connection between the manner in which the Administration is handling these current cases and the favorable rulings handed down by the court on Monday.

The significance of these indications that our highest judicial machinery is functioning smoothly in a calm atmosphere can scarcely be overemphasized. For in the deeper sense it is not merely important aspects of the New Deal that are on trial. It is the very basis of our constitutional democracy.

The Rest Is Silence.

Applause is the means by which an audience communicates its approbation to the performer. If used with discrimination, it shows a true appreciation and understanding. Such applause possesses real significance and reflects a thinking audience. But there is "a time of being still" which is an even more eloquent tribute on certain occasions. This sensitiveness to moments of solemnity is one of the attributes that sets man apart from the lower forms of civilization.

In our letter columns today, a correspondent deplores what she terms a lack of "respect for sacred things" in this modern age. Specifically, she refers to the applause which several times marred the Armistice Day services at the Grave of the Unknown Soldier. It is her contention, and she will have many supporters, that the very essence of such a service is in reverent imitation of the silence which that victim of man's inhumanity must forever keep. In the presence of that symbolic figure, applause is meretricious.

Another New Deal Bubble.

From the Boston Transcript.

Two years ago monetary quacks filled the American air with great promise of blessings sure to be had from an increase in the world price of silver.

Today we know the results of this supposedly beneficent policy. China has been driven—just as Mexico was driven many months ago—to suspend her silver standard altogether, and adopt a paper currency basis.

And has all this needless desolation in China been accompanied by any good to the United States? Not a particle. On the contrary, the exports of American goods to China have declined very sharply.

These events are closely in accord with the predictions made by thoroughgoing economists both of the Brookings Institution, for example, and of the United States Department of Commerce itself. The tragedy for China—and it is not less than that—may serve some good purpose if only the American people will take heed of the actual outcome, and grow more wary of the lures and pretended omniscience of pseudo-economists.

Shocking Applause.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that your paper, which enters every home in the District and is even more far-reaching in influence, should make a protest against the shock of interruption by applause of the solemn addresses at that saddest, most soul-stirring service, the Armistice Day ceremonies at the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

For the first time, I was able to attend this commemoration, and was shocked beyond words to hear this sacred ceremony interrupted repeatedly by applause during the President's address. Applause at that solemn, sacred service and tribute to the millions whose lives were a sacrifice to patriotism and honor—a burial service!

Please, if you agree with my feeling of distress for this failure in the masses gathered there to understand the sacred sanctity of that reverent occasion, will you not direct attention to this failure in every respect? I have seen the same service in London and silence prevailed, every head was bowed, and slow dirges were played for the honored dead.

I feel that a great newspaper has in its keeping the teaching, formation and development of finer thoughts and action; a respect of sacred things which in modern life seems woefully lacking. M. L. M.

Reply To "Anxious."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Anxious," in his letter in The Post of November 7, requests that I draw "an analogy between the principle, 'love thy neighbor' . . . and the organized and systematic assassination of religion and free opportunity in Russia today," and states that I assume this principle is the basis of communism, presumably in Russia.

First, I made no reference to Russia. Second, I stated that the principle in "love thy neighbor," if interpreted in economic terms, may be taken "as the cornerstone of communistic philosophy and practice." It is clear that I had in mind the assumed benefits to any community or mankind as a whole that the great philosophies and religions of ancient China, ancient Greece and the Christian Socialists teach.

"Anxious" asks me one question (about Russia) that is not directly pertinent to my recent letter, and he apparently assumes that I hold Russia as the ideal expression of communism based on the principle, "love thy neighbor," which I clearly did not assume, as I made no reference to Russia. Russian communism, so far as my letter is concerned, is aside from the point.

I hold no brief for unjust, high-handed, deceptive, suppressive, murderous tactics wherever they are found, whether in Russia, the United States or Italy.

After all, does it not seem a paradox that of all the great modern powers Russia should be the first to experiment with communism? Russia, of 1917, with its high rate of illiteracy, insufficiency of technically trained men, undeveloped industrialism and transportation; Russia of autocratic czarism that for centuries practiced terrorism in downing minorities and using Siberia as the exile and possible death of the oppressed members of minorities, thinkers and believers in humanity! Strange this seems, yet psychologists might explain it on the ground that those you oppress will return to oppress you.

I do not think that religion can be "assassinated," for priests and churches do not necessarily religion make. "Free opportunity" in an absolute sense is a natural and civilized impossibility; any opportunity is only relatively free.

Issues should be discussed on their merits and what their proponents claim they are. I would not discuss the deficiencies, much less the merits, of American democracy on the practices of a Boss Tweed, the doings of gangsters and the suppression of a well-rounded education. Taking the operations of American democracy as a whole, I would say that the three aspects just mentioned are not the generally expected results that are believed in and taught.

Election Result.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The results of the election prove that the New Deal has been decisively rejected. From Philadelphia to San Francisco the evidence becomes cumulative. In Worcester, Mass., the second city of the Bay State, carried by Smith in 1928 and by Roosevelt in 1932, the home of Fahey, head of the HOLC, and a city supposed to be safely anchored in the Democratic group, goes Republican by over 2,000 majority. The HOLC was an issue, as it was in Cleveland, home of Martin Sweeney, most insistent for an investigation of the HOLC. Cleveland turned down a popular Democrat by an earthquake majority, as a result of the denunciation of the HOLC by Sweeney during the past session of Congress. Erie County in New York did the same thing.

It is left for Big Jim Farley to explain the disaster. Big Jim is called the "litter carrier" in Tammany. It is well remembered how he went on his knees last spring to Tammany, begging for assistance in carving up the State of New York, so that the Democrats might have a chance to carry the Assembly, with a sure and positive loss to Tammany of its representation. Jim the "litter carrier" was unable to understand the surly rejection by Tammany of his altruistic scheme.

Two major defeats now stand to the credit of Jim in New York, the election of the present mayor and the loss of the Assembly. Small wonder that smiles are on the lips of Tammany men as Jim boasts of 500,000 majority in the State, ignoring the fact that this majority was due entirely to Tammany in taking care of its "own."

No War For A Change.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the light of the present unrest in Europe and with war again hovering over the world, I hope that you will see to it that in your columns only the most contemptuous allusions will be made to any movement that tends to involve the United States in any more such war talk that led us up to the last miserable fracas, and of which we can never hope to hear the last.

War can certainly be avoided with the united help of sensible people, and so much of this help lies in the power of newspapers and English print, it could even be ridiculed out of existence; the childishness of it, wastefulness and uselessness, not forgetting the tinsel and parades and general circus-day atmosphere such as we put on in the last war that was to end war.

During the summer of 1918 I worked in a perfect hades of a place, a munitions plant where the making of death-dealing ammunition went on at top speed. In one war expert's opinion, and I can see that man yet on the outdoor platform, thundering at the top of his voice the war would last at least 10 years longer. At this horrifying statement some befuddled munition workers started a round of applause; very fitting, considering the surroundings about us, and that the greatest prosperity ever known in a salaried sense coming to them.

There are conflicting opinions still, in spite of the hard lesson we had to learn in 1918. But we should be willing to try anything once. Suppose we try doing without another war, just for a change.

SUSAN A. PRICE.

A Reasonable Government?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The nullification of statutes by the Federal judiciary is rank usurpation; it is warranted neither by the letter nor by the spirit of the supreme law of the land. Therefore, the movement designed to strip the courts of their great political function should have the support of every patriotic American citizen.

I maintain that it was not the intention of the framers of the Constitution to confer upon the courts the power of passing upon the constitutionality of statutes. The action of the Supreme Court in assuming the power to declare an act of Congress void, is justified by nothing in the Constitution to authorize it either expressly or by implication.

The vast political power now asserted and exercised by the U. S. Supreme Court to set aside public policies after their full determination by Congress, can not be safely left in the hands of any body of men without supervision or control by any other authority whatever; such action places the control of the policy of the Government not in the hands of the people, but in the power of a small body of men who were not chosen by the people, and who are holding office for life.

Is such a government a reasonable one, and can it be longer tolerated after 150 years of experience have demonstrated the capacity of the American people for self-government? If five lawyers can vote the vote of 120,000,000 men, then the art of government is reduced to the selection of those five lawyers.

Aid To Evicted?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The latest political "racket" is for the Brain Trust boys to grab some downtown apartment house, filled for the winter, kick everybody out and then employ armies of clerks that sit around doing nothing.

The other day the relentless political juggernaut crushed out over 100 occupants of the Rochambeau, including a small army of physicians and numbers of elderly people, with only a few days' notice and with winter at hand.

Ask any woman who has lived in a place 21 years, like myself for instance, what it means to be evicted, when it is almost impossible to obtain decent quarters. And what about moving expenses? As this gay and generous Administration is paying people to count caterpillars and study safety pins, why not assist those that are being evicted? M. C. G.

The Post Impressionist

Pre-Moscow Duranty.

Post Office, Wednesday.

WE haven't read Walter Duranty's new book—yet. But we've read some of the reviews of it. And we know Wally. So we know that some of the reviewers are wrong in some of their Duranty-estimates.

One of these is to the effect that Wally, though always writing well, "is at his best when he writes about something in which he has no personal interest."

Surely even a reporter may be assumed to feel a slight personal interest in his own body. Yet almost the best piece of Duranty-writing we ever encountered was his letter to us from a hospital, describing how a locomotive poked its nose into his train window—and how, when he attempted protest against this trespass, it took off one of his legs.

As for the reviewer who protests that Wally "reacts pleasurably to war's realities," that critic should have been with Duranty and the Post-Impressionist on a 1917 day at the Belgian front, when a French major insisted upon walking us out past the first-line, out past the observation-post—and onwards. Rifle-shots came from two angles—by and by, bigger shots.

We'd fall flat—run—fall flat.

Yet, all this while, Wally kept up with our guide, an acrid discussion of municipal politics in Marseilles. And when, in comparative safety, we remarked that we didn't see how he'd managed it, he blankly replied:

"I haven't the slightest recollection of saying anything. I thought I was too scared to say a word."

However, the worst of these Wally misunderstandings is that which accuses Duranty of a lack of humor.

* * *

One war-time night, he and this columnist boarded, at Calais, a train for Paris. We wanted sleep. As of course there were no "sleepers," we wanted a compartment to ourselves.

We found one, too. Wally stretched out on the back-seat; he's not a big fellow, physically, but he occupied the whole of it. The Post-Impressionist occupied the front-seat—plus.

Then a youthful stranger bounded cheerfully in: judged by his uniform, a brand-new war correspondent.

He said: "Hello, loafers!"

Wally snored.

The Post-Impressionist snored.

Duranty had to look up. He told the newcomer: "We've been being potted all day. We've got to sleep. Take the next compartment."

The youth said the next compartment was full-up—and, just as we bade him try it anyhow, the train started. There was no choice between throwing him out and suffering him.

So we all sat up.

But Wally doesn't suffer in silence. He drew that lad out devilishly. Soon the youngster was saying that his first war-week had been a disappointment: he hadn't seen any atrocities. It was thereupon that Wally, in sepulchral tones, remarked: "Stick with us!"

Immediately, our intruder looked as if he didn't want to.

"Shall we tell him the truth?" asked Wally.

The Post-Impressionist said we'd better not.

Bit by bit, Wally told of crimes committed by the Post-Impressionist in No Man's Land. Bit by bit, the Post-Impressionist laid on Duranty's shoulders horrors done in prison-pens. Blink after blink, our guest's eyes grew bigger . . .

The lights burned blue: a war-time regulation. The lad ceased to look at us, but it was evident that a terrible fascination held wide the gates of his ears, while we desperados compared prices paid by fences for watches torn from wounded men whom we put out of misery. We debated the superiority of throat-cutting over pistols. We turned to the golden opportunities in badly policed cities. In the calendar of crime there was not long left one deed undone by us . . .

When the nightly German planes came along, and the train stopped, our guest made a bolt for the missile-filled open spaces . . .

Years later, we asked Wally if he'd any idea what had become of that boy. Said Wally: "He's lecturing in America on The Adventurous Life."

"But," we protested, "he can't know anything about it, really. He's the kind that merely asks questions and believes only the wildest answers."

"Which," said Wally, "is the kind of stuff lecture-audiences want. We'll go on reporting what we see; he'll retell what he hears. And we'll remain what we are—but he'll become a radio or newsreel star."

* * *

Concerning all three of us, Wally's prophecy came true. But Wally's new book is called "I Write As I Please"—and if it's a perfectly correct title, Wally won't be envying the success of any second-hand adventurer.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Costly Oversight.

En Route to Barcelona, Nov. 12.

THERE seems to be a serious misunderstanding of the misconduct of Signor Mussolini which has resulted in the decision of the League of Nations to impose a boycott. The boycott is not a rebuke to dishonesty in stealing another people's country or to the use of armed force. Mussolini's offense was a breach of manners and the use of coarse methods. He was no gentleman.

There is a right way to do what Mussolini has done in Abyssinia and there is a wrong way. Had he possessed the craft and good manners to go about it in the right way Mussolini would have retained the respect of the world and would have relieved the League of Nations of the embarrassing necessity of cracking down on him. If Mussolini had possessed ordinary politeness he would have arranged to have an Italian consul or ordinary Italian civilian shot from ambush by persons unknown in order to establish a grievance against Abyssinia.

This is an old formality recognized by the powers of the world as a legitimate preliminary to colonial expansion. It is rather rough on the consul or the ordinary civilian citizen of the offended power, but custom provides that he shall receive a state funeral and a monument to be adorned with wreaths and patriotic mottoes on national holidays, and that his widow shall receive a pension from the grateful nation until friendship ripens into love once more and she remarries.

* * * *

THE cost of these patriotic civilities to a martyred consul, merchant or tourist is trifling, and no loyal son of Italy could have refused to make the sacrifice pour la patrie because he would not have been consulted. Having been outraged, Italy then could have moved into Abyssinia to pacify the country with perfect propriety and with the approval of many respectable precedents.

"We always provide an incident before we pacify a country by force," a distinguished citizen of France explained to your correspondent. "For decency's sake, an Italian consul should have been shot, but Mussolini showed no consideration for anybody. Now everybody loses business."

Although Japan is no longer a member of the League of Nations, the Japanese, nevertheless, created a feeling of respect not tinged with gratitude by their punctilious observance of the amenities which Mussolini flouted. Japan did not invade a peaceful neighbor for predatory reasons but proceeded only after long and patient restraint to exterminate the bandits who were terrorizing a helpless country. And then Japan, with chivalry learned by the conscientious study of the politer nations of Europe, used her military strength for the altruistic work of establishing a stricken people in peaceful possession of their own land under their own sovereign subject to the generous protection of Japan.

* * * *

AND in Morocco, where the other day the ashes of Marshal Lyautey, the French liberator, were laid to an honored rest with profound ceremonies, the French observed the same decent respect for the opinions and convenience of mankind. In Morocco the great French liberator first built up his military force by slow, inconspicuous drafts of troops. Wherever he could make use of his check book or a French medal dangling on a ribbon to induce a regional chief to appeal for admittance to the French family of colonies the great liberator saved his soldiers and wrote a check or reached into his safe for a medal.

It is rather startling to hear this phase of the art of colonial penetration described with respect in the temporary Palace of Peace of the League of Nations, but that is where your correspondent has been doing his listening these last few days, and that was where he heard it. The wise and humane French liberator had a fat check book and an unlimited supply of medals hanging on ribbons which cost more than a dollar a medal at the present rate of exchange, but Mussolini has plenty of lire which he prints himself, and Italian medals are quite as gaudy as French, though slightly inferior in prestige.

French expansion in Morocco was accomplished with the least possible vulgarity, and the late marshal, when his ashes were borne to a hero's tomb amid such ceremonies as only the French can perform, was said to be returning forever to the land for which he had expended the greatest years of his distinguished life and the greatest effection of his loving, generous nature. Not even the most captious critic could have found fault with the general.

* * * *

IN Abyssinia certain chiefs are reported to have been coming in to join the Italians, and this is credible, but it would have been much cheaper to send checks than troops, and the problems of civilized nations would have been simplified.

Mussolini, in fact, did have an incident in the fight over some wells belonging to Ethiopians, but though he was given every chance to make the most of it, he persisted in having it go to arbitration, and the verdict finally was that nobody was to blame.

Ferment In The Near East

Ethiopia Seen Pawn In Game To Win Trade Lanes.

By Selah Tolah.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE present Ethiopio-Italo-Anglo entanglement is merely one phase of the economic competition of the chief nation actors on the world stage. The complicated situation in the Mediterranean can readily be understood by salesmen and business people who encounter keen competition every day.

Great Britain, like a big business organization, has for centuries been developing, colonizing and organizing vast territories, domains and dominions and has spread her influence to all the corners of the world. By trade and commerce extending over many centuries she has won profit, prestige and power.

India, Australasia, China and Africa are among the substantial customers of the British, thanks to the Suez Canal. Although France had the jump in the sponsorship and construction of the canal, Great Britain outplayed France in invading and later controlling Egypt.

* * * *

TO carry on trade, commerce and shipping with the vast territories Great Britain covers, travel communications had to be safely maintained in peace and in war. It took Great Britain a century or over to arrive at the advantageous position she enjoys now. In so doing Egypt and the Sudan were invaded, a good grip was kept on India, the shores of the Red Sea controlled, and sometimes bribe, and to use a less offensive word, subsidies, were offered the chieftains in Arabia. In addition, military fortifications and naval bases were established in Gibraltar, Malta, Aden and elsewhere. After the World War, and through the genius of Col. T. E. Lawrence, during the war, became in control of the greatest part of the Arabian Peninsula, including Palestine, Transjordania and Iraq.

As aviation became an essential arm of trade expansion and dominion invasion, air routes to the colonies and markets had to be maintained and safeguarded. Air ports and cricket fields are dotted throughout the vast domain.

* * * *

BEFORE the World War Italy was not as keen a competitor for England as she is today. Since the ascension of Mussolini to his present strategic position, Italy's industries have been developed and strengthened and Italy's population has been increasing rapidly. Il Duce aspires to make Italy a "big shot" in the world of business and, as a matter of fact, he must in order to compete successfully.

Heretofore, Great Britain and France kept Italy out of the main tent of the world circus to which Il Duce dreams of graduating Italy. He is determined, as Italy's general sales manager, to get a fair share of world trade and natural resources, which are essential to the development of industry. He is forced to do this in order to maintain the standard he has already established. He has to invent or create new territories for his overflow population. Where can he send forth his overanxious salesmen and sales promoters? Africa's proximity to the Mediterranean and to Italy is the logical continent for Italian expansion. Ethiopia is the only country in Africa which is not controlled. The Arab countries are also alluring to Il Duce and are his best bets, and Ethiopia is a good starting point.

However, it took Great Britain generations to build her present world market. Although Il Duce has been quick to put his home field in order, it is a question whether or not he can accomplish the same speed in the world market. His present Ethiopian venture leads one to believe that he is determined to get a lion's share of the world trade, colonies and prestige. The offensive part of such an undertaking, to Great Britain, at least, is not the peaceful penetration of Il Duce's salesmen, but it is the nationalistic aspirations thereof.

* * * *

THE Americas once absorbed the overflow population from Italy but now their doors are closed and immigration to them is restricted. Even if the doors were wide open, would this satisfy the hunger of the nationalistic expansion of Italy and that of it's nationalistic sales manager?

In June, 1933, when the writer was traveling on an Italian liner from Palestine to Egypt, he met a British Royal Air Force officer stationed at Bagdad, who was thoroughly versed in the political ramifications of the Arab world and who seemed to be liberal in his views—as liberal as such an officer could be in the service of imperialistic Great Britain. He was asked point blank, why Great Britain did not get out of Egypt and leave the rest of the Arabic-speaking countries to manage their own affairs. His answer was that Great Britain would like to take such a step, but no sooner than she left by the front door Mussolini would enter through the back door, bag and baggage.

The answer summarizes the story. Ethiopia is the back door and is the starting point of the Italian dream of her place in the sun. Great Britain's imperial shiping lanes, air routes and communications may be safe in the hands of a friendly Egypt and friendly Arabs, but how long will competing nationalistic sales managers leave them alone? Great Britain's liberalism may accept Wilson's self-determination provided it does not conflict with the security of her interests.

* * * *

EGYPT has always resisted Great Britain. After the World War, Great Britain gave way to this resistance and reluctantly granted Egypt some measure of autonomy, absolute on the surface but conditional in reality. The indirect control is to safeguard Great Britain's imperial communications and interests. The Italian threat to Ethiopia is a direct threat to Egypt and the Arab countries bordering the Red Sea, where Britain for centuries has enjoyed a predominant position. Italian designs on Egypt and other Red Sea and Mediterranean countries may be a dream, but if Italy succeeds in the preliminary Ethiopian bout, Egypt and the Sudan will be within striking distance. With Italy in Tripoli and Libya on the west and Italia-Ethiopia on the south, Egypt is bound to be in a less secure position than she is now.

Italy is making every effort to win the favor of Egypt and the Arabs. Italy is facilitating and encouraging the education of Arab youths in Italian institutions and only last year arranged a convention of Arabic-speaking students in Italy. Arabic radio programs and lectures emphasizing the Italian point of view are frequently broadcast from Italy. Italy is publishing the Oriente Moderne magazine, and deals exhaustively in matters pertaining to Arabic- speaking countries. A convention of Moslem Muftis (religious leaders), was recently held in Switzerland and encouraged by Rome. Mussolini is anxious to satisfy the Arabs complaining of the Zionist development in Palestine.

Great Britain foresees the danger to her security in the Italian sales promotion campaigns in the Near East and its effect on her dominant world position. She also realizes that Italian control of Ethiopia is not only damaging to her prestige in the East but will in due course interfere with her imperial communications.

* * * *

SUCH a control of Ethiopia is a physical contact with Egypt and the Sudan. Lake Tana is one of the principal sources of the Nile. The Nile is Egypt and Egypt is the Nile. Hence Great Britain, through the League of Nations and otherwise, must stop Italy. A broadcasting station has been installed in Cairo. Another is in construction in Palestine. Haifa in Palestine is being fortified on a permanent basis. Moral and physical mobilization is going on in Egypt. Akaba, on the Red Sea, is considered as a naval base. Motor roads connecting Palestine with the Suez Canal and Akaba are to be constructed.

What is the attitude of Egyptians who are suposedly independent, to all this British activity? While Egyptian sympathy with Ethiopia is genuine and natural. The Egyptian liberal Omar Tausoon has put it, "A threat to the independence of Ethiopia is a threat to the real independence of Egypt." The Egyptians argue that it took years to gain the independent status they now enjoy and they wish to be assured that Great Britain, in this emergency, will not return to her manger, to save her imperial communications.

Should Italy win this fight, Egypt does not care to have antagonized Italy. If joint action, on the part of Egypt and Great Britain, is inevitable then a definite understanding by both Egypt and Great Britain should be arranged by both as two and free contracting parties as to their rights and status. British diplomacy, heretofore, has sidestepped her promises to the Arabs for more worthy stakes, and although the Egyptians and the Arabs resent Italian aggression in Ethiopia they are going to demand a guaranteed quid pro quo from Great Britain.

* * * *

WHILE Great Britain is working with the Arabic-speaking countries against Italian aggression, the Moslem countries are forced to form alliances with each other. It is reported that Emir Abdullah of Transjordania, is taking the initiative to convene the leaders of Arab countries to consider Italian aggression and its effect upon the Arabic-speaking world and to take such steps jointly for the common interest of the Arab countries.

A United Press despatch from London dated October 20, 1935, states:

A pact of nonaggression and amity, binding upon Turkey, Iraq and Iran (Persia) was initiated secretly by representatives of those three countries at Geneva last month, it was learned. Afghanistan and possibly Saudi Arabia may later become parties to the agreement. Diplomats here saw a dual significance in the pact in that it would eliminate the long standing tension between Iran and Iraq, and would weld mid-Eastern countries into a solid front in the face of possible Italian expansion in the southeastern direction.

Whether or not the foregoing alliances are inspired by Great Britain, only time will tell. Great Britain must either allow Italy, and maybe later Germany, or Japan, to put a monkey wrench in her present smoothly running machinery of world markets and routes and thus accept a weaker position with possible integration, or fight alone (or collectively) to maintain her advantage. Ethiopia is a pawn. The principal actors on the stage are jockeying for long-pull economic positions, competing for trade, commerce and natural resources.

Police Heads to Direct Harrisonburg Welfare

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Welfare work in Harrisonburg will remain under the police department until the city council can agree on a superintendent to head the division, it was decided last night by the council in rejecting the nomination of Miss Juliet Gish, head of the old board of public welfare for seven years.

Under the city reorganizatoin the welfare department is a separate unit in the municipal set-up. Chief of Police J. Hillyer Boice has been acting head of the welfare department since it was established six weeks ago. Miss Gish resigned her duties after the new set-up became effective. The city budget appropriates $9,500 for the welfare department.

Great Britain Plays Egypt And Arabs Against Duce.

No End Of Books

By Theodore Hall

With No Patience.

LIFTED as excited a voice as the next man over Thomas Wolfe's two large, splendid, barbaric yawps—"Looking Homeward Angel" and "Of Time and the River." But now with his short stories before me—"From Death to Morning" (Scribner, $2.50)—something is wrong with my enjoyment. He has gone, in short, and given me the giggles.

Somehow the very hugeness of his canvas protected him before from such unseemly merriment. With page upon endless page, and all time to spare, there was a fitness in his rotund and full-toned oratory. We swallowed it as we did Whitman. But now what happens? Here is a longish tale of 55 pages, the matter of which is nothing more than Mr. Wolfe's eyewitness observatfons on four unrelated metropolitan deaths, and this is given the title "Death the Proud Brother," and here is the way it begins: "The face of the night, the heart of the dark, the tongue of the flame—I had known all things that lived or stirred or worked below her destiny. I was a child of night, a son among her mighty family, and I knew all that moved within the hearts of men who loved the night."

What does the reader do? He scrooges in his chair, and, like the bulky financier in the Peter Arno cartoon who is being kissed by the French general, he grunted: "Aw, shucks!"

Mr. Wolfe's constant mood of a heady, omniscient, omnipresent ego is a hard one to make credible to the reader, and a hard one to sustain. Yet a 500-page novel can do this, we know. A 55, 35 or 20-page short story, on the other hand, can't. The strain of such acceleration into the Wolfeian Never-Never Land is simply too great. And like all mere mortals under a strain which we didn't have ot incur, we giggle.

* * * *

UNLESS you know Mr. Wolfe well, and are willing to tack these 14 stories onto his novels as a sort of after-thought appendix (all but two or three are blood and bone of the Eugene Gant-Thomas Wolfe saga), you are going to find the awful solemnity and verbal violence rather too naked. A short story is like a hand-mirror, appallingly close and clear. Our author, aside from two tales in the volume, does not survive such a test too easily.

By far the best reading in the book—and it is not a coincidence that it is the longest tale—is "The Web of Earth." Here Mr. Wolfe sets down the rambling reminiscences of Mrs. Gant (his mother) during an evening in Brooklyn (Mr. Wolfe's long-time residence). A grand, salty, forthright old lady, she wanders on about the Gant (Wolfe) tribe in the familiar manner of the Mark Twain character who couldn't really get into one topic before he found it suggested another. The talk and the anecdotes are very rich and very good. But it is a chapter, not a short story.

As story—directness, economy, precision and point—the blue ribbon must go to the six pages of "Only the Dead Know Brooklyn:" a Brooklyn-dialect record of the chance meeting between a Brooklyn tough and a curious stranger (oh yes, the latter is Mr. Wolfe again). Some weeks back I slapped the New Yorker over the wrist for its influence on John O'Hara; now I must apply balm and ointment there for its salutary effect upon Mr. Wolfe. (One story in the volume, the copyright notices indicate, had appeared in that magazine; which it was is your guess and mine, but the Hall shekels are on the tale in hand.) For it is straightforward and objective, albeit pretty obvious, and there is no oratory.

Mr. Wolfe, by himself and without exterior discipline, needs room and a great deal of it. He is by no means at his best in the short story. Burton Rascoe was perfectly right when he observed of the novels that they were filled with the voices of "demons, gods and seraphim in chorus." But, forgive the impatience, there is something more than a little odd about putting "demons, gods and seraphim" into a bandbox.

Danville Police Aid Safe Robbery Inquiry

"Say, listen, do you think there's much in all this talk about Roosevelt losing ground?"

"I think his idea of holding an All-American boon-doggling tournament in the California Rose Bowl between the FERA and WPA is a big mistake; but he still has a big following."

"Did you see where the Republicans attacked him for not giving a warning of that last Florida earthquake in time for the National Show in New York."

"Yeah. Well, they'd even blamed him for those Helena hurricanes."

Nazis' Embargo Aids Sanctions Against Italy

But Berlin Says Act Is Caused by Domestic Situation Alone.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Germany indirectly joined countries taking sanctions against Italy today by placing a blanket embargo on certain important products regardless of their destination.

The embargo is effective November 16, two days before League sanctions begin to function. An official announcement, however, studiously avoided direct mention of Italy or Geneva, although once apparently referring to Italy.

Home necessity, the announcement said

U. S. Says Lock In Air Control Caused Crash

'Flying Fortress' Wrecked Because Pilots Failed to Release Elevators.

"Locked controls" was officially announced yesterday by the War Department as the cause of the crash of the Boeing "Flying Fortress," America's largest bombing airplane, which was destroyed at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, two weeks ago.

The official report of the accident board confirmed a story published in The Post a week ago that the failure of the pilots to release the locked elevators prior to taking the big ship into the air for a test flight was the cause of the accident.

The board of Army officers appointed by Brig. Gen. A. W. Robins to conduct the investigation stated that: "The crash was not due to structural failure, failure of any of the four engines, action of the automatic pilot or faulty structural or aerodynamic design."

"The direct cause of the crash was the locked condition of the controls after the crash, and the testimony of the survivors as well as eye witnesses, the officers said that "from the evidence submitted the board believes that the elevator was locked in the first hole of the quadrant on the up elevator side."

The accident took the life of Maj. Ployer Hill, Air Corps, pilot of the big ship. The copilot, First Lieut. Donald Putt and Leslie Tower, John Cutting and Mark Coogler, who were riding as passengers, were injured.

Paper Is Used for Rugs, Strange as It May Seem

Strange as it may seem, floor rugs have been crocheted out of crepe paper. The paper is first cut into two-inch-wide strips, then twisted and crocheted with a large hook. Oval or circular rugs are made, in the old-fashioned early American hit-or-miss pattern, using strips of different but harmonizing hues. When finished, a thin coat of white shellac makes the rug easy to clean and surprisingly durable.

Stenciled Designs Make Old Kitchen Tables Gay

Old kitchen tables are now made gay by applying stenciled designs—a flower spray at each corner of the top, or a conventionalized border around the edge. This ornamentation is put on after the table has been painted or lacquered a solid color. A coat of good waterproof varnish will enhance durability and make the surface easier to clean.

Two 'Slants' at Chair Make Painting Easier

Amateur painters are often discouraged by finding after the job is finished that there are unpainted spots here and there on a chair or table. To avoid this, first turn the chair or table upside down on a newspaper, paint the legs and stretchers, then place it on its feet and finish the job. This gives two views of each piece and makes it much more unlikely that bare spaces will be left.

Those Chinese Hogs!

He: "Thousands of Chinese hogs were used last year to make paint brushes."

She: "Isn't it wonderful how they are training animals to make things!"

Paint Makes House.

As surely as "clothes makes the man," paint makes the house. It transforms, almost like magic, a cold uninviting dwelling into one of warmth and attractiveness.

Shingle Painting Tip.

When painting shingles that are dry and absorbent because of weathering, an excess of oil should be added to the paint. Paint, treated in this way, should not be applied to other woodwork.

Leak May Result If Pipe Hammers

Air Cushions Will Correct Water Line Troubles.

If your water pipes hammer when you turn off a faucet, you had better do something about it as soon as possible or it will loosen joints somewhere along the line and then there will be a leak. You can correct this condition by providing air cushions to take up the extra pressure of the water when it is suddenly stopped by turning the faucet.

Such air cushions can be a short length of pipe set above the top faucet in each line. There are also patented gadgets that can be installed.

If the water lines "chatter" when a faucet is partly closed, something is loose. Put in new washers. If that does not correct the trouble, something else in the faucet is loose. You may have to replace the entire faucet.

'Pompeiian Red' Paint First Used in Olden City

Pompeiian red, a color popular in the decoration of modern rooms, was originally used in houses in the ancient Italian city of Pompeii, which was destroyed by the eruption of Vesuvius 2,000 years ago. The paint, made of a mixture of egg yolk, distilled water and ground earth, has been found on many walls in good condition.

Visiting Nurses To Curtail Budget

$25,000 Cut Is Necessary; October Report Made.

Visiting nurses made 15,428 visits and cared for 6,519 patients in Washington during October, it was announced yesterday at a meeting of the society's board of directors.

It also was announced the organization's income budget for 1936 will be curtailed $25,000 because of payment withdrawal by the public assistance division for nursing work.

Officials of the society present included Mrs. Wilder D. Baker, Miss Elizabeth Bryan, Mrs. Whitman Cross, Mrs. Charles B. Crawford, Mrs. Hutchinson I Cone, Mrs. John W. Davidge, Miss Janet Houtz, Miss Virginia Hunt, Mrs. Emory Scott Land, Mrs. Cresson Newbold, Mark Lansburgh, George Hewitt Myers, Mrs. John M. Sternhagen, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. J. W. Color of Room's Walls Is 'Atmospheric' Factor

The color of the walls of a room may contribute much to a family's happiness, wrote Derek Patmore in his recently published book, "Color Schemes for the Modern Home." For example, yellow, which naturally suggests sunshine, will give a happy and cheerful background; blue, associated with peacefulness, will be found very soothing when judiciously used.

"Camels never get on your Nerves"
STEADY SMOKERS SAY

Recently Returned from the jungle fastnesses of the Upper Surinam River, Dutch Guiana, Mrs. William LaVarre, daring girl explorer, says: "My husband and I are devoted to Camels—took them with us on our expedition. And here's an important point: Smoking Camels steadily, I find, does not affect one's nerves."

WILLIE HOPPE, champion of champions, famous personality of billiards! Mr. Hoppe has learned that cigarette mildness is essential to one who prizes healthy nerves. He says: "Championship billiards call for healthy nerves. It was a happy day for me when I turned to Camels. I can smoke all I wish and never have 'edgy' nerves. I have smoked Camels for a long time now, and I want to compliment them on their mildness. It must take more expensive tobaccos to give that special Camel flavor I like so much." You, too, will find a new delight once you turn to Camels. They never get on your nerves . . . never tire your taste.

Lieutenant Commander Frank Hawks, U.S.N.R., holder of 214 speed records, says: "I've been flying for 19 years and smoking Camels almost as long. Breaking speed records tests the pilot's nerves as well as his plane. I smoke all I want to. Camels are so mild they never upset my nerves. And they taste better!"

This is Margaret Ellen Nichols, expert newspaper woman. She has this to say: "Newspaper work involves long, irregular hours—hard effort—lots of strain. I smoke all I want, because Camels never bother my nerves. Camels have a mild, pleasant flavor—delicate, pleasing—entirely different from any other cigarette."

That Colossal Romantic Yarn of "Anthony Adverse" Goes Into Work This Week

Fredric March Has Title Role In Allen Story

Youthful Player Opposite; Politics in New "Time;" Amusement Notes.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"Anthony Adverse," that monumental fiction by Hervey Allen, which it was so freely predicted never could be produced successfully as a film, is ready for the cameras and microphones and the first sequences will be shot on Thursday of this week, under the direction of Mervyn LeRoy.

According to last-minute reports emanating from the West Coast, the first sequences of the picture will occupy four of the huge sound stages on the Warner lot. The script calls for 131 sequences in all. Despite this extravagant number of story movements—and it seems none too many to account comprehensively for the prodigious sweep of the Allen novel—only 54 days have been set aside for completion of the camera work on the entire picture.

Because of the importance of the production, the Warner Brothers are casting "Anthony Adverse" slowly and with great care. Announcements already made of playing personnel, however, insure a group of stellar names for the pivotal roles.

March and De Havilland Lead.

Frederic March, of course, will appear in the title role. Olivia De Havilland will be seen as Angela; Steffi Duna as Nelata, Henry O'Neill as Father Xavier, Leobard Mudie as De Bourienne, aid to Napoleon; Rafaela Ottiano as Senora Bovina, who tells Anthony his fortune; Donald Woods, former leading man with the National Theater Players, as Vicent Nolte, and Anita Louise as Anthony's mother.

Two other first-flight actors recently have been signed for important roles, in Claude Rains and Edmund Gwenn. Mr. Gwenn is now visible in the role of the elder Strauss in "The Strauss Waltz," on the screen at the Belasco. His premiere here in J. B. Priestley's "Laburnum Grove" was one of last season's notable events at the National.

Sheridan Gibney adapted the Allen work to the screen. Originally written to be published as a trilogy of romatic novels, it will be one of the Warner Brothers' most important undertakings for the season of 1935-36, just as Max Reinhardt's picturization of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was for the season of 1934-35.

To Heights in Year.

Miss de Havilland "crashed" the cinema by appearing first in Max Reinhardt's Hollywood Bowl production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and then being chosen by the same master craftsman for the identical role of Hermia in the celluloid version. She was next assigned—and this was prior to the release of the "Dream"—as Joe E. Brown's leading woman in "Alibi Ike" and then appeared with Jimmy Cagney, Frank McHugh and Pat O'Brien in "The Irish in Us." It is noteworthy that Brown, Cagney and McHugh also were conspicuous in the Reinhardt "Dream."

Now comes the announcement that in "Anthony Adverse," which probably will turn out to be Warner's biggest production of the new season, Miss De Havilland will be intrusted with the foremost feminine part in the picture. Even Hollywood, inured to all manner of surprising variations of the Cinderella story, looks upon Olivia de Havilland's rise to almost stellar eminence through the medium of less than half a dozen pictures within the short span of a single year as a phenomenal achievement for an actress only 19 years of age.

Miss De Havilland, as dainty and fragile as the china her name so immediately suggests, was born in Tokyo, Japan, of English parents, who moved with her, at the age of 3, to California.

She is 5 feet 4 inches in height, weighs 107 pounds and has reddish hair and brown eyes. She has a business manager, but no secretary. She still thinks it fun to open all her own fan mail.

Its steadily growing volume, however, soon will take care of that ingenuous idiosyncrasy!

Speaking of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" brings to mind the fact that its Washington engagement of two weeks at the National is one of the most successful, from a box-office point of view, that the picture has played. The first week broke every picture "road show" record since Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," 20 years ago. The second week, although falling something below the first in box-office gross, still comfortably exceeded the single earlier week of De Mille's "The Crusades" on the same screen. One suspects that the total "take" for the two weeks fell not a great way under the considerable sum of $25,000. And $25,000, ladies and gentlemen, in these days, or any other, is not spinach!

"Time Marches On."

When "Transatlantic Tunnel" opens its Washington engagement on the screen at R. K. O.-Keith's tomorrow, the companion feature of the bill will be the eighth issue of "The March of Time," that pseudo-historical newsreel which has hacked out a niche peculiarly its own among popular, short-reel screen subjects.

Herbert Clark Hoover and the Republican Party, preparing for 1936; the business of strike breaking and how Georgia established a precedent; wild ducks and their partial extinction as a result of illegal shooting, drought and drainage—these are the major topics with which the new "March of Time" concerns itself.

Although for three years he has remained in virtually silent retirement in his Palo Alto home, former President Hoover still is titular head of the G. O. P.; the one figure in whom is embodied national opposition to the New Deal in Washington.

Scans the List.

"March of Time" shows the former President now emerging from his self-imposed isolation as the pre-campaign political season of 1935 gets under way. Traveling across the land, it casts an appraising eye on Borah, of Idaho; Landon, of Kansas; Knox, of Illinois; Vandenberg, of Michigan; Hamilton Fish, of New York, and other "favorite sons" and "dark horses."

Mr. Hoover enunciates the duties of the Republican Party. Here in the National Capital, Postmaster General Farley makes a Democratic prediction on the outcome of next year's election.

I leave it to you whether "Transatlantic Tunnel" or "March of Time" will attract the greater local attention.

Although temporary defections of grand opera stars from the stage of the Metropolitan to the studios of the cinema have been numerous of late, probably no proselyte has commanded more public notice than Lily Pons, the diminutive French coloratura. During the course of its production, the first Pons screen vehicle was persistently referred to by its "working title" of "Love Song." This now has been changed to "I Dream Too Much"—to the questionable advantage of all concerned.

However, that is beside the point that "I Dream Too Much" will be accorded its first Washington presentation on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, as a special attraction opening, it is hoped, somewhere in the vicinity of Thanksgiving Day. Coupled with the fact that this season of the year is recognized, along with Labor Day, as one of the two best box-office periods on the calendar, there is the item that "I Dream Too Much" is not a backstage story, but enlists the services of a down-to-earth cast led by Henry Fonda, Eric Blore, Paul Porcasi, Esther Dale and Osgood Perkins to commend it to seekers after lively entertainment as well as "big" musical names.

Why "International?"

Alexander Korda, production chief of London Films, has cabled his American representatives that he has secured the screen rights to J. B. Priestley's novel of "International Quartet."

This will be one of the first productions made in the new London Films Studios now under construction at Denham, in England. It will be released in America through United Artists.

For the principal roles Mr. Korda has chosen Charles Laughton, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Elsa Lanchester and Ralph Richardson, a foursome noted for fine achievement.

Laughton, who has done any number of fine things for the films on both sides of the Atlantic, is coming along Friday in "Mutiny on the Bounty;" Sir Cedric Hardwicke is identified in the public mind by "Les Miserables," "Becky Sharp" and "Nell Gwyn;" Elsa Lanchester, Mrs. Charles Laughton in private life, recalls Ann of Cleves, "the Flanders Mare," in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," "The Bride of Frankenstein" and "Naughty Marietta," and Ralph Richardson recently was seen here as Katharine Cornell's Mercutio in "Romeo and Juliet," as well as with Edmund Gwenn on the screen in "Java Head."

Thus it become quite a cast that Mr. Korda has in mind. Not "international," but distinctly all-British.

Time-by-Forelock Note.

There's nothing like keeping up to date on novels that are apt to be picturized. So I'm glad I began "Anthony Adverse," with its 1,200-odd pages, a year ago last Christmas.

With all that head start, I now, fortunately, have only 1,000 or so pages to go!

This Is the Stage's Johann, Jr.

With Esmond Knight playing the same role in the British-made film now on view in the Belasco Theater, it is interesting to observe the contrasts presented in his interpretation of the part by Guy Robertson, who appears as Johann Strauss, jr., in Max Gordon's mammoth production of "The Great Waltz," which opened a week's engagement in the National Theater last night. Mr. Robertson has appeared in his present assignment ever since the first performance of the operetta in the Center Theater, Radio City, New York.

Tells Familiar Story.

The story and structural form of "The Great Waltz" by now are as well known in character and contour as the Washington Monument or the Empire State Building. There exists no need at this belated date and hour in the work's distinguished history to recount that it concerns itself primarily with a dual interest—the romance between the junior of the Johann Strausses of the Vienna of the early Nineteenth Century and Therese, the baker's daughter, and the bitter feud between father and son in the matter of musical composition and public eminence in the waltz capital of the world. It remains only to be recounted that here are utilized to their fullest and most delightful effect many of the foremost melodies of the famous Austrian composers and conductors, pere et fils, all welded into the solid craftsmanship of a musical play that brings narrative and score to a delicate and nicely sustained balance that never once is disturbed during the too-brief span from first curtain to last.

The two acts are kaleidoscopic in their brilliant bursts of color, resonant with rousing songs and spirited ensembles and exquisite in the shimmering loveliness of ballets that have been conceived and executed with the same finely poised artistic sense that has left its indelible stamp upon every contributory element of the entertainment. There is no jarring note from beginning to end of "The Great Waltz." It is a masterpiece of harmonious coalition of a majority of the theater's familiar arts, seasoned, perfected and mature.

Numbers Rousingly Sung.

The Strauss songs are sung with a robustious vigor that one must go back to "The Chocolate Soldier" of a quarter century ago to match. Augmented orchestra, vocally gifted principals and competent mixed chorus of unusual proportions conspire to make this the medium of rehabilitation for tuneful ballads that some may have deemed worn threadbare long ago from too constant repetition. This is a groundless fear. The lilt of the 15 numbers is as fresh, as captivating and as contagious as upon the day they were written—"You Are My Songs," "Like a Star in the Sky," "Love's Never Lost," "Love and War" and the others.

Ballet Wins Ovation.

The two principal roles of Johann Strauss, jr., "Schani," and his adored Therese, "Resi," are both sung and acted with romantic fervor and the finesse of long familiarity with the parts, by Guy Robertson and Miss Lee Whitney. Both are in the finest tradition of light opera in all they say, sing or do. No less may be said of the Countess Olga Baranskaja of Gladys Baxter, whose friendly plotting brings Schani his great chance to lead his father's orchestra in his own untried waltz, "On the Beautiful Blue Danube." Lieut. Leopold is sung and acted with comparable skill by Ralph Margelssen.

Comedy roles of importance and value to the variety of the action are accounted for with credit to themselves by Gladys Clark and Ralph Sanford, factotums of the Ebeseder bake shop; Stanley Harrison, as Hirsch, the fireworks manufacturer; Solly Ward, as Dommayer, the proprietor of the concert garden, and Sam Mann, as Dreschler, Johann, jr.'s tutor.

The corps de ballet is led with feathery grace by Kathi Lanner and garnered for itself one of the genuine triumphs of an evening that was replete with ovations for superlative contributions to a production of unexampled grandeur.

No little of the success of "The Great Waltz" must be attributed to the musicianly conducting of George Hirst, who presides over an enlarged orchestra uniformed in the best Viennese manner, and the mechanical smoothness of that gorgeous ballroom finale of the last act that presents one of the most effulgent spectacles known to the modern theater.

THE HIGH COST OF GULLIBILITY

A husband dies—his estate consisted of thousands of dollars worth of financial frauds, questionable stocks and worthless deeds. By investing without caution he left only an inheritance of fraud to his widow and children. He was gullible.

An elderly man enters a charity home. At one time he earned and saved money, but glib talkers sold him wild-cat stocks and promised that his wealth would be boundless. He believed the strangers and did not investigate. He, too, was gullible.

Dozens of similar cases have come to the attention of the Better Business Bureau of Washington. In so many of them the fraud was patent, even a cursory examination would have revealed trickery and dishonesty.

It would not be so bad if the gullible investor was the only victim, but dependents and worthy institutions and the entire community are victimized. That is why you have a civic duty to perform when solicited—play safe.

Before You Invest—Investigate

New Violinist, Veo, in Lounge At Mayflower

By Chanticleer.

That old keynote of the Mayflower lounge orchestra—"sweet and smooth"—is going to be more keynoteder than ever before. Harold Veo has joined up with the band. Veo adds another violin to the group, which means that Sidney's famous "singing violins" will be established, at least in part, in the music from now on. As you may already know, the added violin will permit orchestral arrangements not possible without it. Veo also gives Buddy Harmon an opportunity to turn a bit classical at times. Harold is very, very good at the more serious things for interludes.

Two little lovelies, Anita Lester and Joan Zappa, are lending a new charm to the Madrillon this week. Little Lester does acrobatic numbers combining the agility of a circus performer with the grace of the stage artist. Any time Anita tires of the night club floor she should find a swell job with Ringling. Joan goes to toe dancing, a musical comedy suggestion in her work. And a generous splash of comedy. The Brusiloffians, with Annette Miller, Jack Schaeffer and Ray Donahue, supply the rest of the gayety.

• • • •

Now it's Harry Albert who wants a gal to sing with the band. Up at the Ambassador room at the hostelry of the same name. And for the purpose of locating said songstress, Harry is staging a free-for-all audition, the lucky winner receiving an indefinite engagement with the band. First auditions are set for next Monday afternoon. If you can sing, sister, send your application to Jack Varela pronto. Don't forget the telephone number and home address. More auditions will be held Thursday afternoon—and the big moment arrives Monday, November 25. It's open to all. Gentlemen of the press and radio will be judges, so it is said.

• • • •

The ballroom at the Shoreham goes Spanish this week, with De Vega and Ynez, recently of Los Angeles Cocoanut Grove, dancing Valencian rhapsodies and Argentine tangos. To top it off they present "El Fado," a Portugese folk dance of the fisher boy and fisher girl. De Vega and Ynez are descended from proud old titled families of Spain. Dolores Farris, who was ingenue lead in the "Good News" company that played Washington, is spotted on the floor show with Ed Sullivan—toe dancing, grand singing and a novelty thing called "I Love A Parade." The Don Anthony Quartette stays over for another week of grand opera.

• • • •

Chanticleer Restaurant—"the show place of the city"—presents the "Gobs of Joy Revue," with a cast of 25 including ah, yes, eight little "yeomanettes." (That's a line of dancing pulchritude, stranger.) There's Scotty Weston, the dancing gob; Stanley and Kaplan, comedy team which is wowing the customers; Dale La Tour, lyric tenor; Ada Truman, toe specialist; Sylvia and Kay, with a bit of the old shim sham shimmy, and, of course, Bill Strickland and his Capitolians for your dancing pleasure. Old Doctor Al Elmer Norton makes you feel at home. Two shows nightly.

It's getting near birthday time for Moe Baer. This is the twelfth month, me hearties, for the Club Habana's maestro. And right smart of a master-of-ceremonies he has become in those months. There should be some sort of celebrating when the day arrives. He ought to get something special, too, for having that fellow Hawkins behind the drums and 17 gadgets he operates. My, my. It takes seven men and a boy to learn to play drums any more. Nadine and Girardo, talented dance team, entertain the diners and a line forms to try the new game in the Caribbean room. First anniversary night Thanksgiving Eve. Better be there.

• • • •

The shock is almost too much. Here is a note advising that Van Smith, who barytones at Ramon's, has talked Rudy Schramm, Ramon's maestro, into getting a hunting license. I hope that Rudy sticks to his ivories. It seems that Smith is a firearms collector. Rudy does very well with all ten fingers. But I 'low as how he ought to keep all of them.

• • • •

There's dancing nightly now at Griffith Farms, the suburban dining spot with the open fireplaces. The Variety Six under the direction of Brick Dornin balances the heat from the log fires. Standup bar, cocktail lounge, and all the comforts of town.

• • • •

Brian McDonald has been held over for the third week at Maryland Club Gardens. In fact, the customers insist he sing no less than five numbers at every appearance. Brian introduces this week the dance team of Byrnes and Swanson, whose "savage moods" dance is proving a sensation. They use special lights for this one and some of the timid souls actually shiver! Also the Ross Sisters, direct from Manhattan's Stork Club — WOR singing favorites. Fran Trappe and his accordion fill the interludes between Sid Allen's dance groups.

• • • •

Emery Daugherty recently appealed for instrumentalists for his Monday night amateur shows at La Paree. He got them. They turned out in quantities—a 7-piece harmonica band, guitar quartet and so on. But those Rhythm Boys (Paul Caslow, Leslie Byram and Julian Blinco) won first prize. They're good. They'll return later for the finalists. Another contest next Monday night.

• • • •

Steve Shelton, former football star and post-graduate student at George Washington, is the Gingham Club's man-of-all-affairs. A few days ago he had them all guessing. It seems Steve dyed a pair of white summer shoes—and for an entire evening the personnel of the Childs' rendezvous wondered what the phantom odor was. They'll never stop kidding him about it. That Parker team on this week's floor show is one of the fastest seen this season. And Mary Miles is the business with her taps.

• • • •

For four years Carol Chapelle, the newest hit at the Heigh-Ho Club, was a dancer. She went to the Hollywood Cafe in Buffalo, didn't seem to click so well, fell in with the Yacht Club Boys and they induced her to try singing. And that night at the Hollywood she took the house with—vocalizing! And she's been singing sophisticated little songs ever since. In fact, they call her the "shocking sophisticate."

• • • •

A band leader never knows where the next "hit" will come from. And that doesn't exclude Milt Davis, maestro at the Hamilton's Rainbow Room. Not long ago Milt had a visitor, Leon, who operates a store in the neighborhood. Leon had just returned from a trip to Russia with a little tune called "Your Heart," the hit of a Russian musical comedy. Milt liked it, made an orchestration, and now the cocktailers are crying for copies of it.

• • • •

Ethel Pastor, the Russian Troika's glamorous prima donna, is as versatile as they come. She's at home on the stage with an operatic company or before the diners at a cabaret. Scat song or "Carmen," she has what is commonly known as "appeal." She was with Phil Spitalny on tour with his girl orchestra and has made movie shorts. Last summer she was at the St. Moritz roof in New York. But she belongs to that happy gang that loves the Troika and she's here for the entire season.

• • • •

Milton Barrett is gradually making a new Dude Ranch out of the old Dude Ranch. The latest is spanking new black and gold decorations in keeping with the new band shell and acoustical treatment of the ceiling. It won't be long before Milt announces a grand opening—or rather, re-opening. This week the floor show is headed by Kay and her Kaydettes—with many beautiful girls. Dixie Dyer is with us, too, singing indigo ditties in the Southern way. Ralph Garron and band for dancing.

• • • •

• • • •

The three jovial proprietors at the Embassy Restaurant—James, Gus and Sam—advise that Washington is still dropping in in large numbers demanding more of those fine turkey dinners—the kind that celebrated the Halloween birthday anniversary last month. And are they accommodating? They are! And, of course, the cocktail room has the same excellent fare.

New Stars for Fun Spots

The Ross Sisters have come down from Manhattan's Stork Club to entertain with a bit of vocalizing at Maryland Club Gardens.

To Quit Rearing Trout.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Petersburg, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Activities at the trout-rearing pond on South Branch River will soon be discontinued for the season. During the year about 500,000 trout have been placed in the streams of the State from these ponds. Sportsmen are urging that a bass hatchery be established in South Branch Valley for local streams alone. It is claimed the south branch of the Potomac, considered the best bass stream in the State, badly needs restocking.

Youth, Hunting, Shot.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Glen Louk, 16, of File Creek, is recovering from severe wounds received the first day of the hunting season. He informed officers the shots came from the weapon of another hunter who fled.

Peace Crusade On a Scientific Basis Is Urged

Major Hulvey Discusses War Motives at Charlottesville.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 12.—Speaking on the Armistice Day program of the Kiwanis Club yesterday, Maj. Charles N. Hulvey, associate professor of commercial law at the University of Virginia, advocated a world movement to study and systematize the motives and instincts that grow into war.

War should not be permitted to get started as easily as has been the case in the past, said Maj. Hulvey, who was connected with the Commerce Department during the World War. Causes of war should be studied and analyzed from the scientific standpoint, he said. When war clouds arise, the people, he said, particularly those who still have to do the fighting, should demand that the causes and reasons for resorting to war be made perfectly clear. This, he continued, means that the younger people must be versed in the art of propaganda in order to be able to recognize the points of departure from truth.

Maj. Hulvey said too much emphasis, in the history of wars, has been placed on the immediate, rather than the more remote, events found in the chain of causation. We see only the "firing on Fort Sumpter," the "sinking of the Lusitania," and other overt acts which, he said, in the stress of excitement and emotional disturbances, act as smoke screens to our reason.

War is deceptive in all its phases, he said, because it encourages hatred and falsehood, and is destructive of all the values, economic and spiritual, for which a people devote their better efforts and for which they strive that life may be more abundant for all.

"Practically all wars begin with a misconception, on the part of the people, even those in power, of its ultimate consequences. War, like a forest fire, appears at the beginning to be a small matter, soon to be settled. But it has the other quality of a forest gre also," he concluded, "that of spreading quickly by forces not contemplated and getting beyond control."

Auto Accident Victim To Be Buried Today

Chambersburg, Nov. 12.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Dr. A. B. Stinson, 40, Fayetteville dentist, who died Saturday of injuries received last Wednesday when he was pinned between his automobile and a wall of the Franklin County Courthouse after he cranked his car while it was in gear. Bureau will be in Green Hill Cemetery, Waynesboro.

Surviving are the widow and three children, Jane A. Stinson, A. B. Stinson, jr., and David James Stinson; his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Stinson, Waynesboro; two brothers, Dr. O. H. Stinson, Emmitsburg, Md.; Dr. A. M. Stinson, Stewartstown, and a sister, Mrs. A. J. Moreley, Toronto, Cnaada.

$100,000 MacArthur Alienation Trial Set

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—Judge William V. Brothers today set for trial December 16 the $100,000 alienation of affections suit of Carol Frink MacArthur, Chicago movie critic, against Helen Hayes MacArthur, the actress.

Miss Frink, former wife of Charles MacArthur, playwright, charges Miss Hayes with "wilful and wanton" alienation. She was granted a divorce for desertion in May, 1926. The suit has been pending for several years. A new Illinois law now bans such suits.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Morgan Baker.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION has been requested by a group of 240 architects and engineers of Procurement Division, Treasury, to have all applications recently submitted in the unassembled Examination No. 51 reviewed and marked whereby experience and training other than that received in colleges shall be accepted as qualifications.

BAKER.

The group also requests that if the applications will not be reviewed or re-marked, that an open assembled competitive examination be held for all, college and non-college trained, and that there be no disqualification of applicants due to age, providing they have not reached retirement age.

Delivered by White.

The request was made in the form of a resolution, under auspices of the Washington Chapter of the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, and was delivered to Dr. Leonard White, Civil Service Commissioner.

Examination No. 51 was for architectural and architectural engineering positions, and is reported to have required the applicants to have had as one of the minimum qualifications the completion of two years of study in a college leading to a diploma or certificate.

"The practice of architecture," the federation points out, "is established on the services of architects who have been trained in offices and ateliers as well as those trained in colleges.

"It is generally recognized by practicing architects," the petition further says, "that college training is not an indispensable part of the training nor a requisite essential to the performance of architectural services and duties.

Facts Recognized.

"These facts are recognized in many cities and States, notably in New York, wherein examinations for registration as well as assembled competitive examinations for positions in State departments permit qualifications to be based on experience and training other than that received in colleges."

The federation claims that the majority of architects and architectural engineers in Procurement Division, while executing professional services and duties required of those positions for which the Civil Service examination No. 51, unassembled, was held, are classified as ineligible to participate in the examination.

"It is evident," the petition declares, "that the qualifications required by the Civil Service Commission are not consistent with either the accepted qualifications for the practice of architecture or the capabilities of men at present engaged in the satisfactory performance of their duties in identical positions for which recent examinations were held."

Borah to Take Action.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, has written to E. Claude Babcock, president, American Federation of Government Employes, that he feels "very strongly" on the matter of "undue favoritism toward college graduates in appointments and promotions within the civil service.

We quote a part of the Senator's letter:

"I feel very strongly about the subject covered by your letter. But instead of writing, as you suggest, I think it would be better when I return to Washington, which will be very shortly, to have a talk with the Civil Service Commission, or some member thereof.

"You can rest assured that I am in sympathy with your views and will help to present the matter to the commission."

Views of Administrators.

Several administrative officers in the Government state that lack of a college education is no bar to employment in their agencies. The following letter comes from Lawrence Westbrook, administrative assistant to Harry L. Hopkins, WPA:

"Mr. Hopkins has referred to me your letter to wihch you attached a statement concerning the 'growing practice of disregarding experience for the filling of high and low jobs in the Government service.'

"You are advised that it is the policy of this administration to employ people on the basis of their qualifications for the positions to be filled."

George W. Neville, FHA, states:

"So far as this organization is concerned, we are only interested in securing qualified and efficient personnel. It is of no concern to us whether an employe possesses or lacks a college education."

B. H. Meyer, acting chairman, Interstate Commerce Commission, states:

"Practically all of the numerous examinations held for this commission from time to time lay stress on the practical experience of applicants in connection with experience with common carriers. It has been the policy of this commission to promote from within its ranks to higher grade positions when we have employes who are qualified, and so far as I know we will continue that practice."

Encouraged by the enthusiastic response to its initial efforts, the Government Printing Office Spelling Club now offers, beginning today at 3:30 p. m., a free course in spelling in the green room. While having fun preparing for spelling bees, members will be coached scientifically by Miss Mary Bontz, of Strayer College.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF F, P or C follows your name in this column, call in person on the Federal Diary editor today only between 3.30 and 5 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Benny Rubin, Harry Rose, Ann Greenway and other acts; screen, Rosaline Russell and William Powell in "Rendezvous"); or to P, Loew's Palace (Miriam Hopkins, Edward G. Robinson and Joel McCrea in "Barbary Coast); or C, Loew's Columbia (Joan Crawford and Brian Aherne in "I Live My Life").

That Sheepskin

There came a roofer to my home,
To build a roof for me;
Said I, "My friend, you'll never do,
For you have no degree!"

There knocked a plumber at my door,
To fix a leak or two;
Scoffed I, "You may come back again,
When Harvard you are through!"

A hopeful applicant there called Upon his Uncle Sam
Who growled, "If you have no degree,
You can't take this exam!"

Agriculture Backs Chest.

With the indorsement of Dr. W. W. Stockberger, director of personnel, Agriculture, and T. Weed Harvey (F), vice chairman of the department's Chest drive, the Musical and Dramatic Guild will present its second annual Chest playlet in the Agriculture auditorium three times today.

The performance will begin at 9:20 a. m. and will be repeated at 10:20 a. m. and 11:20 a. m. Miss Lucile Way and A. C. Edwards wrote the sketch, which the former is directing.

Taking part in the performance are Mrs. Betty Whitfield Bullion, BAI; Hary Kabat, Secretary's Office; Mrs. Doris Menter, BDI; Mary E. Van Houten, BAE; Lorraine Imlay, NFFE; Roy Gray, BAEng; H. A. Magnuson, BAEng; W. H. Redit, BAEng, and J. B. Sellers, E&PQ; M. L. Buckley, Priv.; Elizabeth Patete, Sec.; Louis G. Zanoff, AAA; Jack Levenson, Vet.; M. R. Deutsh, AAA; Geraldine Thompson, BPI; Fred Fletcher, Priv.; Tillie Kravitz, FERS, and William R. Bishop, Priv.

The Federal Bridge League will hold its third open-pair game of the winter season at 8 p. m. Thursday at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, it is announced by Roy Astleford (P), Navy, league official.

N. F. F. E. Dance Friday.

The social season of the National Federation of Federal Employes unions in Washington will be launched Friday night by Local No. 2, reported to be the largest union of Government workers in the Capital. A dance will be held at the Willard Hotel, beginning at 10 p. m., with music by McWilliams Orchestra. All branches of Local No. 2, as well as other units of the N. F. F. E. here, are supporting the event, which will be open to all Government employes.

G. P. O. Chess Club.

All employes of the Government Printing Office, including apprentices, are invited by M. Propper (P), president of the G. P. O. Chess Club, to attend the evening sessions each Tuesday, beginning today, in the green room.

Beginners are given instructions in the ancient game by A. A. Dillon. All new arrivals will be introduced by Mr. Propper and partners selected.

The Junior New Dealers Club will open its winter season with a dance tonight at 1326 Massachusetts avenue northwest, with the following Government people in charge of arrangements: Martha Arnold (C), FERA; Mary Fleagle, H. O. L. C.; Martha V. Canon, NRA; Helen Wheeler (C), REC; Curtis Backus, jr., HOLC; Roscoe Parker, HOLC, and Wendell Malmberg (F), Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Q. Does the Government operate any railroads?—H. E. Lecky (F).

A. By Executive order of June 8, 1923, the President placed the operation of the Alaska Railroad under the Secretary of the Interior. The general manager is Otto F. Ohlson, with headquarters at Anchorage, Alaska.

Accent on Glamour

The Columns of The Washington Post Feature Unusual Fur Values During National Fur Week
Nov. 11-16

This Formula Gives the Hair Natural Color

Preparation Also Cleanses and Reconditions It In Single Operation.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

YOU tossed your cares to the sun, the wind and the waters, this past summer. And summer came and went. And now, there's the imprint of this gloriously free and careless season on your head. Hair that was a soft golden blonde is tawny, and streaked with dull brown. Hair that was a dark, black-brown has lost its glossiness, and is bleached unevenly. Even gray hair has a drab appearance.

Or maybe the summer wasn't to blame. Perhaps you've had trouble with your hair for years and tried to bear in patience its irregular blondness and unbecoming streaks. But now, you're tired of all this and you want your hair to do you credit. Why, you argue, should your face look ten years younger than your hair? There's no reason. No reason at all. Once upon a time women were content to put up with all sorts of beauty contrabands. No more, though. They have come to realize their appearance is an important factor, in business, in the home, and in the social contacts. They have demanded some remedial agent for their hair—and they have it!

It's a recoloring fluid. But it's more. It's a splendid cleanser. Containing a neutral soap, it gives an excellent shampoo. Second, it combines in a single preparation four excellent oils which soften and recondition your hair and make it lustrous.

It embodies the fine tints that science has recently devised, imparts a natural color to the hair and leaves it vibrant and glowing. It simply works wonders for hair that's sprinkled with gray.

So, you see, here's a preparation that in one brief operation cleanses, reconditions and tints.

Light, Durable Gloves.

GLOVES: They look like tweed, but they're much softer. In fact they feel a bit like down, or maybe the fluff of angora wool. They fit! (there's no denying that!) like paper on the wall. And they're warm. Not that that matters much now, but you'll be glad in a few weeks. Most gloves that are markedly warm are too heavy, or bulky, or something. These aren't. They might tip the scales with a feather, but they're unbelievably lightweight. And what's more, amazingly sturdy. You can use them for sports, driving, in fact, for anything, and they retain their shape and prove themselves real quality.

Thermat Heat Pads.

DON'T BE FOOLED! One of these days (and it won't be long now!) winter is going to rush in upon us and sweep the balmy fall aside with a chill breath. It's then that you'll be scurrying for the heavy blankets and looking around for means to keep your feet cozy and warm.

Better for this than a hot-water bottle or warm brick, or woolen bed socks are the thermat heat pads selling for next to nothing in a local store. Put one drop of water in one of these, shake that drop around a bit and presto, you've a nice little foot furnace right at hand.

Underwood & Underwood.

Man still has to lift himself largely by his own bootstraps, believes Miss Ida M. Tarbell, 78-year-old historian and biographer, who has studied social and industrial changes in the United States over a period of half a century.

One Will Appear in Series, 'The History of American Civilization,' Which Will Cover Period of the Rise of 'Big Business.'

AT THE AGE of 78 Ida M. Tarbell is writing three books. The veteran author and biographer revealed this in a recent birthday interview. "I had meant to forget about birthdays for a few years," she said, "and then make a big splurge when I was 80."

One of Miss Tarbell's books is to appear in a series, "The History of American Civilization." It covers the years from 1878 to 1898, the period of the building up of "big business."

Miss Tarbell is also writing a small volume outlining her views on the preparation of biography. In the early nineties she went abroad to study the French method of collecting biographical and historical material because the French "clarity of form and precise words attracted me," she explained.

Later, in her numerous biographies, including several of Abraham Lincoln, she developed her own theory of biographical approach. This is how she describes it:

"Find out all you can about the man. Tell it all as nearly as you can. So far as possible let the man speak for himself. Get the full man, the physical side, the psychological side. Understand him and place him in the true relation with his time."

Miss Tarbell's third book will be entitled "What Price Security?"

"I'm inclined to think there is no such thing as security in the world," she said, "man being what he is and society what it is. It's silly to think that society can make us all secure. Society isn't secure itself. An individual will be much wiser to depend on his own efforts I think."

Active in Public Affairs.

At a time when most women retire to the armchair Miss Tarbell not only finds time and energy to carry on a full time job as an author but to participate in public affairs. She is active in support of humanitarian movements and in undertakings for women's betterment.

Miss Tarbell became widely known in the early part of this century for her articles on the Standard Oil Industry. She is an outstanding authority not only on Lincoln but on the history of American business.

Specialist Warns Against High Heels In Working Hours

High-heeled shoes should not be worn by women during working hours, says Dr. Dudley J. Morton, associate professor of anatomy in the School of Medicine of Columbia University. Restriction of high heels to evening hours, he says, would "very nearly eliminate their baneful influence in producing foot disorder."

Dr. Morton pointed out that it is not the high heel itself but its continuous use that makes women prone to common types of foot disorder. He says the wide prevalence of disorders presents a problem in public welfare, and that at least 40 per cent of all persons are handicapped because of such disorders.

A mild degree of out-toeing in walking is predominant in healthy and normal persons, Dr. Morton said, and is the position of greatest efficiency.

Jewels Suited To Complexion Are Tabulated

Connoisseur Classes Women According to Stones They Should Wear.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A noted jewelry designer and connoisseur of rare gems—Leo Mehrlust, of Chicago — classified women today as diamond types, ruby types, emerald types or those who should wear amethysts, turquoise and other stones.

Behind locked doors he showed by appointment a $300,000 collection of jewels, including a ruby and diamond ring priced at $15,000 and an unset ten-carat emerald-cut blue white diamond, valued at $37,000.

As he displayed an $18,000 necklace of fiery Australian opals, green garnets, golden diamonds and blue sapphires he discussed the types of women and jewels they can wear to best advantage.

Determining Factors.

Emerald for Green Eyes.

All sallow skins should avoid diamonds, white pearls and sapphires.

As to personality, diamonds are best worn by vivacious women and women who are well poised. The sophisticated woman wears to advantage the emerald-cut diamond, which should be avoided by the mousey woman.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have been married 14 years and my mother shares the home of my husband and myself. She is 70 years old, has very poor health and has no income from any source, except what my husband and I furnish. She has a son who never has contributed to her support, although he has a good position. I love my mother dearly and she claims to have the deepest affection for me, but at times I cannot understand how her love can be sincere.

Do you think my mother could really love me, and yet almost hate my husband, and take every opportunity to make him unhappy? In 1931, my husband lost his position. The firm he was with let out many of its older men and took on youngsters—not because they were more skilled or efficient, but because they would work for low salaries. My husband is 55 years of age, and you know how much chance he has of starting at the bottom again at 55. He is 12 years my senior.

• • • •

My mother seems to take great delight in constantly making nasty little digs at him because he is unemployed, and I have to bring in the living. I have a good position and do not mind the responsibility. My husband has really tried to get work, but it is always the same thing: "—too old." He threatens often to leave home because he cannot stand the humiliation, and yet he has no money and will accept nothing from me except food. He and I together have cared for mother during the years he worked. I do not know what to do. I do not make enough to maintain a separate establishment for her, but think it cruel for my husband to be forced out of his home—one that he has worked years to help acquire. Should my husband wander away I would never, never forgive my mother. In fact, I wouldn't want to go on living. I have talked to her and told her how cruel and unfair it is. She is a bit decent for a couple of days, then back at the old game.

• • • •

What would you do? In the 14 years we have been married, I have never heard my husband say a cross word to mother. Yet he is tormented daily with her jeers and insinuations that he is lazy.

DESPERATE.

Suit Discipline to Offense

DEAR DESPERATE: Since your mother is behaving like a spoiled, selfish and bad-mannered child, it is imperative that she be treated as such. Act as any wise parent would act under similar circumstances. Govern her with the iron hand in the velvet glove. Lay down the rules of conduct to which she must subscribe if decent harmony is to be preserved in your home, and insist on her observing those rules.

What principally ails your mother is long-suppressed childish jealousy, seizing on the first propitious opportunity for venting itself upon its object—your husband. Your first move must be to secure his complete co-operation in adopting a firm, united parental front against her hateful conduct. Then either frown down or blandly ignor her assaults on the citadel of your marriage. Perhaps you have made the mistake of trying to hold your life to a three-way relationship—of trying to keep your mother from being jealous of your husband, of trying to secure for him her friendship, understanding and possibly her motherly love; of trying to instill in your husband's mind and heart the same understanding of and devotion to your mother which you necessarily possess. Where such mutual understanding and devotion doesn't spontaneously flower between mother-in-law and son-in-law, its growth cannot be forced.

• • • •

Since it is clearly evident that your husband as an individual is far more necessary to your happiness than is your mother, you must signify this truth and live by it. This means that your mother cannot be considered as co-equal in importance with your husband, either in your home or in your heart. In your home she is a guest, who should be careful not to violate the laws of hospitality through indulging in malicious criticism and interference. In your heart, she occupies second place, and if she possessed wisdom she would realize that that is an honored place for a parent to hold in the life of a child who has had the rare good fortune to make a satisfactory marriage.

• • • •

These are unalterable truths which you must firmly fix in your mind and not lose sight of for a moment. You must fix them in your husband's mind. Since of himself, entirely aside from his earning ability, he makes a contribution of the greatest importance to your happiness and your sense of security and well being, he can afford to disdain your mother's vicious pin pricks which are motivated, as I have said, by jealousy.

• • • •

In order to convince your mother, as well as your husband, that your patience with her mischief-making is at an end, it may be necessary to reorganize your domestic habits and household schedule to some extent. For instance, if it has been the family custom for the three of you to breakfast and dine together, it would be wise to begin now to have breakfast and dinner alone with your husband. Your mother can take her meals alone, at an earlier or a later hour. Discontinue threesome sessions and strained attempts at general conversation in the living room of evenings. Your mother can retire to her room, or you and your husband can retire to yours, as you see fit to decide. If your mother has been doing a share of the housework and feels this contribution entitles her to criticize your husband's predicament, relieve her of this responsibility—or, at least, suggest the possiblity of doing it.

• • • •

If her health permits, you might pack her off to her son's home for a visit of two weeks or a month and greet her with the revised schedule on her return. The change might do her good, and her son might—if asked—back you up by giving her a good scolding for her meddlesome tactics. In the meantime, you would have excellent opportunity to reestablish understanding accord with your husband, and to reach a meeting of minds on how to handle this situation.

If this sounds like a cold-blooded prescription, I can only remind you that a firm, unsentimental handling of this situation now is much to be preferred to losing your husband and hating your mother. M. H.

Career Seekers Advised To Study Technicalities

"Look ahead and train yourself for a seat on the board of directors instead of a secretary's chair," is the advice given young stenographers by Miss Ann O'Neill, international lawyer and assistant to the legal adviser of the State Department.

Harris & Ewing.

Most Employed Girls Remain Secretaries Through Lack of Training, Miss Ann O'Neill, First Woman In State Department, Declares.

By Sara Roberts Millhouse.

TRAINING is the thing that women in public life lack today—training in technicalities.

So believes Miss Ann O'Neill, whose training in technicalities of various kinds enabled her to break the barriers of stenography to become the first woman attorney in the Department of State. Today Miss O'Neill, international lawyer, has climbed to the position of assistant to the legal adviser of the department.

"Women are too much in research," Miss O'Neill said. "A lot of them are secretaries. But not many are on boards of directors. Why? Lack of training! Lack of foresight in looking forward to what they want and seizing it when the 'break' comes."

Small, with curly brown hair, dark Irish eyes and quick smile, Miss O'Neill sat back of her massive, book-piled desk in the rambling old State Department Building and talked vividly. She discussed women in business and professions hampered by idealism where realism should exist; her work as a legal adviser in the State Department; her views on treaties, peace pacts and world peace (which she believes will come only after all the women of the world abandon idealism and demand universal disarmament).

Started Career as Stenographer.

On a subject nearest her heart, the problem of stenographers, "human commodities dumped in quantities on the market for business men and executives to ride to success on their backs," she grew expansive. She started her own career as a stenographer, was promoted to a secretary and virtually lifted herself by her bootstraps into a law clerkship in the State Department.

"Ask the average stenographer—after your secretaryship—what," she said. "In reply you get only a blank stare. Most stenographers haven't thought—they haven't been trained to think along that line. They are mostly looking only far enough ahead to see a Prince Charming galloping around the corner."

Stenography is bound with limitations and its proponents are neither encouraged nor trained to get beyond those limitations, according to Miss O'Neill. "Men are too dependent on good secretaries to encourage them to advance careers of their own," she said.

Miss O'Neill would like to see established schools where courses would keep in mind that stenographic work is only a stepping stone. "The schools would equip young people—women mostly, since most men have had enough sense to get out of stenography—to do secretarial work for a year or two in order to earn," she said. "And then, while earning, the young people would receive training at whatever professions they might select. It would end this dumping on the market of stenographers who have little hope of escape from the confines of their occupation. Too many women, as secretaries, are carying the brunt of the work of men executives who get the credit and the recognition. The secretaries themselves could have the careers, the success, if given some impetus to better themselves. Training is the key!

Unusual Facilities Here.

"Why it's easier for a salesgirl in a department store to achieve advancement than a stenographer"

Washington offers unusual facilities for women in equipping them for all kinds of careers, Miss O'Neill believes. "But you've got to get 'em young!" she says. She bases this judgment perhaps on her own experience, for at the age of 21 she had received her law degree. She has been in the State department 22 years frankly admitting to a 45 that she doesn't look!

"Oh, yes, I'm 45—they say you don't become a good international lawyer with less than 25 years' experience," she asserted. "I've got a few more years before I'll be a 'good lawyer.' But it's the young people who will carry on, the young women who are to achieve things in professions, businesses, executive places and world peace."

A native of the District, Miss O'Neill attended secretarial school after her graduation from Notre Dame Academy. One day, after learning the fundamentals of stenography, she got a job. Later, when she was secretary to a chemist, "through the accident of propinquity," as she describes it, came the impetus for her law career.

"The chemist's office was in the same building with the old Washington College of Law," she recalled. "Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, then registrar of the college, saw me flitting around the halls—asked me why I didn't study law. Well, I did—at night. While studying, I also applied for civil service clerk's rating."

At 21 she was graduated from law school, taking a prize for moot court work. Meantime she had received her clerk's rating and for three years worked as clerk with the British Pecuniary Claims Commission. In 1916 she went into the State Department as secretary to Lester H. Woolsey, solicitor. The "break" responsible for her rise from secretaryship to attorneyship came "unfortunately through the war. There were few men and the solicitor was trying to equip his office as best he could.

From law clerk she advanced to assistant solicitor, assistant to the Undersecretary of State, and in 1931 her present position as assistant to the legal adviser.

Blood Ailments Curb Nutrition, Imperiling Life

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

BLOOD vessels may be compared to a system of pipes supplying water to a city. Mains are laid along the streets and into the houses. If the pipe leading to a group of houses becomes plugged or filled with lime, the pressure will drop or the flow may cease entirely. So it is with arteries that become diseased.

Within recent years considerable study has been given certain diseases that narrow or plug the blood vessels of the extremities. We must regard these diseases as of the greatest importance, because anything that interferes with the circulation influences appreciably the nutrition of the body. Should nutrition fail, function will cease and even death of the part may occur (gangrene).

Raynaud's Disease

What are some of the conditions that give rise to blood vessel obliteration or plugging? One of the most important is known as Raynaud's disease, in which the color of the hands or feet may change rather quickly from normal to a waxy pallor. This means that blood is not flowing normally to the vessels. The symptom usually appears in both hands or both feet and 90 per cent of those afflicted are women who possess nervous temperaments. The mildest manifestation is blanching of the skin, which may be followed by cyanosis (blueness). The disease, as a rule, is slowly progressive and as it advances small areas of tissue destruction (necrosis) appear at the tips of the fingers. They are at first exceedingly thin and are caused by the permanent plugging of the capillaries carrying blood to the parts.

With the first sign of Raynaud's disease prompt measures should be taken to relieve the individual from worry and all nervous and mental strain. Occasionally transfer of residence to a warm climate is advised. If this is impossible amelioration and sometimes cure may be brought about through surgical attack upon the sympathetic nervous system.

Treatment Not Difficult

Although treatment is not difficult it is not always instituted in time to prevent the loss of a toe. If the patient has been an excessive smoker, complete abstinence should be insisted upon at once and the resumption of the use of tobacco permitted only in moderate amounts, accurate observations on the state of the circulation being made from time to time. The feet should be bathed daily and routine efforts made to stimulate circulation, such as immersing the feet in hot water for approximately one-half hour three times daily. Exposing the feet to the heat of a carbon lamp baker is helpful. (Details for the construction of this baker will be sent on request if stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed). Artificially induced fever or the use of a suction apparatus has been attempted with success in few cases. No plan, however appears to be quite so satisfactory as hot packs, hot baths, or the use of the electric baker.

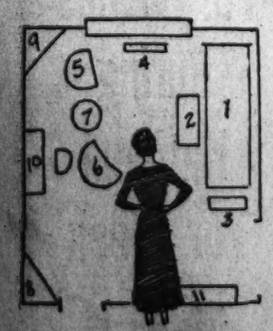
PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

THE lady in the green ensemble tripped down the street with the jauntiest step, her hat cocked over one eye and her cheeks rosy with the cold. But her brow was wrinkled quizzically and her thoughts were at home . . . what ailed her living room, anyway? The furniture was lovely, but something was wrong. Her guests never seemed to get together until they had dragged the furniture all around and spoiled the effect she'd worked to get in the room.



But that turned out to be the clew to the trouble. The next time company came, she left things as they had left them and surveyed the upheaval. Why had the big chairs been pulled away from their corners, where she had arranged them very prim and proper? The answer was—for sociability! And why had they gravitated toward the windows? The answer was because that was the pleasantest part of the room and people naturally like to sit there.

Anyway, the lady with the smart green ensemble rearranged her furniture according to this diagnosis: with the sofa (1) at right angles to the windows, a coffee table (2) in front of it and a lamp table (3) at the end. In front of the window she put the radio (4) and opposite the soft she placed the two easy chairs (5 and 6) in easy conversational reach of each other and the sofa . . . with a lamp table (7) between them. On the wall opposite the window and between the doors she put the bookcase (11), a shallow piece of furniture that wouldn't block the path. Against the long wall she placed her desk (10), where it was out of the traffic of the room, and at the corner of this wall she put a pair of corner cabinets (8 and 9).

Send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin in care of The Washington Post for her bulletin, "How to Arrange Furniture."

Five Named To Seek WPA Labor Truce

Nice's Idea for Relief Parley of Governors Given Committee.

14 Maryland Counties Authorized to Start Paying Pensions.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—Appointment of a labor advisory committee to help iron out labor supply difficulties in the Works Progress Administration was the major development of the day in the State relief problem.

On the national front, Gov. Harry W. Nice's suggested conference of governors to discuss the relief problems to be brought up by the ending of Federal direct payments on December 1 moved one step near fruition.

Meanwhile, Harry Greenstein, State relief administrator, authorized 14 counties to begin payment of old-age pensions. These payments are expected to help the solution of the relief problem by caring for elderly persons, now on direct relief, who will not be able to find jobs under the Federal work-relief program.

The advisory committee was appointed by Francis H. Rryden, State WPA head, after a meeting arranged by Joseph P. McCurdy, president of the Maryland-District of Columbia Federation of Labor.

Committee Personnel.

Members of the committee will be McCurdy; S. J. Duhan, of the Baltimore Electrical Workers' Union; R. J. Buxbaum, president of the Baltimore Building Trades Council; J. Fred Rausch, secretary of the council, and James Blackwell, president of the people's unemployment league.

The labor men met with Dryden to present demands formulated at a meeting here last week. One of the demands was for collective bargaining for WPA workers.

Another was for the payment of prevailing wages on WPA projects. Answering this request, Dryden said that he considered WPA to be a stop-gap to furnish work for unemployed men until they could be employed by PWA, the State roads program, or private industry. If it is a purely temporary expedient, he said, the matter of wages is not so important.

Job Survey Suggested.

If the WPA is to be semi-permanent, he continued, the wage question might have to be reopened. He suggested that the committee collect data on how soon jobs will be provided by other agencies and industry and report back to him. He will meet the group again tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Gov. Nice's proposal for a meeting of governors on relief questions was referred to the executive committee of the governors conference. The suggestion, originally made by Nice to Gov. Herbert Lahman of New York, was referred to the executive secretary of the conference. He, in turn, referred it to the executive committee.

Gov. Nice, a member of the executive body, has already sent in his vote as favoring the meeting. Other members of the committee are Govs. Sholtz of Florida, McNutt of Indiana, Horner of Illinois, and Landon of Kansas.

Project Taken Over

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12 (AP).—The Mayor and City Council of Cumberland today adopted an order rejecting a WPA street repaving project and passed an ordinance providing for the work as a city project.

WPA workers on the projects struck in an attempt to have the wage level boosted to 50 cents an hour. The strike still is going on.

Plans for Sewers Sped in Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 12.—In an effort to start work on a sewage system as soon as possible after December 1, the date on which direct relief ends in Maryland, city officials have sped preliminary work. With increased preliminary activity it will be impossible to start work before December 20. City Engineer Elmer St. C. Maxwell announced after a conference with Mayor Lloyd C. Culler and G. J. Requardt, consulting engineer.

Plans and specifications are nearing completion for the southern and western sections, he said, but these have to be approved by the State Board of Health and Public Works Administration engineers before bids are asked.

Stephen C. Cromwell, regional WPA director, yesterday explained that a $359,856 appropriation for county road improvements will be held in reserve to be drawn upon when labor is available.

Firemen of Frederick To Meet in Thurmont

Thurmont, Md., Nov. 12 (AP).—The quarterly meeting of the Frederick County Volunteer Firemen's Association will be held at the Town Hall Thursday night.

Members of 13 companies of the county will be guests of the Guardian Hose Co. for supper. It will be the first meeting of the association in Thurmont.

Johns Hopkins Students Seized As Hostages in Pre-Game War

$5 Offered by St. John's for Kidnaping of Undergraduate.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 12.—The annual pregame hysteria at St. John's College and Johns Hopkins University, which four years ago precipitated an all-night riot here when Hopkins stalwarts, Annapolis police and fire departments were repulsed by local collegians with a flurry of brickbats, flared up again today with St. John's the captors of two university students and preparing to capture another with a prize on his head.

James Hopkins, Hopkins undergraduate whose ancestors founded the institution, is the object of another expedition which will bring his kidnaper a $5 reward.

St. John's, victoriously defending its woodpile from being burned prematurely before the annual pep rally preceding the traditional Hopkins-St. John's football contest in 1931, still claims supremacy in the intercollegiate warfare between student bodies.

"Johnnie and Mildred Hopkins," otherwise known as John Burghardt, of New York, and Robert Renshaw, of Baltimore, both Hopkins sophomores, are the present hostages held here. A move is afoot to rescue Bruce G. Caturani, local freshmen, ulred away from watch duty last night by Hopkins students who asked for a match.

A series of skirmishes between the students of both institutions in Baltimore last night resulted in the captdre of Burghardt by Charles Gladden, of Annapolis; Cyrus Straw, of Scranton, Pa., and James Phillips, of Salisbury, St. John's men.

Frank Buck and William MarMillian, St. John's freshmen gridiron stars, who were kidnaped with Richard Snibbe, escaped today and brought back Renshaw as another prey.

Six Skulls Are Dug Up At New Postoffice Site

Crisfield, Md., Nov. 12 (AP).—Crisfield volunteer historians are attempting to solve the mystery of a number of skeletons found by workmen digging the cellar for the new postoffice at Onancock, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, near here.

Six skulls have been found. While several theories have been advanced, the most popular is that the cellar was a burial place for the Onancock Indian tribe which once roamed that section. Arrow heads and tomahawks have been found in considerable numbers in that section.

Shotgun Death Of Miss Pysell Is Investigated

By the Associated Press.

Oakland, Md., Nov. 12.—Still awaiting word from the Department of Justice as to fingerprint evidence, Garrett County officers today continued their investigation into the shotgun slaying of Miss Ella Pysell, elderly spinster.

Miss Pysell was shot down last Wednesday night as she was washing dishes. The charge from a shotgun was fired through a window of the home.

State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley said he was confident fingerprints found at the Pysell home, at McHenry, 14 miles from here, would furnish "conclusive evidence" regarding the case. Fraley, Sheriff Clarence Spear and three State policemen are investigating the case.

Noah Kolbfleisch, a nephew of the slain woman and one of five persons held for questioning, has taken steps seeking his release. He probably will be given a hearing tomorrow on a petition for writ of habeas corpus.

Brethren Session Set at Bridgewater

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 12.—One thousand delegates and visitors from six States are expected to attend the annual session of the Southeastern Regional Conference of the Church of the Brethren which will open at Bridgewater tomorrow night.

Pastors and lay delegates from Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, the District of Columbia, North Carolina and Tennessee began arriving here today for the sessions which will continue until Friday night.

Dr. Rufus D. Bowman, pastor of the First Church of the Brethren at Washington, will deliver the opening sermon.

Attending from the national headquarters of the church at Elgin, Ill., will be Dr. Charles D. Bonsack, head of the missions board; the Rev. H. Spencer Minnick, superintendent of missionary education, and Miss Ruth Shriver, superintendent of the children's division. Other speakers will be Dr. Warren Bowman, of Junita College, and Dr. J. Quinter Miller, Hartford, Conn., general secretary of the Connecticut Council of Religious Education.

A youth rally and banquet Friday night will close the conference.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 12.—L. J. Houston, jr., city manager since 1918, was re-elected unanimously by the city council last night for the year beginning January 1, at a salary of $6,250.

Houston has served continuously for 17 years during which period the city has made notable progress and development in both physical and financial aspects. The council also elected Beverly S. Roberts clerk to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alvin W. Biscoe.

Chandelier Falls.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 12.—A huge chandelier, suspended from the ceiling in St. Michael's Catholic Church, fell into the aisle during services Sunday night. No one was injured.

Science Society Meets Monday At Virginia U.

Charlottesville Savants Will Tell of Findings in 10 Different Fields.

By the Associated Press.

University, Va., Nov. 12.—Research activities of the University of Virginia in ten different scientific fields will be explained before the National Academy of Sciences which will hold its 3-days autumn meeting here beginning next Monday.

Foremost among the university's learned investigators who will report their findings to the society's first meeting south of the Potomac will be Dr. Samuel Alfred Mitchell, professor of astronomy and director of the Leander McCormick Observatory. He is one of the five scientists in the South who have been admitted to membership in the organization.

Dr. Mitchell,d who is credited with measuring the distances to more stars than any other astronomer, will make a report on the magnitude of 6,284 stars in 350 regions of long period variables.

Dr. Jesse W. Beams, who has produced the highest rotational speeds ever attained anywhere, will explain the process Monday afternoon while Dr. Samuel F. Small, chemist, is relating his work to develop narcotics that are not habit forming.

The work of William Barton Rogers, who joined the faculty of the University of Virginia 100 years ago and who later founded the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and his contributions to Geology in Virginia, will be discussed by Dr. Joseph K. Roberts of the Geological faculty.

Dr. Carl C. Speidel, professor of Anatomy, will show motion pictures illustrating the effects of alcohol on the nerves in living tadpoles. He won a $1,000 prize offered several years ago by the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Gov. Nice to Report On Administration

To Give Data to People From Time to Time.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—A series of reports dealing with activities of State Departments during the ten months of Republican administration will be made to the people of Maryland by Gov. Harry W. Nice.

The Governor today announced he would make the reports from time to time. One of them will give details of savings, which he said amount to about $1,000,000 in the State Roads Commission.

Another, Nice said, will deal with the administration of the Conservation Department, under the present three-man board. This commission, he believes, has actually cost less than the former one-man form of administration. He pointed out that the former commissioner had three advisors who were paid $1,000 a year and expenses.

29th Division Unit Will Hold Reunion

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 12 (AP).—The annual reunion of Company I, 115th Infantry, of the Twenty-ninth Division, will be held in Baltimore Saturday. The company was a merger of Company I, First Regiment, from Wicomico County, and Company I, Fifth Regiment, Baltimore City. It was commanded in the World War by Amos W. W. Woodcock.

The Company I Veterans Association was formed in 1927, and is made up of 64 Baltimoreans and 87 residents of Wicomico County. Charles Gilbert Cooley, Baltimore, is president.

Jones Lauds Glass' Bank Bill Fight

Intruders Likely to Get 'Worst of It,' RFC Head Tells A. B. A.

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, Nov. 12.—Any differences of opinion between President Roosevelt and Senator Carter Glass of Cirginia were likened to a "family dispute" today by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC.

Jones, addressing the American Bankers Association, praised Glass' work on the 1935 banking act, and said that while the veteran chairman of the Senate Banking subcommittee entertains "decided views on legislation" those with whom he disagreed do not resent them.

Intruder Warned.

"And this includes the President," Jones added. "The President and the Senator may have their differences of opinion on specific measures, but coming between them is a good deal like intruding in a family dispute.

"The intruder is likely to get the worst of it."

In referring to the bank act Jones said, in part: "The new act was considered with great deliberation in committee—longer in the Senate because Senator Glass, chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency sub-committee, is our best authority on Federal Reserve and bank legislation.

"He feels very keenly his responsibility regarding banks and Federal Reserve legislation, having served on the Banking and Currency Committees in both Houses of Congress and for many years as chairman of each, as well as having been Secretary of the Treasury.

"He is therefore ever ready to resist proposals that, in his opinion, will weaken our financial structure or banking laws. Certain features of the bill as introduced, in the Senator's opinion, had that effect, particularly the provision that the Federal Reserve Board be given absolute authority in open market operations (the purchase and sale of Government securities).

Practically Rewritten.

"Senator Glass and his committee in the Senate resisted this, insisting that the Fedreal Reserve Bank be given representation on the open market committee. When this was agreed to, most other differences were soon ironed out, though the bill was so changed as to require practicaly rewriting it, all of which took a great deal of time.

"We all owe a debt of gratitude to Senator Glass and his members of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and to Henry Steagall and members of his committee in the House. Everyone except the banks that wanted the underwriting privilege were very well satisfied with the bill. I never saw a better feeling or better humor anywhere, than prevailed when the Conference Committee finally came to an unanimous agreement on the banking bill. I am sorry that you are denied the privilege of hearing Senator Glass at this hour. He requested me to express his very great regret that his doctors would not let him come."

2 Dropped for Age Get New Hearings

Jones Sets Final Session for Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—Concluding hearings in the cases of two conservation commission employes dismissed because of old age will be held Thursday, Employment Commissioner Harry Jones said today.

The men are George H. Barnes, who says he is 73 years old, and Luther F. Miles, 75. They were dismissed on September 20 and asked for hearings before Jones on their cases.

After part of the testimony was take nat an earlier hearing the proceedings were recessed while the two men were examined by doctors. Added testimony will be taken Thursday, and the physicians who made the examinations will be placed on the stand.

Credit Firm In Richmond Wins Appeal

Had Been Accused of Practicing Law Illegally.

Bank Is Victor Against Depositor Seeking Preference.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 12.—An appeal was granted by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals to the Richmond Credit Association today in a case in which the association was charged with practicing law without authorization.

A decree of the Law and Equity Court, part II, of Richmond, held that certain acts of collection agencies were unlawful in that they constituted practicing law. The suit was brought by the Richmond Bar Association.

The respondent contended that it is not engaged in the unauthorized practice of law and that its activities do not require the exercise of professional skill.

The court also granted an appeal to the receivers of the American Bank & Trust Co. in a case where a depositor of that defunct bank claimed a preferential status.

Henry B. Goodridge was denied an appeal from a decree of the Norfolk Law and Chancery Court, which, on complaint of R. F. J. Hamilton, directed that a real estate contract be canceled and that Goodridge pay Hamilton $4,500.

A writ was denied W. C. Scott from a decision of the Norfolk Corporation Court fining him $20 on a charge that he was engaged in the brokerage business without license.

Bartlett Young was refused a writ against his oonviction and five-year sentence by the Elizabeth City Circuit Court on a charge of criminal assault on a woman.

Elijah N. Clamon and W. D. Sensabaugh were refused a writ from a judgment of the Shenandoah County Circuit Court awarding Edward E. Danfort $3,500 for injuries received in an automobile accident.

Catholic Alumnae Elect Mrs. Holmes

Alexandria Chosen as 1936 Convention City.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 12.—Election of Mrs. Edward M. Holmes, of Norfolk, as governor and selection of Alexandria as '936 convention city brought the annual meeting of the Virginia Chapter, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, to a close here today.

Other officers named include Miss Ruth Murphy, of Roanoke, vice governor; Miss Evelyn Spece, of Ocean View, recording secretary; Mrs. O. B. Grassberger, of Richmond, treasurer, and three trustees. Miss Jean Fannon, of Alexandria; Mrs. Irene O'Connor, of Richmond, and Mrs. Z. F. Lyman, of Petersburg.

Father Thomas Mitchell, of Richmond, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the chapter's department of social service this morning. Father F. Joseph Magri, pastor of St. Paul's Church, Portsmouth, was the speaker at the luncheon session.

Somerset County Heat Brings 2d Corn Crop

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 12 (AP). Boosted along by warm weather of recent weeks, a second crop of corn is coming up in some sections of Somerset County.

Farmers reported that the new crop is a foot or more high in protected sections of the field. Other crops and wild foliage usually killed by cold weather before this time of the year are flourishing.

2 Go on Trial; Deny Charge Of Extortion

Ex-U. S. Employes Accused of Sending Threats, Explosive in Mail.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 12.—Ernest M. Wells and Lee Snyder, former employes of the United States Coast and Geodetic Service, entered pleas of not guilty when they went on trial today in the Federal District Court on two charges of sending extortion notes and one of sending an explosive through the mails.

J. H. Lackey, investigator for the Swartz Co., which received a letter signed "Insurance Company Limited" and threatening concellation of the "policy" unless $1,000 in "dues" were paid, testified he turned the letter over to the district attorney's office.

J. W. Wood, general manager of the Pender Co., told of receiving a telephone call to follow up the letter mailed to his firm.

"I was told to have the money ready on a minute's notice and keep it from the police," Wood said.

Skilled Labor Lacking, State WPA Declares

By the Associated Press.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 12.—So little skilled labor is on relief, State WPA authorities say, that heavier projects will be eliminated from the program.

An official survey in this area shows 21 skilled laborors and no sem-skilled on relief rolls in Barbour County; 130 skilled and 33 semiskilled in Harrison County; 29 skilled and 14 semiskilled in Lewis; 155 skilled and 37 semiskilled in Marion; 166 skilled and 44 semiskilled in Monongalia; 56 skilled and 8 semiskilled in Preston; 48 skilled and 15 semiskilled in Randolph; 27 skilled and 2 semiskilled in Taylor; 69 skiled and 7 semiskied in Tucker; 22 skied and 5 semiskied in Upshur, and 36 skilled and 13 semskilled in Wetzel County.

Farm Group To Draw Up A Tax Plan

Will Urge New Revenue From Sources Other Than Real Estate.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—Definite recommendations for a "constructive tax program which will enable the State to pay as it goes" are being drawn by a joint tax committee of the Maryland State Grange and the Maryland Farm Bureau for submission to the State Legislature.

C. E. Wise, jr., secretary of the committee, said the body is making a thorough study of the Maryland tax problem, both as to normal revenue needs and old age pension requirements. Comments from other members made it plain the group will recommend that new revenue be sought from sources other than real estate.

Wise pointed out that several counties already had levied against real estate for old age pensions funds needed for cooperation by the counties with the State in the pension set up. "Farm leaders view this upward trend in real estate taxation with alarm," Wise said, "and something must be done to check it."

12 Per Cent of Total for Relief.

He said the Administration of relief alone costs about 12 per cent of the total spent, the percentage varying from 8 to 35 per cent in the counties. The overhead, he said, is fairly constant in the counties and the longer the relief roll, the smaller the percentage administrative costs.

"The committee is studying the present 1 per cent gross receipts tax, income taxes, luxury commodity taxes and will have complete data on the various sales tax measures now in operation," T. Roy Brookes, master of the State grange, said.

Committee to Meet.

H. H. Nuttle, president of the Farm Bureau, said: "While we have nothing definite to release at present, our recommendations will be for a constructive tax program that will enable the State to pay as it goes."

The committee will meet November 22 to make final recommendations which will be presented to the annual meetings of the organizations for approval. The grange meets in Easton December 10, 11 and 12 and the Farm Bureau meets in Baltimore January 14, 15, 16 and 17.

The Legislature will be in special session early in 1936 and the tax program probably will be submitted at that time.

Gallico . . .

Predicts Salica, Former Glover, Will Take Title.

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The indoor prize fight season in our town offers something fast and appetizing at Madison Square Garden next Friday when another champion out of the Golden Gloves goes to the post, the same being Lou Salica, today generally recognized as the champion of the world at 118 pounds. Salica came from the amateurs, where he held every title worth having. He was Metropolitan champion, Golden Gloves champion, Golden Gloves intercity champion, National champion and member o fthe 1932 Olympic team. He would have been world's amateur flyweight champion but for one of those screwy boxing decisions in the final bout.

Strangely enough, the last time before this that my attention was called to Lou Salica was in Rome in the offices of the Italian Boxing Federation, where, framed on the wall, I found a naction picture of one boxer standing in his corner and another on one knee, listening to the birdies and the referee. The young man in the corner was Salica. I pointed it out to the secretary of the federation at the time, and tried to indicate in broken Italian, and not much better English, that I knew him, that he was a product of the Golden Gloves.

His face lighted up, and he said something about—"very good boy . . . very good boy . . . very bad decision. No good. He win." He win, all right, but he don't get it. Apparently his opponent got credit for nine seconds of perfect defense while he was on the floor. They do strange things, those Olympic boxing judges.

ANYWAY, Lou was well bilked out of a title de deserved to win, and if the decision went to him in his first fight against Escobar, in which he won the title, why, then, that balances. And if it doesn't balance, at least Salica is putting up his crown against the man from whom he took it.

I didn't see the first fight between Salica and Escobar, but the ringside consensus seemed to be that Escobar won, even though Salica got the decision. There is no guarantee that this will not happen again, or perhaps this time Salica will win and Escobar will get the title. But, anyway, I will have a look at this one, and will come away with some idea as to who is the bantamweight champion when it is over. In my own, shy, modest way, I think the Golden Glover will come out on top.

There will be another interesting pugilistic experiment conducted soon in the same hall. It cannot be considered exactly as a prizefight, but rather as a field test, and is none thel ess exicting in prospect, and will be well atended. The situation is exactly the same as when a young man comes to the War Department and says, "I have invented a new armor-piercing bullet and there is no armor in the world that it cannot pierce and with very little trouble."

THE War Department always gets excited about statments like that, because if it is true, they want "A." to have that armor-piercing bullet, and "B" to get busy inventing a new kind of armor that it can't pierce.

And so they immediately arrange a test, and trot out their best and toughest and most bullet or shell-resisting piece of armor plate, and a tremendous crowd of experts gather around keenly excited as to the outcome of the experiment. Has the strange young man really got something? Will the bullet pierce the armor? Will the armor turn the bullet? And there, in effect, you have the problem set by the Christmas fund fight between Joe Louis and old Paolino Uzcudun. Young Mr. Louis has the bullet, old Mr. Uzcudun the armor plate.

It is generally advertised that Paolino has never been knocked off his feet, and I wonder if my memory is playing me false when it persists in passing before my eyes a picture of Paolino being floored for no count, or at the most a count of two in his fight with Tom Heeney in Madison Square Garden years ago, when Heeney was working his way up to a fight with Tunney.

Carolina Pair Is Second With 68

Cunningham, Houghton Far Back of Leaders; Register a 77.

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 12.—Willie Klein and Jimmy Hines paired to produce a 65 for the first round today of the Mid-South Professional Best-Ball Golf tournament and too ka three-stroke lead over the field.

Klein and his blond, long-hitting partner knocked five strokes off par in playing outward nine of the 6,900-yard revamped No. 2 course here in 31 and came back in 34, two under.

A North Carolina pair, Ralph Miner, of New Bern, and Palmer Maples, of Rocky Mount, clipped four strokes off par with a 33—35—68.

Tommy Armour, Chicago, and Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., winners of last year's Midsouth, fired a 35—34—69. Last year the tournament was Scotch foursome match play, while this year it is 36 holes best ball medal play. The second 18 holes will be run off tomorrow.

Dudley Golden Card.

Ed Dudley, the Philadelphia stylist, and John Golden, Noroton, Conn., veteran, who formed another favored pair, were even par for their first round, with 36—36—72.

La Salle Is Defeated.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Connellsville, Pa., Nov. 12.—Receiving the opening kick-off, Immaculate Conception High School paraded 69 yards for the only touchdown of the game and defeated LaSalle Institute, of Cumberland, here, by 7 to 0.

Rush smashed through center from the 4-yard line on the fourth down for the winning score. He also place-kicked the extra point.

Duke Celebrates; 'Will Defeat N. C.'

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 12.—Duke students last night began celebrating the victory they are looking for their football team to score over North Carolinas Tarheels next Saturday.

At least, University of North Carolina students awoke this morning to find hypothetical scores returning Duke the winner and derisive comments about the Tarheels painted on the "tin can," indoor athletic field. Also the goal posts had been removed from Kenan Field and the Confederate statute on the campus whitewashed.

President Frank Graham called a meeting of the student body for this afternoon to request the students not to attempt any retaliatory stunts.

Dixiana Farm's Entries Add To Laurels

14th Blue Ribbon Is Taken at Show in New York; Miss Dodge 2d.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Charles T. Fisher's Dixiana Farm improved its position at the top of the blue ribbon parade in the National Horse Show this afternoon, when Fiery Crags carried the Lexington, Ky., stable to the front in the class for model three-gaited saddle horses over 14.2 hands.

That victory gave Dixiana its fourteenth blue, as compared to 13 won by Frances Dodge, of Rochester, Mich. Miss Dodge went out after the award for single-harness ponies over 12.2 hands and not exceeding 13.2, but failed to place. Lewis A. Park's Harviestoun Elva, of Sewickley, Pa., led the field.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Upperville, Va., and New York, took the $1,000 champion hunter sweepstakes with the 5-year-old Spring Hope, a daughter of Mad Hatter. Mrs. Whitney also took third place with Two Leggins, second going to King Vulture from R. R. M. Carpenter's Dilwyn Farm, of Montchain, Del.

Knight Bachelor Wins.

Knight Bachelor from Judy King's Atlanta stable, runner-up for champion single harness horse title last year, won the crown this year when he turned back a fine field over 14.2 hands. Captivation, victor in 1934 in the colors of Mrs. Loula Long Combs, of Lee Summit, Mo., did not defend his title. The reserve ribbon went to Miss Dodge's Shalimar with Broompark Chancellor from the Greyholme stable of West Warwick, R. I., in third place.

Miss Dodge showed the champion three-gaited saddle horse, not exceeding 15.2 hands, when J. Wallace Bailey rode the 6-year-old bay mare, Etta Kett, to the top of the class over six other of the leading walk-trot horses of the country. Miss America, defending the title she won last year in the colors of the Dixiana farm, could do no better than third as her stablemate, Royal Irish, took the reserve ribbon. Etta Kett's victory boosted Miss Dodge's total number of triumphs to 13, only one behind Dixiana.

Penn Avenue Gridmen Will Play Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 12.—Penn Avenue High gridders will meet Hagerstown High for the fourth time when the clubs clash here Friday night at Community Park. Hagerstown had never scored on Penn. In 1932, the clubs played a scoreless tie, in 1933 Penn won, 40 to 0, and last year the locals copped, 27 to 0.

Cumberland's other scholastic clubs are booked for Saturday out-of-town games. Allegany High closes its Cumberland Valley Athletic League season by meeting Martinsburg High in the West Virginia town in the tenth game between the teams, and LaSalle Institute plays Johnstown Catholic High in the Flood City, in what will be the fourth clash between the schools.

Ky. to Play Manhattan.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 12 (AP).—Coach Chet Wynne said today Kentucky had accepted an invitation from Manhattan College to play in Ne wYork City next fall and that a contract for the football game probably would be signed soon.

S. M. U. Seeking Invitation to Rose Bowl

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 12.—The cry was, "On to the Rose Bowl!" tonight among followers of Southern Methodist University's unbeaten football team.

But while the team, fresh from its 21-to-0 conquest of University of California at Los Angeles, sped homeward by train, disturging reports sifted through from the Pacific Slope.

The reports said a team west of the Mississippi River never has been invited to play in the Tournament of Roses classic on New Year's Day.

Backers of Coach Matty Bell's "aerial circus" sarcastically confessed, however, that they did not recall a Mississippi River ever being listed as a natural barrier to a Rose Bowl in California.

Coach Bell himself quietly spoke the sentiments of his lads when he announced recently they would seek to set a precedent.

"We most certainly would like to have a chance at the Rose Bowl, river or no river. And who would not? My boys have a tough schedule to beat, but we'll be gunning for the honor."

The police and firemen's band, the mayor and city council, the chamber of commerce and the "sidewalk quarterbacks" will gather at Union Station tomorrow to roar welcome to a team that has scored 217 points against the enemies' 12 to rank second offensively and defensively among the Nation's better teams.

Coach Bell will hustle his charges off the train for a workout. He must patch up a team crippled by the loss of Harry Shuford, fullback, injured at Los Angeles.

Johnny Sprague, quarterback, and J. C. Wetsel, burly guard, both absent from the Armistice Day lineup, will return for the Arkansas game Saturday at Fayetteville, Ark.

Bell asserted at the start of the season he would "take them as they come" and point for no single game. However, critics agree his "crisis" will be reached at Fort Worth on November 30 when he meets the now undefeated and untied Texas Christian Frogs.

Hanley Happy, Minus Worry; Had Rather Watch Than Coach

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Dick Hanley was heartbroken when he lost his football coaching job at Northwestern, but it now develops that he was booted out of the realm of worry into the land of peace and contentment.

He says he's glad it all happened. He wouldn't go back to coaching football on a full-time basis if you gave him his pick of the Minnesota and Iowa lines and all of Ohio State's backs. He's having too much fun as a spectator while the other coaches do the worrying.

Hanley was cornered while watching Northwestern defeat Notre Dame for the first time in 34 years Saturday.

"What are there to these reports that you will coach Fordham next year?" he was asked.

"Aha, nothing to that one," he replied with a wide grin. "And you can deny any other reports for me officially as soon as you read them. Some day, I might take a coaching job, but if I do it'll be strictly with the understanding that I do so as part time. No one is going to catch me worrying myself sick Friday nights about football games any more. I'm sleeping simply great these fall nights. And for the first time in 16 football seasons, I'm enjoying that Saturday lunch. They used to give me indigention."

Dick is selling insurance and reports he's doing very well.

Selection of the all-star Big Ten team this fall promises to produce the biggest headache and argument in years. The difficulty is the over supply of excellent backs.

The only player reasonably sure of landing a berth on the team is Jay Berwanger, Chicago's one-man football team. Behind a weak, undermanned line, Jay has carried the ball 85 times this season and gained 436 yards for an average of 5.13 a try. He has thrown 60 passes for a grand total of 300 yards, an average per toss of 5 yards. He calls the signals, does most of the kicking, is a great blocker when he has anyone to block for, and is a fine defense man.

Coach Clark Shaughnessy, of Chicago, says he's the greatest football player he ever saw. In three seasons he has scored 145 points for Chicago—34 so far this season. He's the first man to report for practice and has played every minute in the harder games.

Walkersville Defeats Liberty Soccer Team

Frederick, Md., Nov. 12.—Walkersville High School avenged a former defeat by defeating Liberty High School yesterday afternoon, 5 to 4, in a postponed northern division contest. Walkersville scored all its points in the first half.

Shower Postpones Tech-Western Tilt

Because of threatening weather, yesterday's inter-high football game between Tech and Western was postponed until today. The teams will meet at 3:30 p. m. at Central Stadium.

Although both Coach Hap Hardell, of Tech, and Coach Dan Ahern, of Western, were favorable toward playing, the combined influence of Principals Frank Daniels, of Tech; Elmer S. Newton, of Western, and Harvey A. Smith, of Central, brought about the postponement.

The principals preferred not to risk the health of the students on the damp seats of the stadium. A slight shower fell shortly after noon. Dr. Smith also expressed a preference not to have the wet gridiron dug up if it could be prevented.

Rippy Cards 67 To Top Welsh In Tourney

Wins Opening Match, 3-2; Ficco, Garlem, Gipe Also Advance.

By Dave Herman.

IT'S going to take some super-spectacular golf to stop Claude Rippy in the East Potomac turkey tournament, if the brilliant 67 he scored yesterday in defeating Barney Welsh in his opening match is any criterion of what he plans to do to future opponents.

Rippy's 67, four under par, one of the lowest rounds ever reeled off in competitive match play over the F and G courses of this flat, soggy course, enabled the tall District municipal champion to turn back Welsh, 3 and 2.

In advancing to the quarterfinals, Rippy found his adversary no soft pickings. Barney, who is one of East Potomac's sturdy match players, was only one down at the turn, despite Rippy's great 32 for 6 side, which included three birdies and six pars. Welsh shot a 73.

Shoots Three Birdies.

Rippy won three holes on the first 9 with birdies, and enlarged his lead on the fourteenth and fifteenth, ending the match with a half in 3 on the sixteenth.

Joining Rippy in the second round were Charlie Ficco, 30-year-old printer, who won medal honors Monday; Erne Garlem, young high school golf star, and G. R. Gipe.

Is Beaten on 20th.

A former professional, Bob Gabriel, with plenty of shots left in his bag, fell before Garlem on the twentieth hole, but not until Gabriel had leveled par with a bristling 71. Garlem had a 73. They halved the nineteenth in 5s, and Erei played meticulously for his par 3 and win on the twentieth as Gabriel missed a short putt.

Gipe defeated A. H. (Bill) Wilhelm, 1 up.

Rippy	4	4	4	5	4	4	3	4	3—35—67
Wilhelm	4	4	4	5	5	5	3	4	4—38—73

First flight—Charlie Ficco defeated Bobby Powers, 2 up; Ernie Garlem defeated Bob Gabriel, 1 up, 20 holes; G. R. Gipe defeated A. H. Wilhelm, 1 up; Claude Rippy defeated Barney Welsh, 3 and 2.
Second flight—Charlie Luttrell defeated John MacAbor, 1 up, 19 holes; B. Harry Graham defeated R. O'Connor, 4 and 3.
Third flight—J. G. McAlwee defeated J. P. Stanton, 3 and 1; A. Heffner defeated H. J. Leech, 2 and 1.

35 Men From St. John's Storm Johns Hopkins for Hostages.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 12.—Sore knuckles and bruised ribs were nursed today at Johns Hopkins University as the result of warfare preceding the annual football game Saturday with St. John's College at Annapolis.

And at Annapolis not a few of St. John's students probably nursed similar injuries suffered in a pitched battle that raged until early today in the corridors of a Hopkins dormitory.

The melee started last night with the capture of a St. John's football player by Hopkins men. Reports were three strangers accosted him on the St. John's campus and asked him for a light.

He obliged, was pinioned and gagged. He later found himself a hostage on the Hopkins campus.

Three More Seized.

After the prisoners had been imprisoned for the night and the Hopkins students had gone to bed joyful ovre the success of the first

Florida—Its All-Time Honor Roll

Gator Teams of '27, '28 Provide Majority of All-Time Heroes.

By George Trevor.
Nationally Known Football Authority.

TWO Dennis (Dutch) Stanley and three other young alumni were intrusted last year the coaching reins of the University of Florida football teams in an effort to regain the success enjoyed by the 'Gator elevens of '28 and '29 on which they themselves starred.

The Alligators from Gainesville crawled over such worthy opponents as Auburn, Georgia and North Carolina State in 1928, losing only to Tennessee by a one-point margin. The following year Florida had a record in the old Southern Conference of six victories against one defeat. Outside the conference they defeated Oregon 20 to 6, but lost to Harvard. No wonder that players from those two teams figure prominently in the line-up of Florida's All-Time All-Star elevens.

First Team	Positions	Second Team
Welcome Shearer, '34	Center	"Ben" Clemons, '29
"Tootie" Perry, '21	Guard	"Jimmy" Steele, '30
"Goldie" Goldstein, '25	Guard	Rex Farrior, '17
"Muddy" Waters, '28	Tackle	William Stark, '34
Cy Williams, '25	Tackle	"Puss" Hancock, '12
"Ferd" Duncan, '21	End	Dennis Stanley, '28
Dale Van Sickel, '28	End	George Moye, '34
Carl Brumbaugh, '28	Quarter	Edgar Jones, '25
"Ark" Newton, '22	Back	"Red" Bethea, '30
Clyde Crabtree, '29	Back	"Dummy" Taylor, '11
William Middlekauf, '27	Back	Rainey Cawthon, '29

Welcome Shearer, pivot man on last fall's eleven, was the key man of the 'Gators' line. He gave a rousing reception to any enemy back that happened to sift through the center wall and he roamed all over the field making teeth-chattering tackles. "Ben" Clemons, the snapper back in '28 and '29, knows how to impart his gridiron wisdom. At present an assistant coach at Florida, he taught Shearer the fine points of position play. Many will dispute that the pupil had any superiority over the master in this case.

"Tootie" Perry plugged the gaps in the 'Gator forward wall in 1921 when Alabama went down to defeat by 2 to 9. Another guard, "Goldie" Goldstein, distinguished himself in two victories over Washington and Lee by his vicious charging that wrecked the Generals' running attack. Jimmy Steele could play at guard or tackle—a very handy man to have around.

"Muddy" Waters opened the holes through which Brumbaugh, Crabtree and Cawthon knifed to beat Auburn and Georgia. The 1934 tackle play of Bill Stark was almost on a par with that of Waters. Big and rangy "Cy" Willilams was considered "tops" by Gainesville critics.

At present engaged in playing minor parts in the movies, Dale Van Sickel acted the leading man on the conquering '28 team. He was Florida's greatest end—a gem of a pass catcher and a deadly tackler. The other flank would be guarded by "Ferd" Duncan, of all-round ability, but no better than from the Furst Stable, won this from Brindle and Scotch Bun, to pay a $6.70 mutuel.

Jay Jay and Stimulator teamed to bring a $12.70 pay-off in the daily double.

Jay Jay, a son of the mud-running Wise Counsellor, took the first race with the greatest of ease, with High Pool, the people's choice, a well baten second in the field of 11. Third money went to Trujillo. Sammy Renick hustled the winner, a $7.80 shot, all the way over the 6-furlong course.

The favorite players smiled as Stimulator led from start to finsh in the third race, to pay a $9.90 mutuel. Smear saved a world of ground entering the stretch to be second, in front of Dona Dulcin. Silvio Coucci rode the winner and only had to steer.

Two of the Nation's leading riders battled it out in the stretch in the fourth race and Alfred Robertson, aboard Bonanza, took a nose decision from Some Good, the favorite, with Coucci in the saddle. Miss Rainbow came up in the stretch to take third money. The finish was a thriller of the first Water and the winner paid $10.

Sparky, ridden by Jockey Horn, surprised by winning the fifth race, a sprint. Sparky, which has been doing most of his running at a longer distance, came with a rush in the stretch to win going away. Sainted was second and Miss Premier third in the field of a dozen platers. Sparky paid a $32.90 mutuel.

JAY JAY began quickly, sprinted into a clear lead while showing good ability in the footing, was shaken up entering the home stretch and drew out as if best. HIGH POOL raced in closest pursuit of the pacemaker from the start, made several efforts in the last half-mile, but was held perfectly safe. TRUJILLO was strongly handled and finished with good courage. SHINING SUN went well placed early, but failed to rally for the closing drive. ALZAC went evenly. MAJOR M. was forced to better his position on the outside after breaking slowly. MIN ORMONT was unable to reach a contending position. COUNT STONE did not fancy the footing.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AXACAN, $340.40, $114.80, $35.80; LEI, $4.30, $3.10; HER EXCELLENCY, $11.80.

AXACAN, outrun for the first turn of the field, moved up strongly after clearing the ninth fence, went into an easy lead when wearing LEI down after the next to last fence, then held sway for the balance of the trip. LEI, placed forwardly, challenged strongly going to the twelfth fence, gained an easy lead when FAST CHANCE and BAFFLER ran out at the twelfth jump, but was unable to resist the winner. HER EXCELLENCY was always far back and unable to threaten. GREG ORMONT weakened in the last half-mile. VICTORY FLAG and LIGHTNING ROCK were outrun. ATHA ran off a half-mile before the start. He was eased up after dropping far back, but completed the course. FAST CHANCE and BAFFLER ran out going to the twelfth jump. OCCOQUAN lost rider at the ninth jump. BONNIE LAD lost his rider at the seventh and HARDYAL lost his rider at the first fence when he swerved badly.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:33. Winner, J. McPherson's b. c. (6), by Stimulus—Malvina B. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:44, 1:51 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STIMULATOR, $5.90, $3.40, $2.80; SMEAR, $4.00, $3.20; DONA DULCIN, $9.70.

STIMULATOR, at home in the going and sent into an easy lead going to the first turn, was nicely rated to meet repeated efforts from DONA DULCIN then held SMEAR safe when mildly shaken up during the closing furlong. SMEAR raced on the inside of the leaders from the beginning, secured racing room and held on strongly. DONA DULCIN made frequent efforts in the early racing and continued with good courage for the final drive. BRAD went close up from the start, but could not better his position. THREE DAGGERS was unable to enter a forward position at any stage. AMERICAN BELLE was forced wide at the first turn. ITALIAN HARRY showed a dull effort. DUNAIR had no mishaps.

DAILY DOUBLE (FIRST AND THIRD RACES) PAID $12.70.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:05. Winner, M. B. Cohen's b. c. (4), by Swift and Sure—Eldorado. Trained by C. Ponse. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:13 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BONANZA, $10.00, $3.80, $2.80; SOME GOOD, $2.90, $2.30; MISS RAINBOW, $2.70.

BONANZA, a strong factor from the beginning, challenged strongly to gain a slight lead when straightened out into the home stretch, withstood a tedious drive willingly and barely lasted long enough to outlast SOME GOOD. Latter, sent into a short lead early, saved ground wherever possible and continued with determination when the real test came. MISS RAINBOW worked her way up on the outside and fought it out with excellent courage at the end. SATRAPAL in tight quarters between the leaders early, held on well for the closing drive. MINTON saved ground all through the running, but was not good enough. GOLD THORN tired during the closing furlong. CANTER BOY had no excuses.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:37. Winner, R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPARKY, $25.90, $14.30, $10.50; SAINTED, $16.80, $14.70; MISS PREMIER, $10.00.

SPARKY, slow to get going, bettered his position rapidly on the outside, wore the leaders down, inside the final furlong and came out stoutly at the end. SAINTED followed MISS PREMIER closely in the early stages, went to the front when reaching the home stretch, but could not resist the winner. MISS PREMIER showed good speed while settling the pace, saved ground, but weakened nearing the end. VENETIAN was unusually slow to get going, circled his field and finished with a bold rush. HAPPY FIND, on the outside early, went to the inside rounding the turn, then came wide when entering the home stretch.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000. The Stoneleigh. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:56. Off at 3:59½. Winner, Wm. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANTAGNA, $6.70, $4.40, $3.00; BRINDLE, $6.70, $3.70; SCOTCH SUN (entry), $3.20.

MANTAGNA, favoring the going, had good speed to take command from the start, was well rated in front throughout, disposed of PURPLE KNIGHT on the final turn, and had enough left to hold BRINDLE safe. The latter lacked early speed, gradually bettered her position when straightened on the back stretch, closed with good courage, but was unable to overtake the winner. PURPLE KNIGHT was reserved while MASON M. was forcing the early pace, closed stoutly, but could not get up. PURPLE KNIGHT forced the early pace and tired from his efforts.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. The Marble Hill. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:26. Off at 4:28. Winner, E. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOOTLESS, $9.30, $3.70, $2.90; GALMICA, $3.20, $2.70; ARMY AND NAVY, $4.50.

BOOTLESS outran his field to the first turn, went along smoothly to shake off ROSSELLI, met persistent efforts from GALMICA while under a hand ride, and held on nicely after reaching the home stretch. GALMICA made several bold efforts during the last five furlongs, but tired suddenly during the closing furlong. ARMY AND NAVY closed gamely. WEE LAD could not threaten at any stage. ROSSELLI was done early. SONGSTONE was unable to enter contention. POLLY REIGH was timidly handled.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. The Bare Hills. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:53. Winner, R. Robertson's ch. c. (5), by Prince of Bourbon—Rosalind II. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50, 1:16 2-5, 1:43, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLD JUDGE, $3.80, $2.90, $2.30; IDLE FLIRT, $4.90, $2.90; SUN ABBOT, $2.80.

OLD JUDGE, taken under slight reserve when reaching the back stretch, moved to the pacemaker midway of the final turn, assumed command under a drive and held on gamely to withstand IDLE FLIRT. Latter worked her way up steadily in the last half mile but could not gain on the winner nearing the finish. SUN ABBOT, slow to settle in his stride, improved his position on the outside and closed with good courage. BRAW SCOT saved ground in the last five furlongs and held on well.

Cadets in Final Home Game Of Year

Special Dispatch to The Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 12.—Undaunted by the lopsided score rolled up against them by North Carolina last week, the V. M. I. Cadets, almost up to full strength again, are getting set to celebrate their last home game of the season with a victory over the Davidson Wildcats.

The regular Cadet backfield, except for Dick Dodson, is expected to start against Davidson. Billy Robertson, Wayt Clark and Jim Beard will be ready for service after having been benched by injuries since the William and Mary game.

Coaches Bill Raftery and Ed Hess, who used 31 players against the Tarheels in an effort to save their other regulars from injury, expect the Cadets to be in the best physical condition of the year. Jim Farley and Bill Oglesby are glad to be back in their regular guard berths after pinch-hitting as blocking backs last week.

Campbell to Start.

Tot Campbell, game little sophomore back, who did most of the punting and running against the Tarheels, will probably be the signal caller Saturday. He replaces Dick Dodson, whose fractured jaw makes him the second regular quarterback lost by the Cadets.

Davidson and V. M. I. will each offer a pair of flashy backs on Alumni Field this week. Paul Pittman, a fine punter, and Teeny Lafferty, sophomore speedster, are Davidson's entries. The Cadets will rely on Billy Roberson, sophomore triple threat, and Wayt Clark, a hard runner end a good receiver of Roberson's bullet passes.

In the line, "Big Six" Johnston is a standout tackle for Davidson, and the Wildcats have four fine ends in Windham, Williams, Lee and Young. Jim Farley, V. M. I.'s great guard, and two star defensive centers, Embry and Georgia Brown, have played consistently fine football.

V. M. I.'s cross-country runners are also working hard this week. Winners over Richmond and defeated in a close meet by North Carolina's Southern Conference champions, the Cadets are aiming at their fourth straight "Big Four" championship. The meet will be run over the niUversity of Virginia course Friday.

Chrysler Loses British Suit Over Shares

Award Is $197,000 and 7½ Years' Interest at 5 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 12.—British plaintiffs in the protracted Chrysler Motors shares case were awarded today damages totaling £39,500 (about $197,000) and interest at 5 per cent from March 3, 1928.

Justice Atkinson in the Kings Bench division awarded £36,000 and interest against Walter P. Chrysler, American automobile manufacturer, and his associates, Stephen D. Briggs, Bernard E. Hutchinson, Joseph Fields and the Chrysler Corporation, in behalf of the Suffolk Investment Co., Ltd. He also made a judgment of £3,500 and interest against those defendants for Arnold de la Poer.

He declared he had decided on £36,000 as the damage to the Suffolk Investment Co. because of wrongs in January and February, 1928. De la Poer, he ruled, was entitled to £3,500 for damage suffered from the same matters.

When he started to deliver his judgment yesterday, Justice Atkinson said he had ascertained that De la Poer and the Suffolk Co. were threatened by an actionable conspiracy to obtain their Chrysler shares at a price below their value. This was in November and December, 1927. At that time, he said, he was satisfied that the actionable conspiracy was limited to Hutchinson, Briggs and Fields. He asserted they threatened the plaintiffs by saying their Chrysler sales franchise would be cancelled.

The justice stated that Chrysler was a party to the conspiracy of January and February, 1928, but not to the allegedly fradulent misrepresentations made by Hutchinson and Fields in November and December, 1927.

Butter Futures Rise To Five-Year Peak

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—Butter futures prices soared to the highest level in five years in heavy trading today. Gains of around $180 per car were recorded. The rush of buying sent November butter to a top of 30¾ cents, highest since March 21, 1931, closing at 30½. December got up to 30¾ also, the highest since December 4, 1930.

Bullish news concerning the heavy movement of butter out of storage prompted the buying Mercantile Exchange observers said.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Profit-Taking Shades Prices in Slower Trading Pace; Bonds Hold Firm; Wheat Turns Downward; Cotton Up.

By Frank MacMillen,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Nov. 12.—Profit-realizing held sway during all but the early part of today's stock market session. An opening buying push was quickly reversed, although while it lasted it was sufficiently brisk to leave the ticker tape lagging behind transactions. Volume tended to dwindle as prices receded.

A few sections of the list showed independent strength, especially Radio Corporation issues and Western Union. Rails held well most of the time. Higher-priced industrials and specialties bore the brunt of the profit-taking.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .7 of a point at 53.3. The major portion of the dip was accounted for by the loss of 1 point in the 30 industrials used in the compilation, at 72.8, while the rail and utility components were each .4 of a point lower.

Trading Less Active.

Turnover in the Stock Exchange, on an hourly basis, was the lowest for several days, and after the opening rush there were times when the tape moved desultorily. Business done was 2,147,510 shares.

Internal technical forces seemed to have dictated the reactionary stock market tone. Most commentators had been warned of the likelihood of a consolidation movement following recent advances. The news influences appeared constructive rather than the reverse.

The bond market, on the whole, presented an evener front than equities, largely because of buying some of the secondary rail liens.

Foreign buying brought cotton to the fore among the leading commodities, with gains ranging from $1.10 to $1.30 a bale. Wheat lost 1 cent to 1¾ cents a bushel, while corn was ⅛ of a cent off to ¾ higher.

Recent interest in Alleghany Corporation continued, with preferred issues up around 2 to 6 points, and the common up a fraction, as market quarters again predicted improved earnings for Chesapeake & Ohio, in which Alleghany has a large indirect interest. Alleghany Bonds were also up around 1 to 4 points.

Radio Pfd. B Up.

Radio Preferred "B," up more than 5 points for a time, ended 4¾ higher at 81, and the common was active and fractionally improved at 8½. Financial circles said that if current negotiations to sell Radio's interest in the English concern, Electrical & Musical Industries, went through, the corporation might use the cash, together with that obtained from the recent disposal of its stock in R-K-O, to retire its preferred stock. Western Union advanced 3 points, but ended finally only 1 point higher, when directors adjourned after a "routine" meeting.

Some of the "pivotal" shares which lost around 1 to 2 points included Allied Chemical at 161, American Can at 142½, Chrysler at 83⅞, Union Carbide at 70¾, Consolidated Gas at 31⅝, Westinghouse at 93, National Biscuit at 34¼, and American Telephone at 147. Among others off major fractions were U. S. Steel at 46¼, American Smelting at 56⅞, American Tobacco "B" at 104, Standard Oil of New Jersey at 48⅞ and Baltimore & Ohio at 14⅛.

Holiday Turkeys 3 to 5 Cents Higher

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).—Dressed turkeys for the Thanksgiving trade were quoted 3 to 5 cents higher per pound than a year ago in the big Chicago wholesale poultry market today.

The Chicago Poultry Board's prices on old and young hens were 24 and 28 cents per pound respectively compared with 20 and 23 cents at this time last season. For old and young toms the prices were 23 and 27 cents, compared with 20 and 24 a year ago.

U. S. Oil Ample For Centuries Byles Declares

Scarcity Warnings Are False Propaganda, Says A. P. I. Head.

Los Angeles, Nov. 12.—So far ahead as the mind of man can run there is no possibility of a failure of the Nation's supply of petroleum and its products, Axtell J. Byles, president of the American Petroleum Institute, declared here tonight, addressing the sixteenth annual meeting of the Petroleum Trade Association.

Speaking on "The Scare of Scarcity," Byles charged that "false prophets" are using warnings of petroleum scarcity "for the purpose of frightening the people and their legislative representatives into Federal control of this industry." He said there was every evidence that the supply of petroleum products is adequate to meet requirements for generations, if not centuries, and said government should not try to socialize the industry merely to serve the political bread line, but should encourage the exercise of State powers to conserve crude oil and natural gas.

He reported that a survey recently completed by institute committees, bringing up to date a study made in 1925, indicates that proved oil reserves in the United States now exceed 12 billion barrels, or about twice the amount estimated in 1925, despite that nearly nine billion barrels have been taken from the ground in the decade.

Billion-Acre Possibility.

The industry not only is finding oil at greater depths, and even below old pools, he said, but also has yet to explore more than one billion acres of geological formation in which oil may be found. Further assurance of an adequate supply was seen in the fact that, when economic conditions warrant, motor fuel sufficient to meet the needs of generations, possibly centuries, will be obtained from the Nation's virtually unlimited deposits of bituminous coal. In addition, shale oil deposits are estimated to contain more than 100 million barrels of oil, or enough for more than 100 years.

Not only are scientific methods of discovery and production leading to the recovery of more oil, he explained, but progress in refining technique also is contributing to conservation. He said the "cracking" process alone has, since 1920, produced gasoline which otherwise would have required the processing of more than 6,500,000,000 additional barrels of oil. This saving is equivalent to 75 per cent of the oil produced in the last decade.

"There are those who, believing that our petroleum resources are nearing exhaustion, advocate Federal control of this industry," said Byles. "It is our belief that such control would be ruinous to the industry and calamitous to the country.

N. Y. Short Interest 930,219 Shares Oct. 31

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The total short interest existing on the New York Stock Exchange as of the opening of business October 31 was 930,219 shares as compared with 913,620 as of September 30, an increase of 16,599 shares.

Tel. & Tel. Net Up 60% in September

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—Net operating income of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in September amounted to $1,459,009 compared with $911,490 in the same month last year. This brought net operating income for the first nine months up to $11,168,330 against $10,620,838 in the same period in 1934. Net operating income covers operating activities only, excluding non-operating income such as dividends, interest and other revenues received, and non-operating charges such as dividends and rents paid.

Wheat Depressed By Canadian Pact

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Enigmas about Canada's wheat marketing policy, intensified by this country's new trade agreement with Canada, had pronounced bearish effects on wheat values today.

Complete absence of details relative to the United States-Canadian trade agreement was a specially disturbing market factor making for trade nervousness because of apparent likelihood the agreement would vitally influence future wheat prices. Fears were expressed that a reduction of the United States import duty on wheat would result.

Wheat in Chicago closed unstable at the day's bottom level, 1 cent to 1¾ cents a bushel lower than Saturday's finish, December, 94⅜ to 94½; corn ⅛ off to ⅛ up, December, 59⅜ to 59½; oats at ⅛ decline to an equal advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Oil Stocks Decline 7,000 Barrels in Week

Stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum at the close of the week ended November 2 totaled 300,983,000 barrels, according to data compiled by the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, for Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

Compared with the previous week, this total represents a decline of 7,000 barrels, comprising an increase of 246,000 barrels in stocks of domestic crude and a decrease of 253,000 barrels in stocks of foreign crude.

Wilcox Seeks Federal Probe Of Bond Units

Representative Charges Bankers Control Committees.

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 12.—Representative J. Mark Wilcox (D., Fla.) promised to seek "rigid Congressional regulation" of municipal bondholders committees today as his investigation of city financing continued.

Before the Congressman as he quizzed two officials of the Florida Municipal Bondholders' Protective Committee lay tables—submitted by the committee—showing it had collected $747,774.36 from the 27 municipalities whose bondholders it represented.

Of this total $413,271.98 was distributed among bondholders, while $300,760.10 represented "net expenses." Gross expenses were $314,675.40, the difference representing "release fees" paid by withdrawing bondholders. Cash on hand was $33,763.98.

Wilcox explained the "ultimate purpose" of his investigation, ordered by Congress, was to "show in the hands of a few investment bankers and brokerage houses and a very few law firms."

Interests of bondholders, he asserted, rest with "self-constituted committees, which fix the amount of their compensation and charges and expenses they incur.

"There is no supervision, no regulation, no check on their acts. They give themselves all power, all authority to handle and deal in bonds, institute litigation or do anything else that suits their fancy."

At the next session of Congress, he said, he will seek legislation extending the power of the securities exchange commission and try to amend his municipal bankruptcy act to get "rigid regulation" of the committees.

Frisco to Redeem Trust Obligations

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—C. W. Michel, Eastern representative of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co., announced today that trustees of the road were prepared to purchase the outstanding equipment trust obligations which matured in 1934.

The remaining portion of such maturities, including the interest coupons, amounts to slightly less than $2,000,000, according to Michel. They will be redeemed at "not more than face value."

Visible Grain Supply.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes, in bushels: Wheat increased 209,000; corn increased 329,000; oats decreased 390,000; rye increased 76,000; barley decreased 536,000.

Strange As It Seems —By John Hix

DRY TORTUGAS ISLAND, site of the old abandoned Fort Jefferson off the coast of Florida, is dotted with forgotten graves—most of them the last resting places of yellow-fever victims. They are marked, generally, with a simple wooden cross bearing the name of the dead and the words "died of yellow fever." One grave, however, presents a mystery unsolved through the years. It is unmarked, except by a wooden cross which bears no name, dates or cause of death.

Strange as it seems, from time to time fresh flowers are placed upon this grave—and no one has ever seen them put there, and no one has ever seen anybody come to the island before the flowers appear, or leave afterward. Many legends have sprung up around this mystery—but none, so far, has explained it.

Postoffices in India sell more than stamps, money orders and other articles connected with the business of communications. There a supply of quinine is constantly kept in stock, available to all for the prevention and treatment of fever.

Eccentric Alphonso VI, mad king of Portugal in the late seventeenth century, was an impossible king and an irrepressible trouble maker. A favorite pastime was shooting passersby from his palace windows. Castel Melhor, minister to the king and virtual ruler, attempted to scare the king into sanity. He told him that a comet in the sky was a bad omen—portending tragedy. Alphonso, instead of mending his ways, whipped out his pistol and took a pot shot at the comet.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1935—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, & Auctioneers, 1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF TWO VALUABLE FRAME BUILDINGS BEING PREMISES NO. 4222 AND 4226 WISCONSIN AVENUE NORTHWEST, BEING SITUATED ON A LARGE LOT HAVING A FRONTAGE OF APPROXIMATELY 52 FEET ON WISCONSIN AVENUE BY DEPTH OF APPROXIMATELY 210 FEET; THE FRONT 100 FEET BEING ZONED FIRST COMMERCIAL AND THE REAR PORTION BEING ZONED RESIDENTIAL.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 6792, folio 175 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises on TUESDAY, THE NINETEENTH DAY OF NOVEMBER A. D. 1935, at FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being part of a tract of land called "Friendship," known as "Grasslands" and being part of lot 2 according to plat attached to partition deed between Benjamin F. Riley and Aquilla Eld recorded in Liber R. M. H. 17, folio 62, of the Land Records of the District of Columbia, said part of lot 2 being described as follows: Beginning for the same at a point in the westerly line of Wisconsin avenue (120 feet wide) as widened by proceedings in District Court Case No. 1263 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, intersected by the southerly line of said lot 2, said point of intersection being distant northerly 164.48 feet, more or less, from the intersection of said line of said avenue with the northerly line of Van Ness street, as shown on plat filed with District Court Case No. 1947 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; thence along said line of Wisconsin avenue north 23 degrees 32 minutes 30 seconds west 59.26 feet more or less, to the southerly line of the part of said lot 2 conveyed to David C. Coleman, by deed recorded in Liber 1603, folio 410, of the land records of said District; thence along said Coleman's southerly line south 72 degrees 10 minutes west, 216.755 feet to the westerly line of said lot 2; thence along said westerly line, south 21 degrees 30 minutes east, 59.20 feet more or less, to the southwest corner of said lot; thence along the southerly line of said lot north 72 degrees 30 minutes east, 216.755 feet, to the point of beginning.

NOTE—At the date hereof the above-described land is designated on the books of the Assessor of the District of Columbia, for taxation purposes, as lot 814 in square 1786. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs or assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 6 per centum per annum, payable semiannually from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $300 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustee may avail himself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

DICK TRACY — Plans for a Playground

THERE IT IS, MR. MAYOR! MY PLAN FOR A FIELD HOUSE AND PLAYGROUND FOR HOMEVILLE KIDS. A PLACE WHERE THEY COULD ENGAGE IN ORGANIZED SPORTS AND BE KEPT OFF THE STREETS.
M-MM-
THE BEST WAY TO COMBAT THE CRIME OF TOMORROW IS TO PROPERLY EDUCATE AND SHAPE THE CHARACTER OF OUR YOUTH TODAY. BESIDES, A THING OF THIS SORT WOULD HELP TO CUT DOWN THE AUTOMOBILE TOLL AMONG CHILDREN.
TRACY, I'VE ALWAYS ADVOCATED PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS - LOTS OF THEM! WHAT WOULD AN UNDERTAKING LIKE THIS COST?
VERY LITTLE, MAYOR! WHY, IF SOME PUBLIC SPIRITED CITIZEN WOULD DONATE THE USE OF A PIECE OF GROUND - WE COULD SURELY GET THE CITY COUNCIL TO APPROPRIATE FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR BUILDINGS AND EQUIPMENT.

Dr. Zeigler Addresses Brethren Church Rally

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 12.—Dr. S. G. Ziegler, of Dayton, Ohio, foreign missions secretary, and Miss Matilda Weber, a returned missionary from Africa, spoke at the annual rally of the Rockingham district of the United Brethren Church here today.

Mrs. R. L. Brill, of Martinsburg, president of the Woman's Missionary Association of Virginia, presided over the afternoon session. Dr. U. P. Hovermale, of Martinsburg, conference superintendent, presided over the night session. More than 200 pastors, woman missionary workers and laymen attended the meetings.

South Dakota Banks Merge

The Treasury announces the consolidation of the First National Bank of Rapid City, S. D., with the First National Bank of Philip, S. D. The merger will be known as the First National Bank of Rapid City. The capital will be $260,000, consisting of $175,000 preferred stock and $85,000 of common. The surplus is $20,000.

Two Assault Cases Up In Calvert Circuit Court

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 12.—Two cases of criminal assault were docketed for the November term of Calvert County Circuit Court which opened its second day before Judge Walter Mitchell and Associate Judge William M. Loker here today.

Those charged are James Taylor, colored, John Evans and Nick Cummings. Evans and Cummings are held on a charge of attacking two girls at Chesapeake Beach last August. Taylor is named in a similar charge. William H. Swann has been named foreman of the jury.

Wells to Be Drilled For Homestead Project

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., Nov. 12.—According to information from Washington 25 wells will be drilled on the W. C. Saunders farm, 9 miles south of here for the Ida Valley homestead project. The work will be done with Federal funds.

It is planned to locate hundreds of families who lost their homes in the development of the Shenandoah National Park at the homestead.
